HARRISON'S BAR, JAMES RIVER, Saturday, July 5, 1862.

The army is now comfortably settled in better and pleasanter quarters than any which they have occupied for several months. The rain which on Thursday drenched the camps and made almost impassable the roads, has not been repeated, but has been replaced by sunny skies and cooling breezes. In an astonishingly short space of time, the various corps have taken assigned positions and prepared the ground for a successful defence. The enemy, who yesterday appeared in some force on our right, and did a little in the way of artillery firing, have not declared their presence to-day by any offensive action. Gen. FRANKLIN assures me that the right, as at present supported, can stand and maintain its ground against 100,000 of the most ferocious rebels that can be thrown upon it. Indeed, at all points along the line, there is not the slightest apprehension of danger from an attacking enemy. So thoroughly protected, the army is getting that rest which it so much needs, and is ready to-day to do over again what it has so handsomely done in the last two weeks. It is the general impression that the rebel force removed eighteen miles from Richmond, its base occupying a country which the Union forces have already cleared of its forage, worn by constant labor, and unable to make any further advance, has been depleted of a considerable portion of its men, sent back to Richmond. If they were in strong numbers, and able to make any powerful attack, this army would not have been allowed to rest as they have during the last three days. They know as well as we do that every hour of delay in making such an attack multiplies alarmingly the difficulties of the undertaking, and effectually prevents success. Night and day the sound of the axe and pick and shovel coming from our camps tells them the story of what advantages they are, of necessity, allowing us. From all reports they are no longer the compact, well-drilled, effective army which rushed so promptly to the pursuit of our retreating columns, but, mourning a frightful loss, are in no position to successfully attack or successfully to defend themselves against the advance of a powerful army.

The position we now occupy is one of great beauty—an open, rolling country, skirted by woods, with frequent residences of the more wealthy and aristocratic of the rebellious Virginians. The James River, at our side, now covered with a large fleet of craft of various kinds, runs here through abruptly rising hills, and hills upon whose sides the handsomest of grain-fields flourish. The left bank is the higher, and if the rebels could but once place a battery, even no more than two or three field-pieces upon it, they might do a deal of damage to our shipping. But, fortunately, our gunboats very surely prevent the accomplishment of anything of this kind. The Monitor and Galena, lying side by side just off the landing, with steam always up and gunners eager to employ their great guns, are too formidable opponents to be carelessly boarded.

The fighting of the last two weeks is, of course, the continued and exhaustless subject of camp talk. To pretend to give to every one credit who displayed conspicuous bravery in the various battles is impossible. As one of the Generals said to day, when every officer and every man in his brigade fought like veterans, it is impossible to designate particular men. As the army give maturer consideration to the subject, they allow more and more credit to Gens. SUMNER and HEINTZELMAN for the success of this movement. Gen. MCCLELLAN is also open in his expressions of admiration of the conduct of Gens. RICHARDSON—"Fighting Dick" his soldiers call him—and FRENCH, and Gens. HOOKER and KEARNEY. They were the men who stood by tired soldiers when many were sick of heart and thoroughly discouraged, and left only to leave a victorious field.

One of our gunboats, the Matanzas, captured last night the Teaser, a little rebel affair which flourished a month or more ago about Norfolk, and brought her in here a sadly battered and used up craft. She carries one heavy 64-pounder gun, and had made her way down the river from above, on a reconnoitering trip.

Movements of which we hear, puts the army in good spirits and tells of plethoric camps, and Richmond secure. Whatever the country may feel, the army is confident of success, and in excellent spirits.

FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.

ARMY BEFORE RICHMOND, HARRISON'S LANDING, JAMES RIVER, Sunday, July 6, 1862.

Affairs remain quiet on the James River. Not a moment has been lost in strengthening the position of the army at this place, and all the necessary supplies in the shape of forage, provisions and Quartermaster and commissary stores are now here in great abundance. The troops also during the last two days of comparative rest have improved in spirits, and the constant arrival of reinforcements of fresh men gives new hope to the army. The troops who arrive are sent to the front, and the soldiers who have had so much experience in the hardships of the field remain for the present at a more quiet distance from the immediate scene of operations. Gen. MCCLELLAN has made personal inspection of the men, addressing to them many words of encouragement, and also complimenting them upon their heroic endurance of the fatigues and labors incident to the changes and conflicts of the past week. Yesterday a fine band discoursed inspiring music to the soldiers, which had a most excellent effect.

The Monitor, Galena, Aroostook, and several other vessels, are lying up and down the river, ready to render any assistance that may be required. The lines of the army were advanced considerably yesterday, and every precaution is adopted to prevent a surprise by the enemy.

The only gunboat left to the Confederate navy on the James River—the Teaser—was captured on Wednesday evening, a short distance above here. A single shot from one of our gunboats knocked the little thing into smithereens, and she was taken in tow without further opposition. She lies opposite here a dilapidated specimen of naval architecture. Her smoke-pipe resembles, in its smashed leaning condition, the damaged tile of some old toper who has been on a long spree.

The vigilant eyes of our signal corps, from their out-look on this side, discovered, yesterday, a suspicious-looking group on the opposite shore, who seemed to be examining the ground, and surveying our position. There were also some rebel cavalry prowling around. It is suspected that they may attempt the construction of a battery over there. Should they do so, our gunboats will make short work with them.

A rebel Captain, who was taken prisoner, confessed that the rebel loss on Friday, at Gaines' Hill, was 24,000, and that their total losses, during the week's fighting, were from sixty to seventy thousand. He thought our losses must have been greater. They could not, however, have exceeded twelve thousand, killed, wounded and missing. This is about the general estimate of our losses. The long lists now being published, it should be borne in mind, embrace a large number of sick who have been accumulating at various points, and should not be set down to the account of our casualties in the recent battles. A great many, also, are only slightly wounded.

It is matter of surprise, in view of the heavy loss of officers, that our army does not learn a lesson of wisdom from the rebels. It requires close inspection to distinguish an officer from a private in the Confederate ranks. A very small strip on the shoulder, or a small star in the corner of the coat collar, is all that marks the rank of rebel commanders. On the contrary, observe the flashy spread eagles, gold leaves and glistening bars which make our officers conspicuous marks for the rebel sharpshooters! Until there is a change in this mode of wearing uniforms, we must look for a continuation of these long lists of killed and missing officers.

The complete details of the battle of Friday, furnished by my associate, "Whit," supersedes all necessity for my continuing the narrative of these events. Daily occurrences of stirring interest must now take the place of the events of the ast. E. S.

LATE AND IMPORTANT.

Arrival of Gen. Burnside at Fortress Monroe—Reinforcements for Gen. McClellan—Rebel Batteries Erected on James River—The Transport Juniata Fired Into—Stonewall Jackson Not Dead.

A special correspondent of the TIMES, who arrived in this City late last night, from Gen. MCCLELLAN'S headquarters on Monday morning, brings several important items of news.

Gen. BURNSIDE has arrived at Fortress Monroe, on his way to Gen. MCCLELLAN'S Headquarters. On last Tuesday his troops were embarked aboard of transports and ready to coöperate with MCCLELLAN in the battles on the Peninsula, but he received a dispatch purporting to come from the War Department, stating that MCCLELLAN was in Richmond and the enemy in flight in all directions. Not suspecting the truth of this dispatch, he disembarked his troops and was then too late to participate in the seven days' struggle. His troops have, however, arrived at Fortress Monroe, and have before this arrived at Harrison's Landing.

The transport Juniata, conveying supplies up the James river, was fired into from rebel batteries below Harrison's Landing, on the opposite side of the river. She was obliged to run ashore to save being sunk. On the same side of the river the rebels have constructed batteries between Harrison's Landing and the Chickahominy River. One of them, which your correspondent saw, was merely a breastwork of sods, about eight feet high, placed one behind the other.

Day before yesterday, Stonewall JACKSON, who was reported dead, sent a flag of truce in, conveying a lot of our sick and wounded, whom they could not or would not keep. They, however, refuse to receive one from us, basing their refusal upon the fact Gen. GRANT refused their request at Shiloh.

Major STONE, of the Pennsylvania Bucktails, whose horse was killed at the same time that Gen. MCCALL'S body fell into the hands of the enemy, reports that the General was undoubtedly killed. His column was marching along the Charles City Road when he received intelligence that the enemy were in front of him. He halted his command and rode forward, in company with Capt. STONE, Capt. SHEEZE, and Lieut. LAMBERT. When he reached a bend in the road, he found, to his surprise, the rebels drawn up in line of battle, on both sides of the road, within one hundred feet of him. They ordered him to dismount, or they would fire. He attempted to escape, and a whole platoon fired into him. Maj. STONE and Lieut. LAMBERT both think that at least fourteen or fifteen bullets pierced his body. They saw him fall from his horse, and believe him to be dead.

Day before yesterday, Stonewall JACKSON attacked and drove in the pickets of FRANKLIN'S Division. When Gen. FRANKLIN brought up his reserve, JACKSON fell back, and it was expected a night attack would be made, but everything passed off quietly.

NEWS FROM THE REBEL CAPITAL.

From the Washington National Republican.

We had the good fortune to get hold, last evening, of a copy of the Richmond Examiner of July 4. It has an account of the battle of Tuesday, more than confirming the previous accounts of the slaughter of the rebels on that day.

The Examiner says that the rebel killed and wounded in all the battles amount to "at least" 15,000.

It says that in the fight of Tuesday, Major WALKER, of the Fifteenth Virginia Regiment, was killed, and the Colonel (AUGUST) wounded. Gen. ANDERSON is reported to have been injured by a shell.

Northern newspapers, captured from Union soldiers, are advertised for sale.

Confederate stocks rose from 93 to 97, as a result of the battles. These prices are paid in Confederate note currency.

SLIDELL writes that he expects the "Immediate" recognition of the Confederacy by the French Emperor.

The rebels believed that the New-York Seventh Regiment was in the late battles.

The Examiner talks about the "probable capitulation" of Gen. MCCLELLAN'S army.

It says that the rebels captured at the White House 192,000 rounds of assorted cartridges, 75 boxes of shell, &c.

Of the markets at Richmond, it reports "snap beans" at two dollars per half peck; cabbage at one dollar or one dollar and twenty-five cents per head, and "not large at that;" and peas, "without looking," at fifty cents per half peck. The currency in which such prices are paid need sink but a little lower to become utterly worthless.

GEN. MCCLELLAN'S GUNS.

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Press writes from Fortress Monroe, July 6:

"First as to the siege guns. I never saw, and never saw any one who did see, any other siege guns in the army of the Potomac than eight or ten long eighty-pound Parrotts. These were mounted in battery on the extreme right of the army, and all day Friday, June 27, did splendid work in shelling the rebels across the Chickahominy. These guns were all saved. I saw the whole of them late on Sunday afternoon, five miles across the White Oak Swamp bridge, on ground which the enemy did not hold for forty-eight hours afterwards. They were rapidly proceeding toward the James River. Your readers may rely upon the safety of these guns.

Then, as to wounded relatives of people in the North. Every battle-field and hospital which was formed for the reception of its wounded during the retreat, is in possession of the enemy. If a soldier was killed, his body now lies on rebel ground. If he was wounded in such a way that he could not walk, there being no ambulances to remove any wounded men, he of course fell into the hands of the enemy. If he were wounded so that he could walk without help, or by the aid of a crutch, or by leaning on a friend's shoulder, even though his weakness compelled him to rest at every half mile, his safety may be relied upon. The army, in aggregate, marched very slowly, but ten miles in twenty-four hours, and these wounded men came straggling to the hospital boats at HARRISON'S house during all my stay there, and no doubt they are straggling in still. From the nature of the wound the safety of the men can be ascertained. As to well men, the mails will soon be opened, and they, of course, at the first opportunity, will bring home letters telling their whereabouts.

Every regiment in the army, with scarcely an exception, was engaged in one or another of the week's battles, and all did bravely. The troops have the most perfect confidence in their Generals, and they all deserve it; for a braver set of officers never commanded an army. The men almost worship MCCLELLAN, and would do even impossibilities if he commanded them.

The troops, too, are united in sentiment on one other point: a firm belief in the inutility of Congressional criticism and censure of MCCLELLAN'S acts. When they are doing their best they cannot bear to be told that they could do better were they only to try."

NEWS FROM FORTRESS MONROE.

The Sick and Wounded at Savage's Station—Advance of Gen. McClellan—Gen. Burnside Arrived, &c.

FORTRESS MONROE, Sunday, July 6.

The officer who was in charge at the time, informs me that all our sick and wounded at Savage's Station were removed previous to the rebels advancing on that place, and were safely placed in different hospitals with others who were removed from the York River.

A flag of truce was sent up the York River from Fort Monroe this morning at 10 o'clock.

MCCLELLAN has advanced up the river about seven miles since the 4th. We have heard of no fighting within the last two or three days.

A small gunboat belonging to the rebels was sunk, three days ago, by our fleet. It, together with the Teaser, had returned down the river to within about twelve miles of Harrison's Landing, and encountered some of our gunboats.

The Knickerbocker, with about 500 sick and wounded, leaves here this evening for Washington.

FORTRESS MONROE, Monday, July 7.

The steamers State of Maine, Vanderbilt, Kennebec, Elm City, Arrowsmith, Thomas A. Morgan, Massachusetts, Canonicus, New-York and the Nellie Baker are all at Fortress Monroe this morning.

The Sixth Regiment, Cavalry, the Fifth Regular Cavalry, and the Sixth Pennsylvania Lancers, leave here to-day to go up the James River.

Gen. STONEMAN is highly spoken of for his bravery and skill in his late management of affairs on the York River.

The Elm City, from Harrison's Landing, has arrived at Fortress Monroe with 500 disabled soldiers on board, mostly sick. They will be taken to New-York. She lies at anchor in the roads, and not a boat can be obtained to go out to her to procure a list of the names. The officers of transports have become so hardened that they will not allow one of their small boats to do the smallest favor, even for humanity's sake, and, consequently, we will no doubt have to abandon the idea of obtaining a list from the Elm City. There are many wounded on board. Five have died since leaving Harrison's Landing.

The flag-of-truce boat, which left here yesterday morning, returned to-day, having been up as far as White House. They report all quiet, having seen nothing of the rebels on their reconnoissance. They brought down about fifty contrabands, and a few stragglers who had unfortunately been left behind at the time of the retreat. They also brought down eleven trunks, marked "WILMAR," which were taken from WILMAR, the clergyman, of Philadelphia, about six months ago, who was arrested for having articles with him contraband, which he was conveying to the enemy. They were brought here to-day from West Point.

Three o'clock P. M.—Gen. BURNSIDE'S flagboat has just arrived, and cast anchor in the Roads.

FORTRESS MONROE, Tuesday, July 8.

A flag of truce returned to-day from a cruise up York River. At Cumberland was found ninety of our wounded soldiers. They were brought a mile away, when the rebels compelled us to return them to the hospital where we found them.

All is quiet on the James River.

OUR FORTRESS MONROE CORRESPONDENCE

Stampede of Army Suckers—Hygeia Hotel a Hospital again—Celebration of the Fourth—Accident to the "State of Maine"—Secesh Prisoners—Escaped Union Prisoners—Interesting Accounts of Jeff. Davis and his Kingdom.

FORTRESS MONROE, Saturday, July 5, 1862.

The sudden stampede of all the army drones and hangers-on, has left Old Point once more to the quietude and decency which they had so suddenly invaded. The order for their leaving must have been somewhat peremptory, for never was there so speedy and complete a revolution in the social appearance of any place, as took place here yesterday between morning and evening. It was like the exodus of the swallows—every one knew they had gone, but how, when, or where, nobody could tell.

But if we have escaped the unpleasantness of being crowded together in a caravansera, it is probably only to exchange one discomfort for another. From all I hear, the Hygeia Hotel is again, and immediately, to be used as a hospital for receiving our poor sick and wounded men, the present hospitals not being able to contain the numbers constantly pouring in, and the large new one now in course of erection near the old Chesapeake, not being yet completed. It is one thing to visit the sick and wounded occasionally, but to live in close contact with them, to listen to the groans of sufferers during the silent hours of night and to be perpetually breathing the effluvium of angry—perhaps mortifying—wounds, is a heavy drag upon one's nerves and sensibilities. How much should it enhance our appreciation of the brave and kind-hearted women who are devoting all their time and energies to the alleviation of such suffering!

I told you, in my yesterday's letter, that the "glorious Fourth" was passing off very quietly among us—indeed, with no external demonstration whatever. Toward evening, however, we made quite a "splurge." The cannon of the Fort began suddenly to roar out their compliments, and a number of rockets simultaneously hissed through the still air. For an instant the folks—brimfull of anticipation for any sort of news in the way of war—pricked up their ears and wondered what it could mean; but then as suddenly remembering that it was only the Fourth of July, they whistled "Yankee Doodle" and composed their nerves.

The steamer State of Maine, of whose sick and wounded I sent you complete lists yesterday, left Old Point yesterday morning, but when some distance out in the Chesapeake Bay her machinery became disordered, and she had to be turned back, arriving at this port at 9 o'clock this morning. It must have been a sad disappointment to many a sick soldier on board; but they will be all well cared for in the meantime, and transferred as rapidly as possible to other vessels bound for New-York. You will find your list very full and complete. I send you, to-day, a full list of the Kennebec's sick and wounded, irrespective of her 150 who were left at the Portsmouth hospital.

The Hero came in yesterday with 500 secesh prisoners from the James River, and a harder looking set of fellows it would be difficult to meet. They were dressed in all sorts of costumes—usually a dirty grey—and with slouched hats, their shoes very dilapidated, in fact, many of them bare-footed; but all having the appearance of being well fed, although it is impossible to get it into the heads of people, hereabouts, that they ever taste anything but a decoction of whisky and gunpowder.

The Hero was ranged at the wharf, alongside of the Kennebec, loaded with our wounded soldiers, and as I stood on board the latter, among these two masses of men, it was strange to compare those who had so recently met in deadly conflict. I overheard one of our medical officers, on board the Hero, in conversation with a number of the rebels around him. He was trying to appeal to their reason, but far greater chance would he have had with so many maniacs. One man among them—no gentleman, by the way, for no rebel gentlemen I have met deal in vulgar invectives—was perfectly rabid in his denunciations. He would listen to nothing—accept nothing—attend to no explanations about BUTLER'S "woman" proclamation, &c. He was simply for fighting us to the last man, &c., &c. I never saw this man before, but I venture to prophecy—merely by his talk—that he would desert if he had a chance. I never shall forget the fiendish sneer with which he said: "Some of you fancy you are going to get over us with kindness, and so-forth—but by—you'll never get over me." That is very evident; for such wild beasts there is nothing but cannon balls and bayonets.

We had a very interesting arrival here last evening, in the persons of officers of our army who had escaped from the rebels. They are:

First Lieut. HENRY W. MAYES, Company G, Ninth Kentucky.
Second Lieut. G. W. BROWN, Company E, Twenty-third Missouri.
Second Lieut. N. J. CAMP, Company F, Twenty-third Missouri.
First Lieut. I. S. AGEY, Company D, Fourteenth Iowa.
Second Lieut. G. H. LOGAN, Company I, Fourteenth Iowa.
Second Serg't RHOADS, Company I, Fourteenth Iowa.
Third Serg't RHOADS, Company I, Fourteenth Iowa.

After a confinement of some six weeks at Montgomery, Ala., they were transferred from that place to Macon, Ga., on the 30th May last, and arrived there on the 1st June. Here they remained until the 16th June, when three of them—Lieuts. MAYES, BROWN and CAMP—made their escape, almost miraculously, on a dark night, followed the next day, (at 3 P. M.,) by the other four, who, however, were not aware of their companions' escape.

The recital of these gentlemen, if fully put to paper, would make quite an interesting little romance; but I have no time for it, nor do I think it wise, as it may teach the enemy how to look out against others who may escape in a similar manner. Suffice it to say, that having found two wretched canoes, some sixteen feet long, they managed, with oars formed out of their canteens and tin pans, to propel themselves along the Ochmuigee, which runs into the Altamaha, and, after a thousand hairbreadth escapes, contrived to get to Altamaha Bay, on the Atlantic coast, landing on Wolf Island, and then at Saplo Island. There they got on board the Wamasutta, which took them to our flag-ship Florida, in St. Symond's Sound, and thence they were finally conveyed, by the United States gunboat Massachusetts, to Old Point.

These gentlemen have amused us by lifting the curtain to give us a very nice little peep into the interior of the dominions of King JEFF. the First. They assure us that, in spite of all that the rebels may pretend to the contrary, there is a strong Union feeling at Montgomery and Mobile, surpassed only by what exists at Memphis! They say that that Union feeling is only kept down by main force, that the whole place is under military control; military officers seizing everything belonging to the people and compelling them to take their worthless shinplasters in return. They assert, moreover, that there is such strict surveillance of the Press that even officers have a difficulty in getting a newspaper when there is anything to hide from the public, but that there is no difficulty when they have gained any advantage over us. In spite of this the papers were often very plain spoken,—that they grumbled loudly against JEFF. DAVIS & Co.; one of them going far enough to call him an "incubus." The general impression, both at Montgomery and Macon, was that if we took Richmond the game was over!

As to the social and commercial state of matters the following is a list of a few ordinary things I took down at their dictation:

Common one dollar shoes	$4 00
Calfskin boots	25 00
Flour, per barrel	20 00
Sugar, per lb	0 50
Eggs, per dozen	0 50
Green tea, per lb	6 00
Coffee, per lb. (none to be had)	1 50
Mess beef, per barrel	45 00
Mess pork, per barrel	50 00
Foolscap paper, per ream	25 00
Commonest molasses	1 85
A $6 common coat	20 00

These prices, they said, were what ruled at the time New-Orleans was taken. Since then they have been gradually rising! And yet we hear of a last ditch somewhere, and of this war lasting ten years!

No war news of consequence at the time of mailing.

A Dearth of News—Sick and Wounded Soldiers—Gen. Burnside and Staff at Old Point—A Transport Fired into on the James River, &c.

OLD POINT, Monday, July 7, 1862.

There is a perfect dearth of any news of consequence here, up to this time—2 P. M. The burning sun is shining upon us with tropical fervor; the thermometer, at one place, standing at nearly 100 degrees in the shade. It is just one of those days when sweltering man and beast are glad to escape from toil and take refuge in cool, shady nooks, and when the best and most enduring of correspondents are fit for nothing but sherry cobblers and going to sleep.

The Elm City arrived from Harrison's Landing this morning, with some 500 sick and wounded, but instead of coming up to the wharf, laid far out in the Roads to take in coal, and then proceeded to New-York. I made every possible effort to obtain a list of her sick and wounded—even hiring a boat on purpose to convey me on board of her; but all to no purpose. When I got there I was informed by one of the physicians in charge, that the list had been sent to Dr. CUYLER, the Medical Director at the Fort, by the Quartermaster of the vessel. On returning to Dr. C., whom I had seen immediately before, I found that no such list had reached him, and has not done so up to this moment.

The fact is that in spite of Dr. CUYLER'S repeated orders, and the herculean efforts he is perpetually making to obtain immediate and correct lists of all the wounded and sick that are brought, it seems impossible for him to obtain them. Whether it be the result of sheer negligence, or of any hocus-pocus arrangements, I know not; but it is quite certain that public interests are not benefited when a newspaper correspondent is impeded in his efforts to lay the names of some 500 sick and wounded soldiers before their agonized and expectant friends at home. Dr. CUYLER is determined not to let the matter rest until he gets it into shape, and it is to be hoped he will succeed. Correct lists should be made out on board during the passage of the vessel, and, the very instant she arrives, a fair copy should be placed in the hands of the Medical Director of this Department.

Gen. MCCLELLAN'S proclamation was being freely circulated here, at the same time, if not before, it was probably stirring all New-York up with an important "Extra." It was received here with the greatest enthusiasm, and all expressed a hope that there was truth in the very current rumor that our young General is to be raised to the rank of Lieutenant-General. There is not a word in that proclamation which the whole army and people will not indorse.

We have been now two whole days without any New-York papers, which makes a considerable inroad into the life of the place. July 4 is a holiday with your printers, which accounts for no Saturday papers, and the Sunday came immediately on the top of that.

A negro was shot here yesterday in attempting to break through military orders. He was attempting to cross over to Hampton, when the guard challenged him. The negro refused to answer again and again—upon which the sentinel leveled his gun and fired at him.

The steamer Alice Price, BURNSIDE'S flag-boat, from North Carolina, has come in, with the General and Staff on board. What this denotes you will soon hear. Everybody here, however, spontaneously agree that his apparition among us can only bode good. Reinforcements of cavalry and infantry have also gone up—but whence, whose, and what numbers I am not at liberty to say. Those who left headquarters as late as this morning, say that all is quiet, cheerful and confident there.

Three cases of sun-stroke have been brought to the Hygeia Hospital.

Four O'clock P. M.—Intelligence has just been received of the rebels having fired upon one of our transports going up the James River with troops last evening. I have no time to get full particulars before the mail leaves, but the event is said to have occurred three miles below Harrison's Landing; and, after several shots, only one of our men was wounded in the leg. The Empire City is this moment coming up with part of BURNSIDE'S men on board.

THE WAR IN THE SOUTHWEST.

Continued Bombardment of Vicksburgh—Affairs in Arkansas—Movements of the Rebels in Mississippi, &c.

CAIRO, Tuesday, June 8.

The steamer Sunshine, from Vicksburgh the 3d, has arrived. The bombardment was continued. The town was deserted except by the military.

The news from White River, Ark., is not encouraging. Col. FITCH still holds St. Charles. No relief had yet reached Gen. CURTIS. The whole country bordering on White River is reported in arms, except those flying from the conscription, which is enforced in the most rigorous manner. Boats are frequently fired on from the shore.

The Granada Appeal of the 3d says that large numbers of Confederate troops have gone from Tussles to Water Valley, forty miles south of Holley Springs.

BRECKENRIDGE'S Division has gone to Vicksburgh. A large number of Mississippi troops have gone to Richmond.

Nearly all the Government stores have been removed from Grenada to a place occupied by 2,000 or 3,000 rebels. They have burned all the tresle-work of the bridges between Memphis and Coldwater.

Gen. HINDMAN has issued an appeal to the people of Arkansas, and says that he intends to annoy the enemy in every possible way, and asks the people to do their part.

The Little Rock Gazette, of the 28th, says that the Federals have evacuated Ludlay Bay and St. Cnarles, and the whole lower White River, and have gone in the direction of Memphis.

Gen. CURTISS left Batesville and crossed Black River, and is supposed to be making toward Cache Bridges, with a view to reaching the Mississippi River, viâ Crowley's Ridge.

Dispatches to the Navy Department—Operations at Baton Rouge, Vicksburgh, &c.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, July 8.

The Navy Department has received dispatches dated United States steam sloop Brooklyn, off Vicksburgh, June 22. The following is from Capt. CRAVEN to Commodore FARRAGUT:

SIR: In obedience to your orders of the 13th, I left Baton Rouge, on my way up the river, at 1 P. M. of that day. On the 14th, at 9 P. M., I sent the Marine Guard and a party of seamen, in all about 100 men, under charge of Lieut. LOWRY, at Bayou Sara, for the purpose of destroying the telegraph apparatus, and cutting the wires, and with orders to inform the authorities of that town that we were on the river for the purpose of enforcing the laws of our common country, and protecting its loyal citizens, and at the same time to warn them that if any hostile demonstrations were made upon our vessels or transports as they passed in front of their town by the thieves and murderers, yclept "guerrillas," the town would be held responsible for it, and at least be laid under contribution, if not dealt with more severely. About 11 in the morning, Lieut. LOWRY returned with his party to the ship, having thoroughly accomplished his work, excepting securing the telegraph apparatus, which had been removed but a few minutes before he landed. About half a mile of the wire was cut and brought aboard, and the vitriol and batteries destroyed. The people ashore seemed to be peaceably disposed, were quite civil, and made no disrespectful demonstrations. The Mayor or Chief Magistrate informed LOWRY that but two or three days previous to our arrival the town had been visited by bands of guerrillas; that they had committed many outrages against law and order, and he had arrested a Lieutenant who commanded the party, but he was rescued by his men and borne off to the woods. He represented these guerrillas as a lawless set of men, whom the inhabitants of the country and small towns had greater dread of than for the visits of our navy or even our army; and he hoped we would not hold him responsible for the acts of a cut-throat band. Before leaving shore, LOWRY, with the flag of our Union at the head of his party, and to the tune of "Yankee Doodle," marched through several of the principal streets. We passed Natchez at about 10½ of the morning of the 16th. On the morning of the 17th the Richmond joined us, and at about 9½ of that morning we passed Rodney. We arrived at our present anchorage on the 18th, at 11½ in the morning. Nowhere on our route were we molested, and I saw no change in the aspect of things since our last trip, excepting at Grand Gulf. The town there was riddled by shot, and then destroyed by fire. On a small hill just to the right of the town, was a small earthwork which had been only recently thrown up, and was capable of receiving three or four small field-pieces. It, as well as the town, was entirely deserted.

On the 20th inst. Commander PORTER arrived here with ten of his mortarboats. Yesterday the Miami arrived with another, and this afternoon four others were towed up. Commander PORTER informed me that his flotilla was fired upon at Ellis Cliffs, and that it is the intention of the rebels to mount a troublesome battery at that place; also at Quitman's Landing, as he learned at a farm-house coming up. The boats which arrived this morning were fired at from Ellis Cliffs and on the Empire Parish. One was hit two or three times, one shot temporarily disabling one of her boilers. Yesterday morning I sent the Oneida and Winona to look after these places. To-morrow I shall send the Katahdin to convoy the two boats as far as Baton Rouge, or until she meets you. Here at Vicksburgh the rebels appear to be quite busy in extending and fortifying their works, and it is said they have some 10,000 troops quartered in and about the town.

IMPORTANT FROM NASSAU.

Seizure of the Privateer Oviedo by a British Man-of-War.

Capt. Semmes of the Sumter in Command.

CONFEDERATE STEAMER CECILE WRECKED

Unsuccessful Attempt of the Nashville and the Kate to Run the Blockade.

The brig Lucy Darling, British, of Nassau, Capt. LOUPER, from Nassau on June 28, with cotton to J. ENRAS, arrived yesterday. On July 8, twenty miles northeast from Smith's Island light, passed a large ship, in tow of a steamer, steering southwest.

The steamer Oviedo, built in England for a man-of-war, was under seizure by Capt. HENSLEY, of H. B. M. ship Greyhound, and a prize crew was on board. When seized, she was under command of Capt. SEMMES, formerly of the Sumter.

The steamer Cecile, for Charleston, with munitions of war, ran on a rock off northeast point of Allacua, and sank in four fathoms water. She became a total wreck. The wreckers have saved the greater part of her cargo, in a damaged condition, and it was selling at auction on the 26th and 27th of June. Among the articles saved were six small brass cannon, smooth bore, and marked "Wein."

The steamers Nashville and Kate sailed on the 21st, for New-Inlet, N. C., and both were chased back, the Nashville getting into Gun Cay, Allacua, and the Kate into Eluthera Turtle.

The Lucy Darling left at Nassau the steamer Herald, from England, for Charleston, S. C., ready; Minha, do., for do., do.; Bahama, for do., waiting; Tubal Cain, for Charleston, do.; Murna, for England; Emilie, from and for Charleston, ready; Leopold, for do., waiting. Capt. LOUPER reports that there were two steamers at Cockburn anchorage and two lying off Hog Island, names not known. On June 26 saw a large full-rigged ship, English, propeller, (merchant,) making for Nassau; also a large bark, deep loaded, showing English colors, and bound to Nassau.

The ship Kearsage, Capt. SAWYER, from Havana, for New-York, with a cargo of sugar, in hogsheads and boxes, fell on her beam-ends in the Gulf Stream, between Florida and Bahama Bank, when the wreckers from Nassau fell in with her, and cut away the mainmast; but the ship would not lighten; they towed her ashore at Biminis, where a portion of her cargo was saved in a damaged condition. The ship when last heard from was bilged. The mate and crew arrived in Nassau, on the 22d inst., in the schooner Triumph.

The Lucy Darling brings as passengers Mrs. E. Chambers, Miss Chambers, Miss V. Chambers, Miss Smith, J. O. Smith, John Hughes, Geo. Crafts, A. B. Miller, John Jones, Augus. McBean, Mr. Paul Jones.

A PANIC AT FRONT ROYAL.

FRONT ROYAL, Tuesday, July 8.

The reports here that one of our wagon trains on the road leading southward, near Flint Hill, was attacked yesterday by 200 rebel bushwhackers, caused a panic on a small scale. The attacking party was at first believed to be the advance guard of a larger force. Shortly afterward the rebels were dispersed into the mountains, and nothing more was heard of them.

GEN. GEARY'S BRIGADE.

Correspondence of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

WINCHESTER, Va., Wednesday, July 2, 1862.

In passing through Perryville en route to Winchester, after fording the Shenandoah at Snicker's Ferry, Gen. GEARY made some important arrests. One was a man named WILLIAM A. JACKSON, for abetting the murder of a fugitive Union soldier named SAMUEL H. JEWELL, a Sergeant of the Eighth New-York Regiment; also, DANIEL H. SOWERS and HUGH and CYRUS MCCORMICK, who, upon the day after the Front Royal fight, arrested two members of KNAP'S Pennsylvania Battery, who had behaved nobly in the Front Royal engagement on May 23, and made their escape from imprisonment. Hungry and worn, they reached the Shenandoah, at Snicker's Ferry, where SOWERS and his comrades went to them and propitiated them with promises of protection and food, and, getting their weapons from them, delivered them over to the enemy's pickets. Also, JOHN MIDWELL, a paid spy of the enemy. These men were all sent forward in custody.

Gen. GEARY'S command, upon its arrival at Middletown, encamped immediately opposite the headquarters (Grove Encampment) of Maj.-Gen. BANKS. On the evening of the 30th, the fine band of the Twenty-eighth Regiment serenaded the latter General.

Considerable reconnoissance has been going on in the Valley of the Shenandoah, feeling for the position and intentions of the enemy, who is known to be watching an opportunity to reopen hostilities with our army. Before daylight yesterday morning Gen. GEARY'S command was thrown in the advance, and moved from Middletown down to the North Branch of the Shenandoah. They penetrated the Big Fort Valley for some distance, and came upon a body of about eight hundred infantry and a section of artillery, supposed to be the advance of either JACKSON or EWELL. GEARY'S advance guard of First Virginia Cavalry fell upon an ambuscade of the enemy near Fort Furnace, and a skirmish ensued, in which two of the cavalry were wounded, not fatally, and the rebels were driven from the rocks and stone fences, by which they were sheltered, by a vigorous return fire. The casualties of the enemy are not known. GEARY'S troops are now holding the ground they have gained in the rugged Big Fort Valley, which is the highway between the Massanutten and a range of disconnected mountains to the westward.

This reconnoissance in force, from indications at present, is likely to reveal the position of the rebel army, known to be laying back for an opportunity to strike a blow. It seems to be the determination to seek JACKSON out, instead of waiting for him to seek our forces.

The New Commander of the Arago.

At a meeting of the passengers on board the United States Mail steamship Arago, held the evening of July 4, 1862, Lieut. FENGAR, U. S. R., Chairman, and JAS. A. SUYDAM, Secretary, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we have witnessed with great pleasure the attention and kindly care manifested by Capt. HENRY S. GADSDEN to the large number of sick and wounded soldiers on board. He has given every aid to Dr. MCCALL, the efficient Surgeon in charge, and has provided them with every delicacy and nourishment that the ship afforded. Every effort has been made by him to make their condition as comfortable and pleasant as their sufferings would permit.

Resolved, That we are under deep and lasting obligations to Capt. GADSDEN for his gentlemanly kindness and courtesy during the voyage, for his constant and unremitting attention to the comfort of the passengers, and his efforts to make the passage agreeable and pleasant, and for the generous manner in which he volunteered and freely gave to us the use of the steamer's crew, guns and ammunition, to assist in the proper celebration of this day. We regret to leave him, but shall ever remember his kindness with the most grateful emotions.

Resolved, That our thanks are due to the officers of the ship for the prompt and cheerful manner in which they contributed to our comfort.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the leading newspapers in the City of New-York, and a copy thereof be sent to Capt. GADSDEN.

COL. JNO. D. RUST, (U. S. A.,)
LIEUT. A. A. FENGAR, (U. S. R.,) } Committee.

THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

THE FIRST OF THE SERIES OF GREAT BATTLES.

The Battle on the Left—Hooker's Division and the Hardships it has Undergone—A Double Victory in one Day—An Unfortunate Order—Our Losses and those of the Enemy—Incidents.

[DEFERRED LETTER.]

BATTLE-FIELD FIVE MILES FROM RICHMOND, Thursday, June 26, 1862.

On the night of the 24th orders were received from Gen. HOOKER for the First and Second Brigades in his Division, the Third being at that time on duty as pickets, to move at 7 A. M. the following morning to the front of our lines. Everything was got in readiness for the march during the night, and our troops firmly believed that the auspicious hour for the advance to Richmond had arrived. In spite of the incessant duty delegated to HOOKER's Division—they having fought the battles, dug the trenches, leveled the parallels, done picket duty when danger lurked in their front, met the enemy on every path they marched since their advent on the Peninsula—notwithstanding the fatigue of such a campaign, the heroes of Yorktown, Williamsburgh, Fair Oaks, and a dozen skirmishes—ofien classed in history as battles—formed in regimental line with alacrity and enthusiasm long before the time ordered for the march. Soldiers in the temporary hospitals, scarcely convalescent, became animated with the hope of being among the foremost to reach Richmond, and took their old positions in their companies, against the advice of the doctors, determined to win the day or leave their bodies on the field.

THE POSITION OF THE TROOPS.

At 6 o'clock the troops reached the front and were formed in line of battle on our old picket line, at the edge of the woods in front of the twin houses. The First Brigade, under Gen. GROVER, forming the left wing, on HOOKER's front, and the Second Brigade, (Excelsior,) under Gen. SICKLES, forming the right wing. GROVER's left was supported by KEARNEY's Division, and SICKLES' right, from some cause or other, was not supported until near 3 o'clock in the afternoon, no advance having been made by SUMNER's corps at this time.

THE ADVANCE.

Two companies from each regiment were now thrown forward as skirmishers, and the order received to advance. The skirmishers pressed forward, followed within easy supporting distance by their respective regiments. After advancing about 200 yards in the woods, the enemy opened fire on our extreme left. Two or three volleys were expended, when the fire became scattered and desultory, lasting probably a half an hour, when the enemy retired.

The enemy immediately after the cessation of their fire on the left, opened a heavy fire on the right as they were advancing cautiously through the woods. The dense underbrush and swampy morass, together with the galling fire of the enemy, rendered the advance exceedingly slow and difficult. The men were often obliged to load and return the fire when waist-deep in water and mud; yet gallantly they went along gaining the ground inch by inch, repelling the enemy with a determined fire and steady front until they penetrated the belt of wood and reached the outer edge facing a wheat field, driving the enemy before them.

Having obtained this desirable position, at a cost of many a brave soldier by both the left and right wings, orders were received for the two brigades to fall back to their original position, predicated upon reports said to have arrived at headquarters, that the brigades were hard pressed, and supposed to be without proper supports. The brigades immediately retraced their steps over the hard-contested ground with hearts sinking within them. The order appeared so much at variance with the plain sound common-sense of men, that the soldiers, and even their officers, murmured their disapprobation at what appeared a wanton sacrifice of life. To retreat when they had driven and defeated the enemy at every point, and gained a position often envied by our forces, was too incomprehensible for matter-of-fact minds to understand.

As the brigades were returning through the woods they were met by the Thirty-eighth New-York and another regiment belonging to BIRNEY's Brigade, under command of Col. J. H. HOBART WARD, that indomitable and heroic soldier, who has participated in every engagement in Virginia, from Bull's Run to the present period.

Gen. MCCLELLAN, with his Staff, arrived at this juncture, and assumed the command in person. Gens. HEINTZELMAN and HOOKER were present, and had been at the front since the advance of the forces. I might here mention that when the order was received by Gen. SICKLES to fall back, it appeared so incompatible with the science of military warfare, that he dispatched one of his aids to remonstrate with Gen. HOOKER against surrendering his advantageous position, when Gen. HOOKER, who appeared equally nonplussed, showed the order he had received. It was signed by Gen. MARCY; of course, no alternative was left. The order was imperative, without any discretionary power being vested in the division commander.

Gen. MCCLELLAN, on being made acquainted with the state of affairs, countermanded the order of Gen. MARCY and ordered the brigades to regain the positions they had abandoned.

THE SECOND ADVANCE.

Immediately after receiving the orders of Gen. MCCLELLAN, the troops wheeled about and commenced the second advance, to recover the ground lost. In the meantime the enemy, thinking we had retreated and gave up the vantage ground, pressed forward their pickets with strong supports, and occupied without opposition their original lines.

This movement was so unexpected to the rebels that they retired, disputing with less determination the advance of our troops. Our sudden appearance shortly after an apparent retreat, surprised and confounded the enemy, and the result was, our second advance was not so hotly contested as the first. It seemed as if new life had been infused into the men, and they accounted to each other for their withdrawal as a mistake of some one.

Col. DE RUSSY opened one of his batteries of rifled Parrotts, and shelled the woods in advance of our forces. He also sent forward one section of a battery of Napoleon guns, which advanced on the Williamsburgh Road, to about the centre of the woods. Arriving there, they immediately opened fire on the enemy's picket supports, who were drawn up in line of battle, compelling them to evacuate the woods, and take up a position in the open field, beyond. The rebels brought out, in the Williamsburgh road, two sections of a rifled battery, to reply to our Napoleon guns, attempting an enfilading fire, which was prevented from being successful by a rapid movement of our troops. The enemy then ranged their pieces down the Williamsburgh road, and kept up an amusing fusilade for a half an hour, doing no damage to our men, but throwing the mud from the marshy swamps in every direction. During this action, our troops advanced to the positions formerly held previous to their withdrawal, and posted their pickets in the edge of the woods, fronting a series of rebel rifle-pits in the wheat field.

Gen. KEARNEY's Division, to the left of GROVER's Brigade, advanced to a parallel line with HOOKER's Division. The Twentieth Indiana, Col. BROWN, and the Sixty-third Pennsylvania Volunteers, Col. HAYS, engaged the enemy. The fighting was quite sharp. The volleys from both sides were, at one period, terrific. Almost all the enemy's fire appeared to come from a brigade front. The regiments moved forward briskly, the enemy retreating as they advanced; reaching the desired position, they halted and threw out their pickets. KEARNEY's loss, considering the heavy firing of the enemy, was comparatively trifling.

A GAP IN OUR LINES.

On HOOKER's right a gap was found in our lines, nearly three-quarters of a mile, which should have been promptly filled by SUMNER, but it was not until 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon that a force was sent from his corps to connect the lines. Why this gap should have remained open for nine hours, I am utterly at loss to divine; perhaps the official reports will throw some light upon the matter. That blame rests somewhere there can be no doubt; an evil so important demands investigation.

CLOSE OF THE BATTLE.

A rambling picket fire was kept up until within a half an hour of the brigades being relieved, (about 8 P. M.) Up to that time an occasional sally would be made by the rebels on some portion of our front, but they were driven back each time, receiving more punishment than they solicited.

THE ADVANTAGE WE GAINED.

Our picket line now fronts an open field, a mile nearer to Richmond than we were on the morning of the fight. No swamps or thick wooded land, of any importance, now retard our march to the rebel Capital. True, the enemy have redoubts and earthworks thrown up a short distance further in our front, but they are now unmasked, and their reduction is a question of a few days.

Some consider the objects attained do not commensurate us for our loss. I confess myself, if we are to gain each mile to Richmond at such a cost of human life, the future looks gloomy indeed. The forces of KEARNEY and HOOKER have become greatly reduced by sickness and casualties. It seems to be their fortune to bear the brunt of every battle. I heard an officer on Gen. MCCLELLAN's staff remark: "Let HOOKER go where he will, he invariably meets the enemy, and always in superior force."

THE REBEL FORCE.

The rebel force was estimated at twenty-five to thirty thousand, directly in HOOKER and KEARNEY's front. Only two regiments of KEARNEY's were actually engaged—Twentieth Indiana, and Sixty-third Pennsylvania, parts of the First, Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth Regiments, Excelsior Brigade, and the First, Eleventh, Sixteenth Massachusetts, Twenty-sixth Pennsylvania, and Twentieth New-York; probably in the aggregate eight thousand men. They were on the field twelve hours exposed to the deadly fire of the enemy's musketry and shell.

OUR LOSS.

Our entire loss in killed, wounded and missing, will not fall much short of six hundred. We had few killed outright. A large proportion of our men were only wounded slightly. Of the missing, a few have come in this morning. It is known that the enemy took no prisoners, which speaks well for the order in which our men advanced. The rebel loss I have no means of knowing. It was certainly greater than ours, as some of our shell were seen to fall in the midst of their regiments while resting in battle front. We also took several prisoners. They belonged to Georgia, Alabama, and Virginia regiments, and appeared highly delighted at falling into the humane hands of the Union soldiers.

THE ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE WOUNDED.

For the first time since my experience on the Peninsula, the wounded received proper attention, and were quickly removed from the field. A small house, in the rear and to the right of the twin houses, was used for the amputation of limbs and dressing of wounds, under the care of Dr. CALHOUN, Surgeon of the Fifth Excelsior Regiment, who was laborious in his endeavors to alleviate the sufferings of the wounded. Several skillful amputations were made by him.

At Peach Orchard Station, a corps of doctors were in attendance, some volunteers, working most indefatigably, dressing wounds and affording the patients every comfort, Drs. Thos. Sim, C. K. Irwin, M. H. Burton, C. C. Jewett and Denniston, deserve especial mention. Cars were provided and the wounded carefully removed, and sent to the steamer at the White House.

INCIDENTS OF THE DAY.

One of Gen. PALMER's Aids, a young man, lost an arm by a shell. It hung dangling, when Capt. O. H. HART, Assistant Adjutant-General, of SICKLES' Brigade, suggested it should be temporarily tied up. "I wish it could be fixed to prevent pain. I know I must lose it," he replied.

A officer sat down behind a tree to rest during a lull. A shell from the rebels came whizzing along, struck the tree, splitting it in the centre, and dashed out the brains of the officer seated on the other side.

Capts. W. H. LAWRENCE and DICKINSON, of HOOKER's Staff, lost their horses. Capt. LAWRENCE was standing on the ground, leaning against the side of his horse, when a Minié ball struck the horse, killing it instantly. DICKINSON's horse was killed by a shell.

Several soldiers were killed and wounded near where Gens. HOOKER and SICKLES were standing. Gen. GROVER had a rather narrow escape from the fragments of a shell.

Col. C. K. GRAHAM, of the Fifth Excelsior, had a ball through his coat. Capt. O. H. HART and Lieut. H. E. TREMAIN, and Capt. W. B. CHESTER, Aids to Gen. SICKLES, were exposed to a raking fire of the enemy in carrying out the General's orders to the commandants of regiments. They fortunately escaped unhurt.

At the first advance in the morning four companies of the Second Excelsior broke and were retreating. From all accounts it appears some one gave the order to "Fall back," "That they were flanked." Gen. SICKLES heard the order but could not tell who gave it. As he saw them retreating he sprang forward with a voice of indignation and immediately rallied them. It was no fault of the men when they broke; some one gave an order to fall back, who it was no one knows. Col. HALL was to the right of his regiment at the time, and was unaware of his line breaking until some of the men had retreated some distance. He then confronted those retreating and rallied them. Dr. PRENTICE, of the Fourth Regiment Excelsior, remained at our extreme front during the heat of the battle, dressing the wounds of the soldiers, exposed to all the dangers.

A wounded soldier was returning from the front limping—he had been shot in the leg. A straggling private, desirous of having a good excuse for going to the rear, caught hold of the limping soldier to support him. The soldier, divining his motive for rendering him assistance, refused to allow him to support him, saying he could help himself, and with a scathing rebuke told the private to go to the front and fight for his country's glory.

One man in the Fourth Regiment, Excelsior Brigade, lost both his legs and arms by a shell.

A private in the Fifth Excelsior was shot in the foot by a Minié ball, when the Surgeon extracted it. He rose up on his haunches, and taking the ball out of the Surgeon's fingers, philosophically took out his purse and deposited the ball safely in it, saying, as he put it in his pocket, "I wouldn't take anything for that."

I send you the official list of the loss in the Excelsior Brigade. KEARNEY's and the rest of HOOKER's Division have not yet sent their reports in. To-morrow I will forward the total loss, with names, &c.

The enemy attacked our pickets in force this morning and poured in a heavy fire. Our pickets fell back a little, but, on the supporters coming up, assumed their former positions. Our loss was one killed and three wounded. Scarcely any firing worth mentioning has occurred on either side to-day.

Capt. MOREY, a valuable and efficient officer belonging to the Fifth Regiment Excelsior Brigade, died at the division hospital of typhoid fever. His body has been embalmed and sent to his parents in New-York City. M.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Brooklyn Navy-yard.

The rush of business still continues at the Brooklyn Navy-yard. There are now some 3,700 men employed every day, and the monthly disbursements cannot be less than $200,000. The rapidity with which vessels are overhauled and repaired is frequently astonishing. The Seminole and Bainbridge, for instance, which are hardly a week in from sea, are now bereft of all signs of service, as though they were just launched. The new Armamental-square has been deemed worthy of especial attention, and a watchman is now stationed at its entrance, to prevent the curious from fingering the "historical artillery" preserved so carefully within the inclosure. The new commander is now perfect "master of the situation," and is making himself popular every day.

The iron-clad Roanoke is rapidly assuming a finished appearance. The lower part of the hull is covered with plates, and on the 1st of August she is to be taken to the Novelty Iron Works, to have her mailing completed. There are about seventy hands employed on her. There were five hundred engaged in stripping her at first.

The new steam corvette Adirondack, finished and reported ready for sea some time since, is in commission and manned in the stream, unable to obey the "sea orders" of Mr. WELLES, in consequence of a slight disarrangement in her machinery, which will soon be remedied. She has on board provisions, stores and ammunition for a pretty long cruise, and will leave the Yard under sealed instructions. As she stands she has hardly cost more than $120,000, about as much as the Niagara's repairs will require.

The Seminole and Bainbridge, a steam gunboat and a brig-of-war, have, as before intimated, been emptied of all the requisites of active duty, from "men to marling-spikes." They are to be overhauled and fitted out for service again, no light-draft vessels being at present eligible for that sinecurean position named "ordinary" on the Naval Register. Their marines have been transferred to barracks, the crews discharged, or retained, as each man's service-term directed, and their officers allowed a few days' furlough. Both have been surveyed. The Seminole, rumor says, is rotten—rotten as a pear. She is "the most economically built steamer in the navy," her original hull having cost less than that of any of her cotemporaries. She will make up for her cheapness in being made seaworthy.

The old Receiving-ship North Carolina still occupies her old anchorage. She has not half so many seamen on board as are wanted—the whole number being 500—still quite a large crew to muster twice a day on her decks. The completion of the annual overhauling makes her look respectable, and strangers visiting the Yard consider her a "magnificent line-of-battle ship." The Prince DE JOINVILLE, great naval man as he is, was one of those thus deceived by the fine aspect of the vessel. The stoppage of the grog-ration is now the all-absorbing topic among her crew; and it is said they intend to renew the old smuggling tricks, and again patronise the Fishtown pirates, if its enforcement be attempted.

The constructing department of the yard is now monopolized by the steam frigates Ticonderoga and Lackawanna, which are receiving their finishing touches. The latter will be ready for launching in a few weeks, having been planked already. These vessels will be of a larger size than the Adirondack, and be better calculated for the general business of men-of-war.

The storeships Relief and Supply are in the stream. The latter has had a new deck put on board. The steam transport Connecticut is ready for sea, and will sail on Thursday next for New-Orleans. She will take letters, papers and parcels for the vessels stationed there.

The "military arm" of the navy, the United States Corps of Marines, still performs the soldier duty of the Navy-yard. From the barracks on Flushing-avenue, where about 200 rank and file are stationed, a guard is sent down every morning, from which sentries for the various posts are selected. Maj. GARLAND is at present the Executive Officer of the marines.

The other vessels at the Yard are the Savannah, Penguin, Magnolia and Daylight, all preparing for sea.

Festival of St. Bridget's Parochial School.

One of the most social reunions of the season occurred, yesterday, at Jones' Wood. The school children attached to the day and Sabbath school of St. Bridget's Church, Avenue B, under the pastoral charge of Rev. Father MOONEY, collected en masse among the dim shadows of the wood early in the morning; but before noon a variety of hangers-on of fêtes made some progress to and beyond the picket fence, and over and above the conscientious scruples of the gate-keepers, till plentifully provided stands of refreshments studded the park to the river's brink. There was a shooting-gallery with the inspiring mark of a weak-kneed traitor, looking forsaken of mercy beneath the true aim of a Union bargeteer. There were "jig tents," where the regular old fashioned Irish jig was thoroughly represented by old and young. Here the elderly ladies, most inclined to corpulency, and gay "old boys" joined in the merry step and rehearsed the gladsome days of childhood passed in happy "ould Ireland." There were the genial Larger bars, where seductive lounging places were presented beneath the winsome shade, and hither (women and) men repaired, when no other argument became so popular as that expressed in the words, "sure, and 'tis awful warrum the-day." Gin stands and catch-penny glass-blowers were also on hand, but were not the tricks they aimed to be. There was no end of flirting and "scupping," —the ugly name for tossing one's fellow creatures aloft in a luxuriously-seated swing—so that Father MOONEY was fain to give his reverend countenance to the splendid brass bands and merry cotillon parties upon the elevated platforms. The glorious harmony that filled the leafy ball-room was produced by a coalition of WHITWORTH'S and CORNELLE'S Bands. The most elevating and patriotic-inspiring of all the divertisements centered in the sending to unknown regions of space a succession of beautiful balloons, each one, as it gracefully swept away into blue ether, conveying the blessing felt and shown in looks, if not expressed in words, of Father MOONEY and the brothers of the Church, no less than of the generous donator, Mr. BASSFORD, of the Cooper Union. The first of these elegant balloons was "The Union," flashing back the bright words as far as the eye dared meet the sunlight. The next was "The Gallant Sixty-ninth," the third "America," and the fourth "Old Ireland Mavourneen." Shouts of applause followed the ascent of the suggestive emblems, and dark clouds, that had but a little before threatened to wet down the ardor of the assembled multitude, fled at sight of omens so cheering, and, as retreat of the vanquished finishes the victor, so indeed was whetted for lasting endurance the ambition of the brave sons of Erin on this their loved adopted soil, and their merry holiday.

Crowds of children as there were, it seemed as if the 6 o'clock homeward exodus, countenanced by the family men and their prudent partners, had small effect upon the population of the Wood; for car after car dumped its load all day long, and the knowledge gathered from a back look over the roads from the City hitherward was, "Still they come."

Moonlight beamed down upon a homeward-bound party less innocent, perhaps, than the rising sun smiled upon as they whistled and danced to the merry notes of "St. Patrick's Day in the morning."

Secession Flag Waved from Fort Lafayette.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I do not know who is the military commandant of Fort Lafayette, but with your permission I would bring to his notice the following fact, which can be attested by more than one witness. On the Fourth of July I hired a boat at Fort Hamilton, and with a party of ladies and gentlemen rowed a short distance. When returning we made the circuit of Fort Lafayette, and when nearly opposite the northwest corner our attention was called to a hat being waved to us through one of the grated windows of a cell, in which the boatman informed us a rebel was confined. Contrary to my remonstrance, but by way of badinage, one of the ladies of the party foolishly waved a handkerchief, when the rebel becoming emboldened deliberately drew from his breast a secession flag and waved it outside the grating, until becoming convinced of our non-approval thereof by my attempting to draw the attention of the sentry on duty to the fact, he hastily withdrew it.

The question therefore naturally arises, are secession flags permitted to be waved by rebels in Fort Lafayette on the anniversary of our National Independence? If so, then they ought not to be contraband of war anywhere. Cabinet Ministers at Washington please take notice.

I inclose my name and address. UNION.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

THE POLICE AMONG THE RUNNERS.—The following memorial was received by Mr. S. C. HAWLEY, Chief Clerk of the Police Department, and yesterday afternoon it was presented to the Board of Police Commissioners. It is understood that some immediate action will be taken upon the subject:

To the Honorable the Commissioners of Police for the Metropolitan Police District:

GENTLEMEN: The undersigned, merchants of the City of New-York, respectfully memorial your honorable body to take into consideration a very general and growing evil which has existed for the past few months, and which has been steadily and alarmingly increasing until it has become a great nuisance.

Ever since your honorable body, in its own discretion, have removed the crew of the Harbor Police boat from the Quarantine Station, S. I., our vessels have been boarded there by gangs of lawless persons known as "Slushmen" and "Runners," whose ostensible business is to obtain sailors for boarding-house keepers, and who, under the feigned name of "runners for commission houses," commit all sorts of depredations on our property, viz.: Our vessels, their tackle and cargo, which calls for the application of an immediate remedy, as in several instances the damage done by them and their accomplices is said to have amounted to hundreds of dollars. With a view of arresting this at present unmolested and lawless traffic, we would respectfully ask your honorable body to station a boat's crew of the Harbor Police, as heretofore, at the Quarantine Station, Staten Island, to protect the interests, and remedy this serious grievance of the shipping merchants of New-York.

This memorial is signed by about fifty of our most prominent shipping merchants, firms and individuals, among which are D. B. Allen, Grinnell, Minturn & Co., John G. Dale, Spofford, Tileston & Co., Sturgis & Co., Oelrichs & Co., Kunhardt & Co., and others.

In addition to the above is appended the following recommendation of Dr. GUNN, Health Officer at Quarantine:

QUARANTINE, Monday, June 30, 1862.

The above grievance is one which has been very frequently complained of to me, by the owners and captains of vessels, and a communication was also received from Gov. MORGAN on the subject, but there being no police force stationed at the Quarantine, and the invasion and pilfering of vessels occurring after the visitation of the Health Officer, it is utterly out of my province to control or prevent it.

A. N. GUNN, M. D., Health Officer.

BILLIARDS—BOSTON VS. NEW-YORK.—It will be remembered that in the great billiard tournament which took place in this City last Spring, two young men evinced rare skill in playing. They were Mr. GOLDTHWAITE, of Boston, and Mr. DEERY, of CHRIS. CONNOR'S rooms, of this City. They have recently played a match in Boston, when GOLDTHWAITE was victor, and now they are to play a return match in this City. The time appointed was the 24th inst., but as on that day the running races are to take place in Boston, the time is changed to the 17th. Wilkes' Spirit, which is the authority in such matters, says: "No inconsiderable interest is felt in the billiard world concerning this second match, the fine play exhibited in the first materially enhancing this feeling. The Bostonians feel more than ever confident in their champion, while the New-Yorkers have by no means lost faith in DEERY, who, they trust, will be able to reverse the previous result. The match will take place in the upper room of Mr. O'CONNOR'S establishment on Union-square, which will be conveniently arranged for the accommodation of the spectators."

THREE MEN STABBED IN RECTOR-STREET.—About two o'clock, on Monday morning, three men were dangerously stabbed in a cigar-store in Rector-street, near Greenwich. From evidence in the possession of the Police authorities, it appears that the names of the offenders are B. MALONEY and WM. KENNY, both of whom are boatmen, doing business at Pier No. 9 North River. The names of the parties who were stabbed are JOHN REIMER, HALL NEUMELLY and HERMAN BEDEFET. They are Germans, and by those who know them well, they are said to be very peaceable and respectable citizens. They were taken to the hospital by the Police of the First Ward, where the attending physicians pronounced their wounds to be of such a nature as to render their cases hopeless. The cause of the affray is yet unknown, but the Police are engaged in working up the case, and in trying to arrest the parties who made the assault. The latter escaped immediately after the affray.

FORGERY CASES.—In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, City Judge McCUNN disposed as follows of certain forgery cases: MARTHA SCULLY and ELIZA SANDERS, aged 15 and 16 years, were charged with forgery in the second degree, but the District-Attorney accepted a plea of forgery in the fourth degree, for which the prisoners were sent to the City Prison, at Mr. HALL'S request, for one month. CATHARINE SCHONEMAN, a woman of respectable appearance, was indicted for the same offence, but Mr. HALL, after hearing all the evidence in the case, told the Court and jury that he could not convict the accused, and accordingly the jury found a verdict of not guilty. ROBERT WILLIAMS and HENRY JONES were also indicted, but on the affidavit of one of the parties, the case was postponed till next term. CHARLES MARTIN'S case was not now disposed of, in consequence of the unavoidable absence of some material witnesses, touching defendant's previous good character.

IMPORTANT ARREST OF A CONFIDENCE WOMAN.—A woman, calling herself MRS. DAVIS, alias Mrs. Johnson, alias Mrs. Jones, with several other aliases, was arrested, yesterday, by Capt. DICKINSON, of the Twenty-eighth Precinct, upon the charge of robbing the house of Mr. VOORHIES, No. 34 Vandam-street, of about $50 worth of female wearing apparel. The accused recently took board at the house, but after remaining there for a day or two, she very unceremoniously left with the clothing. She is known to the Police as an old offender, and has been practicing this game for the last two years in the City. About $200 worth of pawn tickets were found in her possession. She is very genteel in dress and manners, and for this reason she is regarded as a dangerous character.

CITY MORTALITY.—The City Inspector reports that 339 persons died in New-York last week—90 men, 51 women, 98 boys and 100 girls—a decrease of 23 from the mortality of the previous week, and of 54 as compared with the mortality of the corresponding week of 1861. Of the deceased, 175 were children under five years of age. The mortality by the principal diseases was as follows: Consumption, 50; cholera infantum, 28; infantile convulsions, 18; dropsy in the head, 14; diarrhœa, 14; typhoid fever, 13; diptheria, 12; deaths from external causes, 37—among which are reported 7 premature births, 1 suicide, 4 drowned, 11 killed by accidents.

SUDDEN DEATH OF A SHIPWRIGHT.—EDWARD FLYN, a native of Ireland, aged about 25 years, accidentally fell from the scaffold of a ship at the Balance Dock, foot of Pike-street, yesterday, and died in about half an hour afterwards. The deceased was at work for EDSON & WEBB, upon the ship Octelly, at the time of the accident. He was both a shipwright and caulker, and by his employers he was regarded as a very reliable man. Coroner COLLIN held an inquest upon the body last evening, at the Dead-house of the New-York Hospital. A verdict of accidental death was rendered.

THE EFFECTS OF THE HEAT.—Officer DONOHUE, of the Fifth Precinct, yesterday found an unknown woman, about 30 years of age, in the rear of No. 203 Church-street, suffering from the effects of heat. She died while being conveyed to the Hospital....Officer PRENTICE, of the Tenth Precinct, found MARGARET KENNAN almost dead in Bayard-street, from the effects of a sun-stroke. She was conveyed to the Hospital....AMELIA HOFFMAN and HANNAH TICE were found by the Police, prostrated with heat, and conveyed to their homes, by the Fifteenth Precinct Police.

AFTER THE DRUGGISTS.—The Excise Commissioners are vigorously at work. Yesterday they held a meeting and granted twenty-seven licenses, from which the revenue is $810. Very many druggists sell in a moderate and quiet way, liquors for which they have no license. They contend that the use of brandy in a glass of soda water is purely medicinal and that they do not need a license. The Commissioners see the matter in another light and have determined to prosecute all who omit to take the proper papers.

PERSONAL.—Mr. JOHN M. CLAY, who is now in this City with a fine stable of racers, including Wagram, who has astonished and delighted the sporting world, is a son of the old Kentucky statesman. As such his presence is of interest, and attracts much notice. Mr. CLAY is of medium height, with only the Clay mouth and teeth to mark his origin, of an impulsive nature, and devoted exclusively to the improvement of racing stock.

FULTON MARKET FILTH.—The filth about Fulton Market is absolutely offensive. On the sidewalk and in the gutter of the Beekman-street side, the odorous mess grows daily deeper and more nasty. If it is a necessary sequence of normal trade for such dirt to gather, it might be deprived of its most offensive peculiarities by an occasional swash from the nozzle of a hose pipe. As it now is, it constitutes most emphatically a public nuisance.

COMMENCEMENT AT ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE.—The seventeenth annual commencement of St. John's College, at Fordham, will take place to-day. The exercises, which consist of orations, music, delivery of diplomas, &c., will commence at 12 M., for which the public will be in season if they secure seats in the train which leaves the corner of Twenty-sixth-street and Fourth-avenue at 11¼ A. M.

ROBBED IN A DISORDERLY HOUSE.—JOHN BROGAN, a countryman, was robbed at a late hour on Sunday night, of the sum of $90, in a house in Greene-street. MARY MARSHALL, the keeper of the place, was arrested, and $20 of the stolen money were found in one of the prisoner's stockings. Justice QUACKENBUSH committed MARY for trial.

A REVOLT AMONG THE GRAIN-SHOVELERS.—The grain-shovelers were not at work on Monday. Some two thousand of them were massed, in the morning, from Coenties-slip to Broad-street, demanding that the elevators shall be dispensed with. As those machines destroy their business, and endanger the lives of the craft by suffocation, they express their determination not to work in connection with them.

INDICTMENT OF MRS. REAL.—An indictment has been found by the Grand Jury of the General Sessions, against MARY REAL, for the murder of her late husband, PETER C. REAL, the particulars of which are familiar to the public. She will be arraigned to put in her plea to-morrow.

THE RELICS OF THE TWENTY-SECOND REGIMENT.—An advertisement in another column summons the members of the Twenty-second Regiment, National Guard, still in this City, to meet this evening at the armory of Company C, on Sixth-avenue.

BEREAVED BUTCHERS.—The lightning on Monday night played thunder with those who deal in beef and mutton. We were informed at the market that whole stocks were discolored and spoiled by the effects of the electric spark.

A GUILTY CUSS.—HENRY CUSS pleaded guilty to petit larceny, and was remanded for sentence until Saturday next.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

Kings County Board of Supervisors.

THE RELIEF FUND—PENITENTIARY STATISTICS—THE WORK OF THE EXCISE COMMISSIONERS—A THIRSTY COMMUNITY—SUPPLIES FOR THE INSTITUTIONS—KEEPER OF THE PENITENTIARY.

An adjourned meeting of the Board was held last evening at the County Jail, President CROOKE in the Chair. The Commissioners of the Relief Fund sent in their seventh report, showing that between the 29th of May and the 23d of June they distributed to families of volunteers $13,403 20. It was referred to be filed. The Keeper of the Penitentiary submitted the following report for the month of June:

Prisoners received: males, 41: females, 67—total, 108.
Prisoners discharged: males, 32; females, 46—total, 78.
Prisoners escaped: male, 1—total, 1.
Prisoners remaining: males, 104; females, 126—total, 230.
Moneys received for convict labor, $63 75.

The report was placed on file. The Committee on Accounts, to whom was referred the statement of the Excise Commissioners of their transactions for the year ending May 1, 1862, reported that they compared said statement with the book of the Excise Commissioners, found on file in the City Clerk's office, as the law directs, and find that they granted 1,214 licenses, as follows:

First Ward	39	Twelfth Ward	92
Second Ward	74	Thirteenth Ward	65
Third Ward	30	Fourteenth Ward	72
Fourth Ward	42	Fifteenth Ward	34
Fifth Ward	93	Sixteenth Ward	58
Sixth Ward	84	Seventeenth Ward	22
Seventh Ward	61	Eighteenth Ward	11
Eighth Ward	52	Nineteenth Ward	28
Ninth Ward	83	Flatbush	11
Tenth Ward	98	Gravesend	11
Eleventh Ward	114	New-Lotts	20

all at $30 each, making $36,420; and that said licenses, exceeding 44, were all granted on or before the 16th day of July, 1861, and that cash was paid to County Treasurer as follows: Aug. 23, 1861, $25,000; May 20, 1862, $11,420. Total, $36,420. The Jail Committee was authorized to enter into contracts with J. H. DOUGLAS to supply the Jail with coal at $5 39 per ton; KELSEY & LOUGHLIN, for wood at $5 87 per cord; and with ROBERT WELLWOOD for soft soap at 75c. per bbl. The Penitentiary Committee was authorized to enter into contracts with the following named persons, for the supplies as named for the County Institutions: JAMES CARMAN, fresh beef, 5¾c.; E. B. MONELL, Indian Meal, $1 40 per 100 pounds; yellow corn meal, $1 20 do.; ship stuff, 75c. do.; wheat flour, $6 per barrel; straw, 58c. per 100 pounds; salt beef, 3c.; salt pork, 4¾c.; molasses, 25c. per gallon; salt, 60c. per bushel; rice, 5c. per pound; beans, $2 per bushel; coffee, 25c. per pound; peas 14c.; pepper, 20c.; mustard 18c.; saleratus, 5½c.; codfish, 2½c.; potatoes, 50c. per bushel; hard soap, 5c.; vinegar, $2 50 per barrel. WM. LYNCH—Soft soap, 75c. per barrel. CHAPPEL & POOL—Kerosene oil, 30c.; fluid, 70c. KELSEY & LOUGHLIN—Coal, $5 91. A resolution presented by Superintendent CROOKE was adopted, directing the Commissioners of the Relief Fund to extend the same assistance to families of members of the Thirteenth Regiment New-York State Militia, as is extended to the families of Volunteers. The Board made three unsuccessful attempts to elect a Keeper of the Penitentiary, and then adjourned until the first Tuesday in August.

THE CAPITOLINE SOCIETY.—The Capitoline Association of this city, of whose delightful gatherings we have so frequently had occasion to speak, gave on Tuesday night, one of their "Musicals," at which a large number of gentlemen and ladies assisted. The entertainment was varied by musical exercises of every character, and was one of the most successful of the season.

CITY COURT CALENDAR FOR THIS DAY.—Nos. 30, 39, 12, 41, 42, 45, 46, 48, 49, 51, 52, 53, 58, 68, 61, 54, 56, 57, 35, 14.

NEW-JERSEY.

ARRIVAL OF THE BODY OF LIEUT. CHAZOTTE, KILLED IN BATTLE.—The body of the late Lieut. ADOLPHUS F. CHAZOTTE, of Company F, Seventh Regiment New-Jersey Volunteers, who was instantly killed in the battle at Mechanicsville, on Thursday, June 26, arrived in Jersey City, where he belonged, yesterday. The Independence Guard, of the Second Regiment N. J. S. M., of which deceased was a member, are making arrangements to inter the remains with military honors, the funeral to take place on Thursday afternoon. Lieut. CHAZOTTE was 25 years of age, a young man of great promise, and was loved and respected by all who knew him. He fell while gallantly leading Company H, of the same regiment, the officers of which were disabled and he placed in command. He was shot in the head, the ball entering the left cheek, passing through and coming out at the right ear, causing instant death.

THE RECENT RAILROAD ACCIDENT—DEATH OF THE FIREMAN.—TIMOTHY PAGE, the fireman on the train of the New-Jersey Railroad thrown off the track at Newark on Sunday evening, and who, with his father, the engineer, was so badly scalded by the escaped steam, died on Monday night at his residence, No. 53 Mercer-street, Jersey City, from the effects of his injuries. Deceased was about nineteen years of age; had been employed on the road since he was old enough to work, and was much esteemed, both by the Company and the employes. His funeral will take place this afternoon. Mr. RALPH PAGE, the engineer and father of deceased, still lies in a critical condition, but hopes are entertained of his recovery.

POCKET PICKED.—A gentleman residing in Newark, while at the depôt of the Erie Railroad at Long Dock, Jersey City, yesterday morning, had his pocket picked of a wallet containing $160. The thief escaped.

MAD DOG.—The first mad dog of the season, in Jersey City, made his appearance yesterday afternoon in Montgomery-street. After plunging through the basement of the house occupied by Mr. THOMAS, the rabid animal was killed by Policeman O'DONNELL.

SOLDIERS' HOSPITAL.—At the present time there are but about thirty-five patients in the Soldiers' Hospital in Jersey City. A large number are, however, hourly expected, for whom ample accommodation has been provided.

LAW REPORTS.

The Bottle Law Declared Constitutional.

IN COURT OF APPEALS—JUNE TERM, 1862.

OPINION OF THE COURT.

Patrick Mullins vs. The People.—SELDEN, J.—It must be conceded that the statute under which the respondent was convicted before the Justice, is peculiar in its provisions, and bears palpable evidence upon its face of having been framed without that care and caution which should attend the enactment of a penal law. The respondent insists that the act is unconstitutional. This, however, depends in a great degree upon the construction which is given to it. The first section, which simply authorizes all persons engaged in the manufacture and sale of mineral waters, &c., in bottles, with names or marks thereon, to record and publish such names or marks, is of course without objection.

The second section, as amended by the act of 1860, declares it to be unlawful, without the written consent of the owner, "to fill with mineral waters or other beverage, any such bottle so marked or stamped, or to sell, dispose of, buy or traffic in, any such bottle so marked or stamped by him, her or them, of such owner thereof," and imposes a penalty of fifty cents for every violation of the enactment. This section is very awkwardly framed, and would, if literally construed, be entirely self-destructive. It could not, of course, have been intended to require the owner of the bottle to procure his own written consent to its use or sale. This would be absurd. The manufacturer for whose protection the statute was passed, might clearly fill his bottles, and sell them with their contents, without any written consent from himself. When he has done this, the purchaser becomes "the owner" of the bottle, and is therefore, according to the terms of the act, the party whose written consent is requisite to any subsequent use or sale. But his written consent could be no more essential to a sale by himself, than that of the manufacturer to the original sale, nor would it afford any protection to the manufacturer to require it. This, therefore, cannot be the true construction of the provision.

The only mode in which the statute can be made to effect the object of its enactment, is to interpret the word "owner" as referring exclusively to the original owner whose name or mark is upon the bottle, and the prohibition to extend only to a use or sale by, or a purchase from, a person other than such original owner. Thus interpreted the provision is entirely unobjectionable, and would accomplish precisely what the Legislature no doubt intended. But to warrant conviction and punishment under this section, the offence must be proved. The record in this case shows, that Mullins was convicted by the Justice of having violated the provisions of the act, in having "secreted" the bottle marked and stamped as described, upon his premises, and in having "sold, disposed of, bought or trafficked" in the bottles of the complainant. Now it is plain, that the secreting of bottles cannot subject a party to a conviction under the act. It authorizes the issue of a search warrant for the purpose of finding the bottles; but no other penalty is attached to the act of secreting. This act is not mentioned or attended to in the second section, which alone imposes the penalty. To justify the imposition of a fine or imprisonment, the party charged must be shown to have violated the provisions of this section. Mullins was convicted under those provisions of having "sold, disposed of, bought or trafficked in" the bottles of Knebel. The only evidence to support this conviction was the fact that one bottle with Knebel's mark was found at the bottom of a barrel of bottles upon his premises, and that he was a dealer in old bottles. If this could be supposed to prove either of the acts with which he was charged, it must be that of having unlawfully bought the bottle. It could not prove that he had sold or trafficked in the bottles of Knebel, as it had no tendency to show that he ever had any other than in his possession than the one found. But how could the fact of the finding of this bottle upon his premises prove that he had bought of some person other than Knebel himself, which, upon our construction of the act, it was essential to establish? The presumption provided for in the first clause of the third section of the act does not arise, as that attached only upon proof of the use of the bottles for the sale of mineral waters, and of this there was no evidence. At common law the presumption from the facts proved would clearly be, that Mullins came lawfully into possession of the bottle. Hence, although in view of the interpretation which I have given to the statute there is no objection to its constitutionality, still I see no evidence in the case upon which the conviction can properly rest; and the only doubt which can exist, as to the propriety of its reversal by the Supreme Court, arises, as I think, upon the question whether the error can be corrected upon a certiorari issued, not pursuant to any statute, but under the established practice at common law.

An impression has prevailed to some extent in this State, founded upon several decisions of our late Supreme Court, that the power of review upon a common law certiorari is confined, to use the language of Judge Bronson, in the case of The People vs. The Judges of Dutchess, 23 Wend., 360, "to questions touching the jurisdiction of the subordinate tribunal and the regularity of its proceedings." "If," adds that learned Judge, "they neither exceed their powers, nor depart from the forms prescribed to them by law, their decision upon the merits of the controversy before them is final and conclusive." This has never, I think, been very cordially assented to, and from my examination of the subject it seems to me clear that, at least in that class of cases where the writ is used to remove a summary conviction had before a magistrate under a penal statute, the doctrine is erroneous. It is true, as has been often said, that such a certiorari removes only the words, and hence it seems to have been inferred that the evidence upon which the conviction was had would not be returned. But it will be found to have been conclusively settled at common law that the magistrate, in these cases, must insert the evidence in the record of the conviction itself, for the express purpose of enabling the Superior Court, upon a removal of the proceedings by certiorari, to determine upon the face of the conviction whether it was lawful; and although the Court would not interfere upon a question as to the mere weight of the evidence, yet a conviction without any evidence to support, has always, in the English Courts, been reversed or quashed as erroneous.

I will refer to a few cases to show that this has been the practice of those Courts. In the case of Rex vs. Theed, 2 Stra., 919, a conviction by a magistrate under a statute called the "Candle Act" was quashed, "because the evidence was not set out, it being alleged that the offence was fully and duly proved." The report of this case is very short, and does not show how the question was brought before the Court; but it was undoubtedly by certiorari, as is plainly to be inferred from a previous case against the same defendant, upon the same statute, (2 Lord Ray, 1375,) in which the conviction was sustained.

In a subsequent case, to wit, Rex vs. Lloyd, 2 Stra., 996, in which a certiorari was issued to a Court of Quarter Sessions to bring up the proceedings upon a removal of a clerk of the peace from office, a distinction was taken between a conviction and a mere order; and it was conceded both by the counsel (Mr. Strange) and the Court, that in cases of summary conviction, the record must contain the evidence, in order that the Superior Court may see that the conviction was legal. The Chief Justice said: "It is fully settled that in convictions the evidence must be set out; and if this was to be considered as a conviction, it therefore would be bad."

In Rex vs. Clarke, 8 Term, R. 220, the Court of King's Bench expressly held that upon a conviction of a person for killing game, without being duly qualified, the magistrate ought to state in the conviction the whole of the evidence for and against the defendant. The object of this requirement, and the extent to which the Court will go in reviewing the case upon the merits, is shown by the case of Rex vs. Smith, 8 Term, 584, 587. The defendant had been summarily convicted under a a statute of George III., against selling bread by wholesale, before it had been baked for twenty-four hours; and this conviction was removed into the King's Bench, no doubt, by a common law certiorari, as that was the ordinary, if not the only mode of removing such conviction. It was there held, that where a power of conviction is given by statute to a magistrate, he is the sole judge of the weight of the evidence; but that if no evidence appear on the conviction, to support a material part of the case, the conviction will be quashed.

The same principles were recognized in the cases of The King vs. Crisp, 7 East, 380, and The King vs. Chandler, 14 East, 267, in which convictions before Justices of the Peace, in the one case under the Malt act, and in the other for an offence against the Excise laws, were removed in like manner to the King's Bench. In each of these cases, the principal question raised and discussed in the latter Court was whether the evidence was sufficient to support the charge.

Many other authorities might be cited, but these are sufficient to show that upon a common law certiorari for the removal of summary convictions before magistrates, the power of review is not confined to questions affecting either the jurisdiction of the magistrate or the regularity of the proceedings before him, but extends to all other legal questions; and that unless it appears upon the face of the record that there was evidence sufficient to warrant the conviction, it will be quashed.

It follows from what has been said, that the judgment appealed from in this case should be affirmed.

Sutherland, J., was for affirmance on the grounds stated by him in the Court below; Gould, Davies and Smith, Js., on Selden's opinion; Allen for affirmance on defect of evidence; Denio, J., for reversal; Wright, J., absent.

State and National Courts—An Interesting Question of Jurisdiction.

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Before Justices Ingraham, Leonard and Rosencrans.

John S. Anderson vs. The Manufacturers' Bank.—This action was brought by the plaintiff, as assignee of a chose in action.

The plaintiff is a citizen of New-York; the defendants are a corporation created by and doing business in Connecticut. The action is brought to recover $633 33, with interest from 19th January, 1859, upon a claim alleged to have been assigned to the plaintiff by Josiah M. Colburn. On 14th December, 1861, the defendants entered their appearance in this Court, and at the same time filed a petition for the removal of the cause into the Circuit Court of the United States for this District, and offered a bond, with sureties, duly executed and approved, for entering in the Circuit Court, as required by statute, copies of the process against them, and for their appearance, &c.; and thereupon an order was made requiring plaintiff to show cause why the cause should not be removed. At the hearing of the motion, the plaintiff showed by affidavit that Colburn, who assigned the claim in suit to plaintiff, was a resident in and citizen of Connecticut. An order was made denying the motion, with $10 costs, from which defendants have appealed, on the ground that, upon their moving papers, they were entitled to the order for which they asked, removing this cause into the Circuit Court of the United States. (Act of Congress, passed Sept. 24, 1789, 1 U. S. Stat. at large, p. 79, sec. 12; Gordon vs. Longest, 16 Peters, U. S. R., 97; Kanouse vs. Martin, 15 Howard, U. S. R., 198, 208; Green vs. Custard, 23 Howard, U. S. R., 484.) The 12th section of the Act of Congress gives to defendants the absolute right to remove the action into the United States Circuit Court, and the provisions of the 11th section are not applicable to, and cannot control the case. (Green vs. Custard, 23 Howard, U. S. R., 484.)

The 11th section was intended to prevent the assignment of promissory notes and other choses in action of like character, for the purpose of bringing action thereon in the United States Courts; and the intent of the 12th section was to give to a defendant the absolute right to remove an action into the United States Circuit Court, under the circumstances and upon the conditions therein prescribed. The objection of want of jurisdiction in the United States Circuit Court can be taken only by special plea; and the defendants would not be permitted so to plead after having voluntarily removed the action into that Court. NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

We have advices from Gen. MCCLELLAN'S army to the morning of Monday last, through our Special Correspondents. At that time everything was progressing favorably. The rebels were keeping remarkably quiet in front, though they had erected two or three batteries on the opposite side of the James, below Harrison's Landing, for the purpose of annoying our transports, and to distract the attention of our gunboats. One of them had fired into the transport Juniata, which was forced to run ashore to prevent being sunk. The gunboats, however, of which there are a sufficency up the river, will make short work of the rebel batteries.

The cooperation of other armies with the army of the Potomac, which has always been regarded in well-informed quarters as essential to the speedy reduction of the rebel capital, is now, it appears, to be afforded. A dispatch to the Philadelphia Press, dated Newbern, July 2, says: "BURNSIDE'S entire corps d'armée is in motion, bound inland somewhere, probably to cooperate with MCCLELLAN. Your readers will be surprised to hear that three divisions are now in motion from this place, and more to come. You will hear good news from BURNSIDE, PARKE, FOSTER and RENO very soon. The troops are overjoyed to think that they are about to follow our gallant BURNSIDE into a victorious field once more. This important movement is doubtless the result, in great measure, of the consultation known to have taken place between Gen. BURNSIDE, the War Department, and Gen. MCCLELLAN, some time ago. The best results may be expected to follow it.

Gen. BURNSIDE, it will be seen by our latest advices, arrived with his Staff at Fortress Monroe on Monday. His army, or a large portion of it, is doubtless ere this, acting in conjunction with that of Gen. MCCLELLAN.

Adjutant-General HILLHOUSE issued General Orders No. 52 yesterday, relating to the new enlistments. There is to be a camp in each Senatorial District. The first seven districts are to arrange their camps as they think proper; the other camps are to be located at Goshen, Kingston, Tivoli, Troy, Albany, Fonda, Plattsburgh, Ogdensburgh, Sackett's Harbor, Rome, Richfield Springs, Oswego, Syracuse, Norwich, Binghamton, Auburn, Geneva, Elmira, Rochester, Niagara Falls, Geneseo, Buffalo and Jamestown. Each recruiting officer must confine his recruiting to the Senatorial District for which he is appointed. The force will be received and mustered into the service of the United States, by regiments.

The Common Council of Buffalo has appropriated $80,000 to raise a regiment for the new force, giving $75 bounty to each recruit.

By an arrival at this port we have advices from Nassau, N. P., to the 28th ult. The steamer Ovieto, built in England for a rebel man-of-war, had been seized by Her Majesty's ship Greyhound, and a prize crew put on board. She was under command of the notorious SEMMES, lately commander of the Sumter. The steamer Cecile, having on board munitions of war, intended for Charleston, had run on a rock off Aliacua, and had sunk in four fathoms of water, becoming a total wreck. A portion of her cargo had been saved, in a damaged condition, by wreckers. The steamers Nashville and Kate had attempted to run the blockade at Wilmington, N. C., but had been chased back. Several other vessels were waiting, at Nassau, an opportunity to run the blockade.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, the Confiscation bill as returned from the House was taken up. Mr. SHERMAN, of Ohio, moved that the Senate recede from its amendment and agree to the House bill. This was negatived, 23 to 14. A motion for a Committee of Conference was then adopted, 28 to 10. The resolution for the expulsion of Senator SIMMONS of Rhode Island was referred to the Judiciary Committee. The Tariff bill was considered, and after various amendments, was passed. A bill to amend the act providing for calling out the militia to suppress rebellion, passed in 1795, was introduced by Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts. The bill to establish and equalize the grade of line officers in the navy, was then considered until the adjournment.

In the House, the report of the Conference Committee on the Treasury Note bill was agreed to. The bill to provide for the discharge of State prisoners and others, was considered. A motion to lay it on the table was negatived—89 to 29—and it was finally passed. It directs the Secretary of State and the Secretary of War, as soon as practicable, to furnish to the Judges of the Circuit and District Courts, a list of the names of all persons, citizens of States in which the Federal judicial processes continued, who are or may be hereafter held as State, or political prisoners. Where the Grand Jury has terminated its proceedings without finding an indictment, it shall be the duty of the Judges to immediately direct the discharge of the prisoner. Every officer having the custody of a prisoner, refusing to obey the order, shall be subject to indictment for a misdemeanor, and punished with a fine of $500, and imprisonment of not less than six months, at the discretion of the Court. The bill also provides for bailing prisoners, and concludes with a section declaring that it shall be lawful for the President, by reason of the rebellion, and when the public safety shall require it, to suspend the writ of habeas corpus, and whenever it shall be so suspended, it shall be unlawful for any Judge to allow such a writ. The Senate bill, defining the pay and emoluments of certain officers of the army was passed. The House consented to a Committee of Conference on the Confiscation bill, and adjourned.

GENERAL NEWS.

The telegraph announces the arrival of the Great Eastern off Cape Race, with advices from Europe three days later—to the 1st inst. A summary of her news will be found elsewhere.

The grain shovelers have most resolutely determined to stop working in any way in connection with the grain "elevators," and at their meeting last night formed a protective society, calculated to prevent the further use of the machines. The grain forwarders have furthermore resolved that they can't do without the machines, and there the matter stands up to last night.

Seventeen rebel prisoners from Martinsburgh, Va., and that vicinity, arrived in Philadelphia on Monday, and were taken to the Provost-Marshal's Headquarters, in the old Pennsylvania Bank Building. Among the prisoners is a Second Lieutenant and an Orderly Sergeant. The Lieutenant is very anxious to take the oath of allegiance, and states that he believes he has been in the wrong, and is now willing to fight as a private in the ranks of the National army. Several of the privates expressed the same opinion.

The prize schooner Rebecca was sold at Callowhill-street wharf, Philadelphia, on Monday, bringing $1,275; the prize schooner Cora was also sold. She brought but $316. Parts of the cargoes of prize vessels were sold; cotton bringing 16 cents the pound, and salt from 60 to 90 cents the sack.

The United States frigate Sabine arrived at New-London on Sunday forenoon. She will stop there a few days with the intention of shipping men for service, and then proceed to visit the principal seaports of New-England at the eastward.

On Monday, the Brazilian steam-corvette Paranese arrived at the Philadelphia Navy-yard, from Fortress Monroe. The Paranese, commanded by CARLOS DE CARVALLO, has been on a cruise to Venezuela and the Spanish Main. She goes to Philadelphia for repairs, and will be taken on the dock as soon as the gunboat Chambers is removed from it.

Prince DE JOINVILLE, accompanied by his nephews, the Count DE PARIS and Duc DE CHARTRES, visited Mrs. Gen. MCCLELLAN at the country residence of Dr. MARCY, at Orange, N. J., on Sunday. They left the Brevoort House at 10 o'clock in the morning, in an open carriage, and spent the day in company with Dr. MARCY and Mrs. Gen. MCCLELLAN, who has been stopping there for the last few weeks.

The Commencement exercises of Amherst College are in progress the present week. On Sunday, Rev. Dr. STEARNS, President of the institution, delivered the Baccalaureate address, taking as his text, 2d Samuel, 10th chapter, and 12th verse. On Monday there was prize declamation by selected members of the Sophomore and Freshman classes. On Tuesday, JOHN B. GOUGH lectured, and Dr. DEWEY, of Ithaca, addressed the Society of Inquiry, and to-day OTIS P. LORD, of Salem, Mass., was expected to deliver the oration before the Alumni, and Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER was to address the Literary Societies. The Commencement exercises proper occur to-morrow.

A rise of 1½ ₱ cent. in the price of Gold, and 1@1¼ ₱ cent. in Exchange on London yesterday caused a corresponding advance on the Stock Exchange, and at the close of business the market was active and excited. United States 6 ₱ cents, 102; New-York Central, 90¾; Gold 112¼; Exchange 123 ₱ cent.

Prices of Breadstuffs were generally lower, yesterday; a fair business was transacted at the reduced rates, and the freight engagements of Flour and Grain for British ports were heavy. Cotton was quoted ⅛c.@1c. ₱ lb. higher, but the principal sales were those of New-Orleans, at auction, on account of Government. Moderate transactions were reported in Hides, Hops, Ingot Copper, Fish, Fruit, East India Rice, Tobacco, Molasses, Wool, Whalebone and Provisions. Sugars were active and buoyant. Whisky was in fair request, and was dearer. Iron, Lead, Spelter, Tin, Seeds, Spices, Hemp, Oils and Candles were quiet. Spirits Turpentine declined materially. No important changes transpired in other branches of trade.

The Live Stock Markets are very much depressed, in consequence of an over-supply and hot weather. Beeves number 4,250, which is near 1,000 less than last week. Some 300 were left over from the former market, and are now added to the supply, but not enumerated in the figures. The trade was dull, and prices ruled fully ½c. ₱ lb. lower than last week, or at an average of 7½c., the cattle being of general good quality. A few were sold at 8½c.@8½c., and some thin stock at $32 ₱ head, or less than 6c. The yards were not cleared out at nightfall. Sheep are lower and slow of sale, at 3½c.@4c. ₱ lb. Lambs are very dull of sale, ranging from 6c.@7c. ₱ lb. Live Hogs are lower than they have heretofore been during the past ten years. It takes a good lot of corn-fed hogs to bring 3c., and the best are only quoted at 3½c. Market completely glutted, and buyers disinclined to purchase.

The Case of the Ovieto—A Proof of British Good Faith.

The emphatic evidence the British Government has just given of its determination to observe the conditions of neutrality, by the seizure of the rebel war steamer Ovieto, deserves the acknowledgment which a prompt act of justice claims; and all the more so that the public temper at the present moment is not disposed to take too amiable a view of our foreign relations.

The Ovieto was, it appears, built for the rebels in an English port, and when completed, received, secretly, of course, iron armature and a heavy armament, with which as a cargo, she sailed to Nassau. At this mongrel port she was to be sheathed with the armature she had brought in her hold, armed in a formidable manner, and sent forth to do such work as a powerful man-of-war might find to do in aid of the rebels. The plan was already far advanced toward completion, and SEMMES, of Sumter notoriety, had been put in command of the vessel when she was seized by Capt. HINKLEY, of H. B. M. ship Greyhound, and a prize-crew put on board. In doing this he but did what was incumbent on him as a duty by the provisions of the Queen's proclamation of neutrality; but there are so many ways of dodging the duty, that its prompt performance is creditable to the officer. If it really represents the disposition of the British authorities and naval officers, they will find a good deal more of the same kind of work; for there are at Nassau several more vessels in the same box with the Ovieto. In the meantime, it should be a lesson to the Navy Department also to be up and doing. The rebels, who, we thought, had abandoned the seas forever, are evidently determined to make another attempt in the naval line, and we should not be surprised at a bold stroke some of these days. But with good faith on the part of the British authorities, and vigilance on our own side, we can make short work with this new nest of vipers.

SUMMER HINTS FOR SOLDIERS.—The new position in which MCCLELLAN has planted the glorious army of the Potomac—a dry, airy peninsula—has long been resorted to as a healthful Summer retreat by wealthy families of Baltimore. The whole of this country, however, is malarious, and men coming from the North will suffer during the hot season unless they know how to guard themselves against the seeds of disease. The usual dangers in this respect will be multiplied by the bringing together of a large army in a comparatively small space. The grand safeguard is pure air. Whatever contaminates the air, breeds disease at a great rate. Not the smallest thing should ever be allowed above ground for a single day that smells badly. Burn it or bury it. It is a matter of life and death to all, and no fatigue should be allowed to prevent whatever work is necessary for this purpose. Those who are too lazy to be clean and decent, should not be allowed to make themselves a nuisance and curse to their comrades. Flies and fleas will be very inconvenient in this region. A dirty camp will breed and keep a thousand to one of a clean one, though no degree of cleanliness will render a camp exempt from them. It is very necessary that the skin should be kept clean, but bathing should be avoided on a very hot day, except while it is tolerably cool, after sunrise and before sunset. It is important, also, to avoid being out from a little before sunset to a little after sunrise upon an empty stomach. A little coffee should, if possible, be taken immediately after rising in the morning, or before any exertion or special exposure at night. It will answer to chew burnt coffee if it cannot be had as a drink. It is a good plan to always have a little burnt coffee in one's pocket. A good thick covering over the head is very necessary as a guard against sunstroke. A cloth or handkerchief in the hat or cap is as good as anything—all the better if it is wet. But in want of this, a handful of grass or leaves will answer the purpose.

McClellan's Army.

It is with infinite pleasure that we read from day to day the accounts now given by our special correspondents, and especially those furnished this morning, of the admirable condition and spirits, the growing numbers and strength, and the lively hopes and prospects of our army on the James. It is just a week ago last night that the fearful seven days' conflict ended, and the change of our lines was effected. From that time to the present, the enemy has not dared to venture forth to the attack; and the period of quiet consequently enjoyed by our army, has been wisely and actively taken advantage of, to clear off the blood and grime of the week of battle, to strengthen the tone of the regiments, and to prepare generally for active field work yet to be undertaken and achieved. It is astonishing indeed, that an army of volunteers, not yet a year old, after such a struggle as ours has just passed through, against a foe so greatly superior in numbers, and imbued with such bloodthirsty ferocity, should come forth in a condition equal to, if not better than, what could have been exhibited by the veterans of any of the fixed armies of the Old World. It is owing, of course, to the possession of qualities by the volunteers of our republican army, which appertain to the soldiers of no other army. Our troops possess intelligence, personal character, an absorbing interest in the struggle, and a boundless, unselfish devotion to country: these, added to the drill, the esprit de corps, and the mechanical mobility of other armies, produce a military force which may be temporarily beaten without being vanquished, which may render retreat victory, and which, though it may be decimated in numbers, has yet that vitality and cohesive force deeply implanted in its nature, which makes it practically invincible, as no troops without these nobler moral qualities can ever be said to be. No army could be put to a severer test of its mettle than that to which the army of the Potomac has just been subjected; and from all we can learn we judge that there was never an army put to such a test, that came forth with such honor, in a military point of view. This is all against what we have so often been told by our insensate European critics would be the case when the crucial experiment of war was made. But it is nevertheless true, as is testified by the Commanding General himself, and by innumerable impartial witnesses.

Gen. MCCLELLAN, we are happy to know, is now receiving reinforcements in respectable numbers; and we are likewise glad to learn this morning that one of the adjunct cooperating forces, regarding which the public have been somewhat anxious as well as hopeful, has now really arrived at a point where its services can at any moment be put to the most effective uses. It is, of course, impossible that, in the few days that have transpired since the close of the battle, he should have been put in condition to make any direct movement toward the rebel capital, or to do anything more than to strengthen himself in his new position, and to push cautiously upward, so as to facilitate the advance of the rebel-compelling gunboats. How rapidly he may be able now to do any bolder work than this, depends not alone upon the Government, but upon the people. Men are wanted to fill up the new regiments; regiments are needed for service on the James River. The one thing for the patriotic to do—the one thing to be done by every man who wishes to crush speedily and utterly the rebellion—is to hasten on by all means the work of volunteering. The prospects now in that respect are good, though the public have hardly yet got over the effect of the news of last week, which at first sight looked disastrous, but is now seen to be full of hope. In a few days that depressing influence will have passed away, and the National elasticity and patriotic enthusiasm will then appear in as splendid effect as it has already done so frequently since the beginning of the war.

LABOR VS. MACHINERY—THE GRAIN SHOVELERS' STRIKE.—The two thousand or more men who have been employed in handling grain in New-York Harbor have concluded that they will not work for any one who owns or works a "grain elevator." The seven machines, say they, already introduced, can perform two-thirds of the labor required; and as the machines deprive the laborer of work and bread, they must be suppressed: and the laborers have consequently resolved to do all they can, peacefully and legally, but determinedly, to prevent the use of the machines. All this they have a legal right to do. Every individual has an inalienable natural right to labor or not to labor for whomsoever or under whatever conditions he pleases. If, therefore, the grain shovelers can succeed by the means they have indicated, nobody can find fault.

But the inevitable and oft exemplified laws of economics and of labor tell them that success is quite impossible. It is the old trial of muscle against iron nerves, human endurance against steam, animal force against the resistless forces of mechanism. As well might the grandame rebel against the spinning jenny, the cotton-picker against the cotton-gin, the stage-driver against the railroad, the seamstress against the sewing-machine, the wooden walls against the iron-clad, as grain-shovelers against the elevators.

The first effect of the introduction of machinery into any business is to temporarily injure the operatives; but the world knows that the universal effect of mechanical improvements is always ultimately to benefit the laborer and all parties concerned; that there are more spinners, seamstresses, passenger carriers, shipbuilders, etc., employed than ever. If grain can be got to market quicker by the elevators, it must ultimately go cheaper. That will bring the grain here from the West, instead of leaving it to be lost. More men will be required to work the elevators, so that in a short time the effect will be to simply change the character of the laborers' work. We hope the sound sense of the men who met last night in Tammany Hall, will lead them to see this, and to see their own true and permanent interests, before the trade is in any way deranged.

The New-Fledged Democracy---Meeting of the State Executive Committee.

The Executive Committee of the Democratic party in this State, assembles at Albany to-day, in order no doubt to take a long look ahead at the Fall campaign. Among the leaders already on hand, the telegraph notices the names of Ex-Mayor WOOD and Ex-Gov. SEYMOUR. It will be a matter of curious interest to ascertain which of these two gentlemen is, just now, a correct exponent of New-York Democracy on the war question—Gov. SEYMOUR, who goes frankly for lending the Government cordial and unqualified support, or Mr. WOOD, whose adherence is more dubious, and who is, indeed, strongly suspected of undue anxiety to end the war at all costs and sacrifices. The party in New-York will shortly have to accept one or the other form of loyalty, as its partisan blazon. Other important Democratic strongholds have pronounced, but the verdict of the Democracy of this State will be awaited before the platform of any half dozen States will be accepted as "National."

Already a Convention in Pennsylvania has responded to that of New-Hampshire, in resolutions declaratory of the present position of the party. Comparing these resolves with those of the late submission meeting in Cooper Institute, with the speeches of the Pro-Slavery orators of Congress, and more especially with the circular recently issued by the Democratic members of Congress, we discover the skeleton of the platform upon which the Democracy proposes hereafter to plant itself, and gather some notion of the interests to which it is prepared to appeal. The party is, of course, loyal, and therefore protests its determination to stand by the Government. The war must be carried on—a patent platitude—until peace is obtained. But there is no determination expressed to support the Administration, the only Administration which—unless the Herald and Ex-Mayor WOOD succeed in exciting that revolution which shall forcibly displace the Lincoln Cabinet, and wholly abolish the representative branch of the Government—can possibly subdue rebellion, and bring the war to a close.

The entire drift of the movement is to create distrust of the Government. We are invited to believe that Mr. LINCOLN'S advisers are wholly incompetent and corrupt. Their financial schemes have been abortions; their expenditures extravagant; their military policy a series of fatal mistakes. While the recent flank movement of Gen. MCCLELLAN is in one breath pronounced a well-matured plan, successfully executed; in the next, the War Department is held to a fearful responsibility for it, as an irremediable disaster. Secretary WELLES, whose enterprise has laid the keels of an iron-clad navy more numerous, powerful and effective than the entire creations in the same kind of all Europe, is singled out for especial attack and opprobrium. Congress, which has certainly not been idle, having matured and consummated a larger bulk of important legislation than ever before occupied the deliberations of a legislative body, and which has yielded to the excesses and vagaries of radicalism not a tithe of the squandered time it has hitherto given uncomplainingly to the rant and treason of half-formed rebels, is denounced as a fair subject for such treatment as CROMWELL visited upon the Rump Parliament. Whatever, in short, tends to diminish the confidence of loyal people in the Government; to excite alarm, apprehension, despair, as to the future progress of the war; to create a belief that merely military means, dispensed, as they must be, by the Administration of Mr. LINCOLN, must fail to subdue the rebels, is so much direct, substantial aid to the rebellion. It produces discontent with taxation, discourages the enlistment of new armies, weakens, indeed, every fibre of the Government strength to repress and punish.

Such is evidently the object of the new-fledged Democratic Party, just rising from its ashes, unhappily not those of purification. It breathes no reproof to treason. It expresses no hope of a military triumph over rebellion. It makes war only upon those who make war upon the rebels; and declares against the adoption of other instrumentalities for ending the contest than those which it demonstrates to be fruitless and hopeless. In the light of such declarations, the loyalty of the utterers becomes painfully doubtful. They offer to strike no blow at treason; they hold back and paralyze the arm that offers to strike.

Of the motives which prompt the misguided political policy of these people, one-half may perhaps be ascribed to secret sympathy with Slavery and Secession, the other to merely political miscalculation. In either case the result will be the same. The country has not lost its faith in the Government or in its ability to sustain itself and prostrate its assailants. Confidence in the President, in the resources of the nation, and in the resolve of the people, has never been more freely and cordially and generally expressed than since the late battles on the James. And we venture to predict that it will only be when the nation finds reason to believe that the Wickliffes and other Border State associates of the new Democracy have obtained a weight with the President, they have hitherto sought vainly, that the popular faith will be shaken in the eventual triumph of constitutional order.

Our Prisoners Must be Exchanged.

The result of the recent battles before Richmond will compel our Government to give immediate attention to a subject that has been long and painfully pressing on the popular mind. We allude to the entire absence in the war, so far, of any rule for the exchange of prisoners. There is a grave fault somewhere in regard to this matter; and it has cost untold suffering to thousands of Union prisoners whom the hard fate of war has heretofore cast into rebel jails. Now several thousand others are in a like melancholy plight, and we shudder to think of their renewing the hard experience of the earlier captives in the war. Think of the crowded and filthy tobacco warehouses, the brutal keepers, the sanguinary guards, the rotten food, the untended wounds, the unmedicined disease, the miserable marches through the blazing South, and the reincarceration in other jails, more remote than the first, which a voice from home does hardly ever reach.

What horrors has death on the battle-field compared with the pining and heart-breaking of the wounded prisoner, dying by inches in the lonely Southern dungeon? The country has cried out against this cruel anomaly in war. We have hoped that the supposed "political necessities" under which it was justified, had yielded to the claims and instincts of humanity.

We are sorry to find it is not so. We are more than grieved to learn that on the apathy of our own Government is chargeable the failure to have a system adopted for the exchange of prisoners. One hundred and three members of the House of Representatives and thirty-seven Senators have united in a memorial requesting our military administrators to have such a rule adopted. The President has given his hearty approval to the proposed policy. Still it is not carried into effect, and our wounded and imprisoned sons and brothers are suffering the ignominy of incarceration, as if they were convicts, and not soldiers of a sacred cause.

Even the rebel Government has made advances looking to a change of this barbarous practice. More than a month ago Col. MADISON MILLER, of Missouri, who was captured at Shiloh, was allowed by the rebel so-called Government to come to Washington on his parole, accompanied by two brother officers, to express the willingness of the rebel leaders to adopt a system of exchange; and they were authorized to negotiate for the release of the Union comrades they left behind. They have remained in Washington, using every exertion, plying every argument, meeting encouragement, but—having no success. There is a balk in the negotiation, and our captives pine, our wounded men die of grief, loneliness and neglect, while the hearts of family and friends are breaking in the distant North to have them at home to nurse and tend.

Of course, there is a reason which the Government considers sufficient for this unhappy state of things. But we doubt if the people can or ought to be much longer reconciled to it. Natural ties and natural feelings, if too harshly tried, will rise in resentment at last. Should we fail to have quick responses to calls for new armies, the Government may begin to find that its apathy to the sorrows and sufferings of those who have already periled life and lost liberty in battling for it, is producing a natural aversion to the military service.

Under the apprehension of this result, which would certainly be deplorable, it behooves the Government to review its action in the premises, and at once adopt some rule for the exchange of prisoners taken in war. It should be done before those brave men recently captured before Richmond are dispersed to the distant and dreary dungeons of the farther South. It is said that the Secretary of War opposes the terms of exchange offered by the rebels. They require that the rule shall be general, whereas our Government desires to have exceptions. It is felt that there are a few rebels, such as TWIGGS, BUCKNER and FLOYD, who have a double measure of sin to answer for, and that in case of their capture they should not be entitled to the rights of war. The rebel Government refuses to yield a point looking to the special punishment of any who have sacrificed everything to serve it.

Is this cause sufficient to justify the suffering thereby imposed on Union prisoners? On the contrary, is not the life and happiness of one true man who has bled for the Union, worth more than the necks of a hundred such villains as BUCKNER, thrice broken by the halter?

Then again, consider the inequality of our dealings with the rebels. The prisoners we have taken from them are growing stout in the temperate North. They are fed with capital food, have medicines and attentions in plenty, and the cool breezes fan their brows in the heated Summer. Our men in their hands—how do they suffer? Jails, dark and hot, are their abode; neglect, hunger and vermin their portion. We cannot be reconciled to this. Our Government must change its policy.

Bottlers and bottle dealers will find in our paper, to-day, an important decision just rendered by the Court of Appeals. The "Bottle Law," as it is termed, has been declared constitutional. Persons, therefore, using, filling, buying or selling bottles stamped or marked with the owner's name, are liable to severe penalties, and those who have hitherto defied the law, had better be careful, now that the highest court has settled the question.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

The Response to the New Call for Troops.

Congress Expected to Adjourn on Monday

The Treasury Note Bill Finally Passed.

The Tariff Bill Amended in the Senate.

THE CASE OF SENATOR SIMMONS.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, July 8.

THE NEW CALL FOR TROOPS.

The Secretary of War stated to-day that replies to the call for three hundred thousand volunteers have begun to come in, and that the responses are more prompt and far more favorable than the Government had anticipated. He doubts not the speedy furnishing of recruits equal to the National wants. This cheering fact is giving new life to the public of Washington.

THE REBEL LOSSES.

The rebel papers, so far as heard from, are exceedingly close-mouthed about their losses in the battles before Richmond. So rigid is the suppression of military news that those papers cease to be the reliable sources of information they once were.

The Alexandria, Va., News has information that the Seventeenth Virginia Regiment, raised in that city for the rebels, eight hundred strong, came out of the battles before Richmond with only one hundred survivors, all of whom were taken prisoners, and are now in New-York.

PROBABLE ADJOURNMENT ON MONDAY.

It is the current belief that Congress will adjourn sine die by next Monday, the business before it being already reduced to only a few prominent measures, and other matters to be disposed of without much controversy. The Committee of Ways and Means will have disposed of all the bills originating therein by the reporting of the remaining one, making additional appropriations, small in amount, for certain civil expenses. The Tariff bill, with the Senate amendments, will be returned to the House to-morrow. The Confiscation bill is pending in the Joint Committee of Conference. The soldiers' pension and the Naval appropriation bills are yet to be definitely acted upon. Unless more important questions intervene, the session can conveniently be closed by the time indicated.

THE CASE OF SENATOR SIMMONS.

The reference to the Judiciary Committee, at this late day, of the resolution expelling Senator SIMMONS, is considered a deliberate evasion of a vote, as the Senator's term closes with this session. The act draws grave reprehension on the Senate, and leads to scandalous imputations against others of that hitherto respectable body. It is alleged that too many Senators had been pursuing similar practices; that SIMMONS knew the fact, and that they dared not put their votes on record against him for fear of provoking an exposure by him.

GEN. POPE'S ARMY.

The Star says: "On Friday last a division of Gen. MCDOWELL'S Corps took up their line of march for Warrenton, Va., which point they now hold. We presume this movement is preparatory to a prompt and proper concentration of Gen. POPE'S Army.

SICK AND WOUNDED.

The steamer Knickerbocker reached Washington last evening, with 413 wounded and sick soldiers from Gen. MCCLELLAN'S Army. They were promptly removed from the boat, and made comfortable in the hospitals.

THE SUGAR CROP OF LOUISIANA.

The following letter was recently addressed to the Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, June 20, 1862.

SIR: I am reliably informed that the sugar crop of Louisiana last year was 500,000 hogsheads, of 1,100 pounds each. This is said to be 50,000 hogsheads more than the crop of any previous year. Of this crop, there were in New-Orleans when taken by our troops, say 80,000 hogsheads, chiefly held by foreigners, and there yet remains on the plantations say 220,000 hogsheads, equivalent in all to, say 150 tons.

It is thought by gentlemen conversant with this trade, that this quantity will nearly, if not quite, supply the wants of the country until the new crop will be ready for market, next Fall. Shipments to Northern ports are already begun.

These facts suggest the expediency of such internal duties on domestic sugars as are necessary to secure the revenue expected from the import duties on foreign.

The importance of this subject, and the necessity of proper legislation, if not already embraced in the Tax bill, will doubtless engage the attention of the Committee on Ways and Means.

With great respect,

(Signed,) S. P. CHASE, Secretary of Treasury.

Hon. THADDEUS STEVENS, Chairman Committee of Ways and Means.

THE JAMES RIVER FLOTILLA.

FREDERICK D. STUART, of this city, formerly of Brooklyn, N. Y., has been appointed Acting-Master, and ordered to report to Capt. WILKES, and will, it is understood, be that gentleman's chief executive officer on the James River.

APPOINTMENTS UNDER THE TAX LAW.

Tax Collectors and Assessors will be selected in the mode usually adopted by the Treasury Department. All applications are received and filed, together with all letters in support of proposed appointments, whether from members of Congress or other citizens. The names of all applicants, with abstracts of the letters and information relating to each, are submitted to the President, together with the judgment of the Secretary of the Treasury, as to the proper persons to be selected. With these papers before him, the President forms his own opinions and makes his own appointments.

NEWS FROM RICHMOND.

A late Richmond paper states that BEVERLY ROBINSON, of the Fourth Virginia Cavalry, has been appointed Brigadier-General, and taken the late TURNER ASHBY'S command.

Complaint is made of the inhuman treatment of rebel soldiers by our own on the Peninsula. Several Georgians, it is said, were found hung, and many bodies mutilated. This is known here to be untrue.

A SUBMARINE BATTERY.

Yesterday afternoon a submarine battery was towed to the Navy-yard by a tug from Philadelphia. As it lies in the water it resembles a sturgeon, and is about 30 feet long and 6 in diameter.

GEN. FRANKLIN PROMOTED.

Gen. FRANKLIN, in addition to those mentioned in yesterday's dispatch, has been nominated by the President as Brevet Brigadier-General of the Regular Army, and Major-General of Volunteers.

OUR WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

WASHINGTON, Monday Evening, July 7, 1862.

PROVISIONAL STATE GOVERNMENTS.

Mr. HARRIS succeeded, this morning, in getting before the Senate his bill authorizing the establishment of Provisional Governments in the rebellious

States. The debate which ensued possessed a good deal of interest. Mr. SUMNER and Mr. TRUMBULL made speeches on the Anti-Slavery principles they wished incorporated, and Mr. TEN EYCK took ground squarely against the measure. His arguments were forcible and created a decided impression. He exposed the difficulties and demonstrated the recklessness of such legislation—preferring to leave the matter in the hands of the President, to be exercised as he had heretofore done it.

But if Mr. TEN EYCK was happy while on his feet, he was proportionately unfortunate after he had sat down; for he was punished for some unrevealed sin by incurring the approval of Mr. POWELL. This gentleman repeated the old joke about unconstitutional legislation, and advanced some very poor arguments against a measure whose chief merit is its good intentions. He was followed by Mr. COWAN, whose speech I did not hear; but I am told that it assumed a Pro-Slavery tone that must have gratified immensely those conservative gentlemen with whom it has seemed his pleasure latterly to consort. Whether his constituents in Western Pennsylvania will be equally delighted may admit of doubt.

Legislation on this subject, as Mr. TEN EYCK well said, is fraught with many and grave difficulties. Non-legislation, on the other hand, is simple and effective. The constitutional Commander-in-Chief of the armies has full military power to govern all the territory we reclaim, creating for that purpose Military Governors, as in Tennessee and South Carolina. The appointment of a civilian like Mr. STANLY may be questionable; but he has the power at any moment to obviate the difficulty by the bestowal of military rank. I submit that the whole matter is best left in his hands, with the passage of a joint resolution, perhaps, authorizing such appointments as a military measure, and defining the powers of the appointees.

THE WOUNDED.

About 600 of the wounded have already arrived in Washington. I have looked into one of the hospitals, and can bear unqualified praise to the comfort of its appointment and attendance. The poor fellows lay on comfortable cots, some reading, some sleeping, some talking, and all with an expression of cheerfulness on their faces. They were well attended by nurses of both sexes, and were as absolutely comfortable as their condition and the heat of the weather would allow.

THE PROPOSALS FOR GUNBOATS.

None of the proposals for gunboats for the navy come up to the requirements for draft and swiftness.

THE PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, July 8.

Mr. SUMNER, of Massachusetts, (Rep.,) presented petitions in favor of the emancipation of the slaves.

On motion of Mr. CLARK, of New-Hampshire, (Rep.,) the confiscation bill, as returned from the House, was taken up.

Mr. CLARK moved that the Senate insist on its amendment and ask a Committee of Conference.

Mr. SHERMAN, of Ohio, (Rep.,) moved that the Senate recede from the amendment and agree to the House bill.

Mr. TRUMBULL, of Illinois, (Rep.,) hoped the Senate would recede in that way. We should thus get a confiscation bill, not as efficient as some wish, but yet a good bill.

The question was taken on Mr. SHERMAN'S amendment, which was rejected by Yeas 14, Nays 23.

YEAS—Messrs. Chandler, Grimes, Hale, Harlan, Howard, King, Lane of Indiana, Lane of Kansas, Morrill, Sherman, Sumner, Trumbull, Wilkinson and Wright.—14.

NAYS—Messrs. Anthony, Browning, Carlile, Clark, Collamer, Cowan, Davis, Doolittle, Fessenden, Foot, Foster, Harris, Henderson, Kennedy, McDougall, Nesmith, Powell, Rice, Simmons, Stark, Ten Eyck, Willey, Wilson of Missouri.—23.

ABSENT—Messrs. Bayard, Dixon, Howe, Latham, Pearce, Pomeroy, Saulsbury, Thompson, Wade, Wilmot, Wilson of Massachusetts.

Mr. CLARK'S motion for a Conference Committee was then agreed to by yeas 28, nays 10.

NAYS—Messrs. Carlile, Davis, Kennedy, Lane of Indiana, Powell, Stark, Trumbull, Wilkinson, Wilson of Missouri, Wright.

Mr. WRIGHT of Indiana, (Rep.,) called up the resolution for the expulsion of Senator SIMMONS.

Mr. TEN EYCK, of New-Jersey, (Rep.,) moved to refer the resolution to the Judiciary Committee.

Motion agreed to by yeas 31, nays 7.

NAYS—Messrs. Foster, Henderson, King, Nesmith, Powell, Trumbull and Wright.

On motion of Mr. FESSENDEN, of Maine, (Rep.,) the Tariff bill was taken up.

The Senate proceeded to consider the amendments reported by the Committee on Finance. The duty on spirits distilled from grain was raised from twenty-five to fifty cents per gallon. The duty on sheet iron was raised about 33 per cent. The duty on quinine was altered from 75 cents an ounce to 45 per cent. ad valorem; on opium prepared for smoking, 80 per cent. ad valorem. The proviso exempting rags, was struck out. On chickory the duties were reduced from four to two cents per pound.

Mr. POWELL, of Kentucky, (Opp.,) offered an amendment repealing the bounties on fishing vessels. Rejected, and the bill was reported to the Senate.

The amendments made in the Committee were concurred in and passed.

Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, (Rep.,) introduced a bill to amend the act calling forth the militia for suppressing invasion, approved February 28, 1795.

Mr. FOSTER, of Connecticut, (Rep.,) introduced a bill amendatory of the act prohibiting the Slave-trade.

On motion of Mr. HALE, of New-Hampshire, (Rep.,) the bill to establish and equalize the grade line of officers in the navy was taken up.

Mr. GRIMES, of Iowa, (Rep.,) offered an amendment that officers of the navy have the same pay as the same rank of army officers, and no retired officers have any rations. Adopted.

On motion of Mr. GRIMES, the grade of Admiral was changed to Rear Admiral. Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, July 8.

The House concurred in the report of the Conference Committee on the United States Note bill.

The House then resumed consideration of the bill to provide for the discharge of State prisoners and others; authorizing the Judges of United States Courts to take bail or recognizances to secure the trial of the same, and clothing the President with power to suspend the privileges of the writ of habeas corpus.

Mr. BIDDLE, of Pennsylvania, (Rep.,) said that it had been said that the President has a right arbitrarily to imprison American citizens. He, (BIDDLE,) however, would not discuss this question. This bill denied such a right, by the necessary imputation that the President does not possess this power.

Mr. COLFAX, of Indiana, (Rep.,) believed that the President has the right to suspend the writ of habeas corpus, and that the President had exercised the power fearlessly. He (COLFAX) would not vote for the bill if the gentleman's (BIDDLE'S) interpretation were true, for to do so would impliedly censure the President.

Mr. MALLORY, of Kentucky, (Union,) wished to know if, as Mr. BINGHAM had contended, the power to suspend the writ of habeas corpus resides in Congress, the power could be transferred to the President.

Mr. BINGHAM explained, remarking, in conclusion, the bill in that respect could do no harm.

Mr. SHERFIELD, of R. I., (Rep.) moved to lay the bill on the table.

Motion disagreed to, by yeas 29, nays 89.

Mr. BIDDLE, of Penn., (Rep.) offered an amendment, making it lawful for the President, whenever in his judgment, by reason of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require it, to suspend by proclamation, for the period of twelve months, or until the next meeting of Congress, the privileges of the writ of habeas corpus in any of the United States, or any part thereof, wherein the laws are by force opposed, and the Executive thereof obstructed; and whenever said writ shall be suspended, it shall be unlawful for any of the judges of the several courts of the United States, or any State, to allow said writ, anything in this act, or any other act, notwithstanding.

Under the operation of the previous question, this amendment was excluded, and the bill was passed.

[A synopsis of this bill was published last week.]

The House then passed the Senate bill defining the pay and emoluments of certain officers of the army and for other purposes.

One of the sections of the bill empowers the President to discharge any officer unfit for duty, or whose dismissal would promote the public interests.

Another section bestows full citizenship on persons born abroad after one year's residence, on condition of honorably serving in the army.

On motion of Mr. ELIOT, of Massachusetts, (Rep.,) the House insisted on its disagreement to the Senate's substitute for the Confiscation bill, and consented to a Committee of Conference.

The House concurred in the Conference report on the Civil Appropriation bill. Adjourned.

THE MILITARY HOSPITALS OF NEW-YORK.

How the Sick and Wounded Heroes of the War are Cared For—The Medical Department—Nurses; Professional and Voluntary—Plans of Public Relief and Private Beneficence, and How they are Administered—What the Sufferers Say.

Next to the success of our armies in the field, there is no subject in which the whole community should feel so much interest as in the welfare of the sick and wounded soldiers, who have sacrificed health and risked life and limb in the National cause; who cast themselves, maimed, scarred, feeble and prostrated, upon the sympathies of those whose gratitude and care it is their right to claim.

There are now in the various hospitals of this City alone hundreds of poor fellows, who, a few short months, or, it may be weeks ago, left their homes, sound and stalwart, hopeful and reliant, to do battle for the flag under which they were born, or to which they owed allegiance. They come back to us diseased, mutilated, overwrought in mind and body, demanding from all in whose power it may be to aid them every attention that time, thought and money can bestow. Much has been done to ameliorate the condition of the sufferers. The State and municipal authorities are vieing with each other in efforts to secure and fit up suitable places for their reception; in appropriating needful funds for the maintainance of those places, and the provision of every convenience and comfort that can possibly be wanted. The highest medical talent is freely volunteered; private benevolence comes to the help of private endeavor; and, to a great extent, the duty that is owed to our country's bravely unfortunate defenders is generously fulfilled. Much though even yet remains for the charitable and kindhearted to do. The field is wide, the harvest sadly plenteous; and for the work that has to be performed the laborers are still too few. Thousands of people solace themselves in selfish luxury, without a thought of what is imperatively required of them in a crisis like the present. Their indifference, let it be hoped, is more the want of thought than criminal neglect. But there are very many who forget the call, which, on behalf of the country, is hourly made upon them. It is not to be expected that they will all turn nurses or transform their houses into hospitals, but with sympathy and money, and the various means they have at their disposal, they can accomplish a great deal of good, and that at very little cost of trouble or personal annoyance. It is their duty, as far as they can, to lighten the labors of those who, in a purer spirit of self-sacrifice, devote their whole energies and resources to the cause; their duty to see that energies and resources thus devoted are not cramped for lack of bountiful means. It is our purpose to give a series of reviews of the principal hospitals now in operation in New-York; to show how they are managed, the objects they further, and to point out how the mission those in charge of them are seeking to accomplish, may be best promoted.

Altogether, within this City and the neighboring cities of Brooklyn and New-Jersey, there are these chief places of reception for the troops of disabled heroes that every transport brings us from the fatal battle-fields of the Peninsula:

IN NEW-YORK—The City Hospital, the Ladies' Hospital at Fifty-first-street, the Park Barracks, the New-England Soldier's Relief Association, No. 194 Broadway, David's Island, Bedloe's Island, Riker's Island, (not quite finished,) Governor's Island, the old Arsenal, (nearly completed,) Mother Jerome's Hospital, St. Luke's Hospital, and the Jews' Hospital.

IN NEW-JERSEY—The Jersey City Hospital.

IN BROOKLYN—The Brooklyn Hospital.

THE NEW-ENGLAND SOLDIERS' RELIEF ASSOCIATION.

The New-England Soldiers' Relief Association, situated at No. 194 Broadway, was organized on the 20th of March last. The object of the Association was to provide proper attention to the New-England sick and wounded soldiers as they passed through New-York from the seat of war to their homes; this, however, has not been adhered to. Soldiers of every State, if they need assistance, obtain it at the New-England Association. In many cases complete outfits have been given men, and in some cases money bestowed to help them on their journey. Although the organization was formed last March, the building for the reception of wounded soldiers was not ready till April 15. Since that time, to the present, the Association has relieved and cared for 6,300 men; of these the majority were wounded but slightly; indeed, unless under extraordinary circumstances, none but those who are comparatively speaking, slightly wounded, are received at the institution, as the members do not wish to make it a public hospital, but simply a resting place for the wounded soldier on his way home. If needed, as it invariably is, he is furnished with a shirt, boots, pants, in fact, any article of clothing he may be in need of, free of charge. Nine hundred Union prisoners were also received here; after being clothed from top to toe, under garments inclusive, five days' rations, packed up in a cloth bag, were given them, transportation provided, and they left for their homes. The greater number of them were Western men.

Thirty ladies, called "The Women's Ancillary Committee of the New-England Relief Association," have been divided into five weekly Committees, and take it in turns to attend the institution in the capacity of nurses. The same number of gentlemen have also been appointed, and act in conjunction with the ladies. During the present week, the following is a list of the Committees: Rev. Dr. Osgood, No. 154 West Eleventh-street; Wm. M. Evarts, Esq., No. 2 Hanover-street; Nehemiah Knight, Esq., No. 56 Park-place; Sam'l E. Low, Esq., No. 31 Burling-slip; Gen. P. M. Wetmore, No. 30 Pine-street; E. W. Stoughton, Esq., No. 72 Wall-street; Mrs. Samuel Osgood, No. 154 West Eleventh-street; Mrs. J. W. Post, No. 79 West Tenth-street; Mrs. A. Brookes, No. 32 West Thirty-first-street; Mrs. W. G. Sterling, No. 32 West Thirty-third-street; Miss Johnston, No. 1 East Thirtieth-street; Mrs. G. C. Collins, No. 33 West Twenty-fifth-street.

If necessary, this number can be doubled and trebled in a very short time by a number of ladies who have volunteered their services as nurses on the occasion of an emergency. The building is capable of holding three hundred men comfortably; but at a push, room could be made for five hundred; yesterday there were only sixty men left, the others having returned to their homes. At any moment the place may be crowded, as fresh arrivals are hourly expected.

Col. FRANK E. HOWE, the Superintendent of the Association, pointed out to our reporter a private of the Ninth Massachusetts Regiment, who had been shot through the top of his head. His name is DANIEL MCCARTHY, from Lowell. The poor fellow, on Monday evening, became delirious, and imagined that he was in the hands of the Secessionists. So violent was his behavior, attempting to throw himself from the window, that it took five men to hold and secure him; this, however, was not effected till he had bitten three severely. Yesterday he was somewhat calmer, having been assured that he was in the hands of friends. Passing along the row of beds, some feeble voice would cry, "Colonel."

"Well, what is it?"

"Can I go home to-day?"

"You're not strong enough."

"Oh, yes I am," with great energy.

So it was with many others, all had an intense desire to see the old homestead, not to stay there, oh, no! but simply an ardent, longing wish to see it again—and when recuperated return to their regiments.

Another poor fellow, a Sergeant in a New-Hampshire regiment, lost his leg at the battle of Fair Oaks; the amputation was not performed skillfully, so another operation will have to take place. His wife is attending him, and doing all she can to alleviate his sufferings. As his bed was approached he was lying upon his back, the surgeon being about to dress his wound. When asked how he felt, he answered, "pretty well."

The Medical Board of the Association is composed of the following well-known gentlemen: E. R. PEASLEE, M. D., President; LEWIS A. SAYRE, M. D., Vice President; W. R. DONAGHE, M. D., Secretary. And the following are the Visiting Surgeons and Physicians: Surgeons—F. J. Bumstead, M. D., No. 162 West Twenty-third-street; W. R. Donaghe, M. D., No. 59 East Thirty-first-street; E. R. Peaslee, M. D., Fifth-Avenue Hotel; H. B. Sands, M. D., No. 64 East Twelfth-street; L. A. Sayre, M. D., No. 795 Broadway; W. H. Van Buren, M. D., East Twenty-second-street, corner Fourth-avenue; (One vacancy.) Physicians—Austin Flint, M. D., No. 74 Union-place; A. X. Gardner, M. D., No. 141 East Thirteenth-street; Horace Green, M. D., No. 12 Clinton-place; E. W. Lambert, M. D., No. 330 Sixth-avenue; B. W. McCready, M. D., No. 7 Ninth-street; A. Underhill, M. D., No. 44 East Twentieth-street; J. Worster, M. D., No. 120 Ninth-street. Alfred North, M. D., Resident Surgeon, Association Building, No. 194 Broadway.

Besides these there is a large corps of volunteer surgeons, whose names are on the books of the Association, that can be notified when any important case or an unlooked for arrival of a large number of wounded soldiers needs their presence.

Along the walls of the room is hung a number of verses from the Scriptures so that the wounded man can lie upon the bed and read them. A very capital idea, but likly to become tedious; if a few pictures could be obtained—if only cheap engravings—they would please the eye and relieve many a weary hour,

THE GRAIN-SHOVELERS' STRIKE.

A Crusade Against Grain Elevators—The Laborers Refuse to Work where the Machine is Employed—Mass Meetings of the Merchants and Grainmen.

About two thousand men have been employed in this City, in handling the immense quantity of grain that arrives here from the West. These men are called "strikers," "shovelers" and "trimmers." During the last season, there were introduced into the harbor two "grain elevators," which readily performed the work of many men, and did it much more rapidly. This season, five more elevators have appeared, so that altogether the machines in use will perform about two-thirds the work required. The men have therefore formed a Protective Union, and have resolved not to work in connection with the elevators, or for any man who employs them. They contend that the great dust which the elevators raise is injurious to life, and furthermore that the manner in which the ships are loaded often causes the cargoes to shift, the ships to roll and ultimately to sink and be lost.

THE GRAIN MERCHANTS' MEETING.

A meeting of the forwarders and receivers of grain was held yesterday at the Produce Exchange, to consider the matters at variance between them and the grain shovelers relative to the mode of delivery from the canalboats and barges. Mr. E. K. ALBUATIS was appointed Chairman, and stated the object that had called them together, after which some informal discussion took place, during which Mr. N. H. WOLFE read the following letter, received by him from the Grainmen's Protective Union:

NEW-YORK, July 8, 1862.

GENTLEMEN: Understanding that a meeting is to be held this day by the "Forwarders and Receivers, etc., to take into consideration the delivery of grain, whether by elevators or otherwise," we, the undersigned, composing the Committee of the Grainmen's Protective Society, desirous that no misapprehension should exist as to our objects or wishes, beg leave respectfully to state:

We do not ask or claim any increase of wages.

The usual rate of wages we have been earning for twenty years is all we ask.

We ask only that we be still allowed to work as we have heretofore, industriously, peaceably and usefully, for ourselves, our families, and the whole mercantile community. For the Committee,

JOHN MCSHANE, Chairman.

To N. H. WOLFE and others.

It appeared to be the unanimous sentiment of the meeting that the mode of discharging grain by elevators could not be dispensed with, and that the forwarders and receivers could not suffer themselves to be dictated to as to the manner in which their work should be done. A resolution to this effect was unanimously adopted, and a Committee of ten, consisting of the following gentlemen, was appointed to carry the resolution into effect: Messrs. E. K. Albuatis, E. H. Tompkins, Peter Rice, F. P. Sage, J. H. Mallory, Mr. Silliman, Capt. French, Mr. Williams, Mr. Witherspoon, H. Stutzer, Mr. Duncan and W. B. Barber.

On motion, the Committee were authorized to attend the meeting of the shovelers at Tammany Hall last evening, to ascertain their wishes, and see if an amicable arrangement of the difficulties with them could not be made.

THE GRAIN-SHOVELER'S MEETING.

The grain-shovelers met in very large numbers at Tammany Hall last evening—including, of course, the "trimmers" and "strikers," who are equally interested in moving the grain. The meeting was addressed by several gentlemen—among others, Mr. B. D. ALLEN, who has been 30 years in the business, and Mr. W. B. BARBER. The first speakers elicited the utmost enthusiasm. They denounced the owners of the elevators as capitalists and speculators, who were robbing the honest laborer of his due. They held forth the idea that if the grain-shovelers would only hold out, they would ultimately compel the withdrawal of the elevators, and the performance of all the work by hand. They disclaimed any idea of raising a mob, or of interfering with any who choose to work. The meeting particularly resolved to keep peaceful, quiet and orderly, and to refrain from anything unbecoming sober men. While their resolve to adhere to their determination was expressed with all the force which a thousand throats without laryngial defect could give, they at the same time manifested a determination to do everything peacefully and legally.

Mr. W. B. BARBER, who appeared on behalf of the Committee from the Merchants' meeting, was most cordially received. He fairly carried the meeting by storm by his praise of labor, particularly of Irish labor, his praise of Irish patriotism, &c. He said he should report to the Merchant's meeting that he understood them to intend to mind their own business, [cheers;] that they simply meant to make a choice as to who they should work for, [cheers;] that they had no intention to interfere with any others who choose to work, [cheers;] that they had no hard feelings against the merchants generally, but simply meant to do all they could legally, peacefully and soberly, to cause the disuse of the grain elevators. [Cheers.] In all these determinations he assumed they were perfectly right to do as they pleased, and no merchant could complain. If he were in their place he would count the cost of it and decide what was best for his family. He defended the New-York merchants from a charge of selfishness made by a previous speaker, and in conclusion, invited fifty men to call at his stores and get work on the morrow. He was loudly applauded throughout. He announced that there would be probably a Board of Grain Measurers formed for them. [Applause.]

The meeting finally adopted a form of constitution, resolving in the most emphatic terms to discountenance the use of the elevators. A large number of names was added to the roll, and the meeting dispersed in good order. The entire proceedings was conducted with tse utmost good feeling and decorum. A more orderly assemblage has rarely congregated in Tammany Hall.

Amusements.

NIBLO'S GARDEN.—As the ballet of "Giselle" has been danced in this City a good many times, it is unnecessary to give the plot of "The Night Dancers," produced at NIBLO'S on Monday evening. The pieces are identical, except that one is danced throughout, whilst the other is half ballet, half musical drama. The musical dramatic part of the version done at NIBLO'S, is interpreted by Miss CAROLINE RICHINGS, principally; accessorarily by Mr. P. RICHINGS, Mr. JAMES DUNN, Mr. BOUDINOT, and a chorus. Miss RICHINGS' share of the interpretation is, of course, performed with exquisite finish and harmonious wealth. There is nothing for her to sing that can ever become very popular, yet enough of graceful melody to satisfy any reasonable audience. The most attractive vocal chances she has are in the quaint little air, "Love me? Love me not?" and the scena at the end of the first act, with a variation of that air as refrain. She also sings a romance in the second act very nicely, and warbles brilliantly enough in the finale to bring the curtain down in triumph. Of the dancers, it is sufficient to say that Signorina GALLETTI is the choregraphic chief. As queen of the nocturnal waltzers, she surpasses the most bewildering of her previous achievements. Mlle. KATRINI and Mons. TOPHOFF support her very capably. The scenery of the new piece is—some of it—beautiful. With needful improvements in the tuneful efforts and costumes of the chorus, and a little more orchestral drill, "The Night Dancers" should gather in moderately large crowds for a couple of weeks.

LAURA KEENE'S.—Miss MAGGIE MITCHELL is playing every evening in two characters, which are excellently well adapted to her peculiar talents as an actress, and which she, therefore, renders charmingly. The one is Frederick the Great, when a youth of twenty or thereabouts, in the comic drama of "The Young Prince;" the other is the heroine of a drama called "Katty O'Sheal." As Frederick, Miss MITCHELL is amazingly lively and amusing; full of dash and spirit; and, with regard to looks, judiciously boyish, but captivating. In the other leading characters of the piece, Mr. A. H. DAVENPORT, Mr. J. W. COLLIER, Mr. J. H. STODDART, Mrs. GRATTAN, Miss NELSON, and Mrs. STODDART, are all very good; Mr. DAVENPORT, as Carl, the Miller, developing a remarkable turn for the broader kind of comedy.

WINTER GARDEN.—Professor Anderson has not gone upon the provincial tour which he contemplated yet. He has, instead, restored the Winter Garden to its pschycomanthic splendors, and is now giving his famous prestidigitatorial performances as Wizard of the North, without any collusion with Prospero, or any other necromancer. The only change he has made is a reduction of prices, "to," as he phrases it, "suit the times." So long as the public desires entertainment, the times are sure to be suited.

GEORGE CHRISTY'S MINSTRELS.—GEO. CHRISTY, with a company of which he is "bones" and principal comedian, is drawing fine houses to No. 585 Broadway. The programme he offers is varied and redolent of fun.

WOOD'S MINSTRELS.—The opening of WOOD'S new hall, at No. 514 Broadway, on Monday evening, was an immense success. The success is pretty sure to be permanent; for the managers have secured some of the very best people in the legitimate line of business.

MR. FOWLER'S SOIREE MUSICALE.—At Dodsworth's Hall, this evening, Mr. J. A. FOWLER gives a concert, mainly for the introduction of his most advanced piano-forte pupils, who will, however, have the professional aid of Mrs. MOZART, Mr. G. W. COLBY and Mr. MIRANDA. The programme of pieces to be sung and played is extensive, varied, and attractive, and will doubtless be fully appreciated by a large and fashionable audience.

The Massachusetts Regiments.

BOSTON, Tuesday, July 8.

Letters from the Massachusetts First state that the regiment has been reduced to about 175 effective men. Company A numbers but 14. Col. COWDIN is sick; Major CHANDLER missing, and Capt. READ. READ. READ.
DANVILLE, Pa., June 2, 1862.
DR. WM. H. GREGG—Dear Sir: In February, 1861, I was afflicted with the sugar diabetes, and for five months I passed more than two gallons of water in twenty-four hours. I was obliged to get up as often as ten or twelve times during the night, and in five months I lost about fifty pounds in weight. During the month of July, 1861, I procured two bottles of Constitution Water, and in two days after using it I experienced relief, and after taking two bottles I was entirely cured, soon after regaining my usual good health. Yours, truly.

[No. 740 WATER-ST., New-York, June 5, 1862.
Dr. Lighthill has succeeded in completely restoring my hearing, which was seriously impaired, although previous to applying to him I was treated by several physicians without the least benefit. Any further information I should be pleased to render on application to me at my residence, No. 173 2d-st., Brooklyn, E. D., or at my place of business, No. 740 Water-st.
WM. H. WATERBURY.

Philo T. Ruggles, Esq., No. 25 Nassau-st., having been relieved by Dr. Lighthill of partial deafness of some years' standing, permits the Doctor to refer to him those desirous of further information.

METROPOLITAN HOTEL,
NEW-YORK, 1st April, 1862.
DEAR SIR: I take much pleasure in testifying to the professional skill exhibited by you in your treatment of a case of severe inflammation of the throat and ear with which I have lately been afflicted. Upon coming under your charge I was immediately relieved, and speedily cured of a most aggravated complaint, which several physicians had previously sought in vain to mitigate.
As I am somewhat of a stranger in the City, I would state that you are at liberty to substantiate my statements, if necessary, by reference to my relatives, Mr. A. V. Stout, President of the Shoe and Leather Bank of New-York, and to Mr. Everett Clapp, of the Western Transportation Company, No. 1 Coenties-slip.
With much esteem, I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
FRED. M. HANKS.
To Dr. Lighthill, No. 34 St. Mark's-place, New-York.

No. 42 FIFTH-STREET,
NEW-YORK, June 25, 1862.
Dr. Lighthill:
DEAR SIR: I take pleasure in testifying to the remarkable skill and judgment you displayed in the case of my daughter, who had been partially deaf, accompanied by discharge from the ears since early infancy, and is now, thanks to your treatment, able to hear as well as any one, while her ears are free from the discharge. Although it is nearly two years since she has been under your care, her hearing remains as good and her ears as sound as the day she left you.
O. S. HOLLY.

No. 413 FOURTH-ST., NEW-YORK, June 5, 1862.
My hearing having been impaired for a number of years, I placed myself under Dr. Lighthill's care, who restored it after a short course of treatment.

Book-keeper with P. Garrick, 19 and 21 Rosevelt-st.

NEW-YORK, June 10, 1862.
Dr. Lighthill:
DEAR SIR: Permit me to thank you most sincerely for the invaluable services you have rendered me in restoring the hearing of my son, who had been deaf from infancy, and who had previously been under the care of the best medical talent without the slightest success. Respectfully,
ANSELL HECHT,
No. 136 Sixth-av.

No. 3 GATES-AV., BROOKLYN, April 15, 1860.
Dr. E. B. LIGHTHILL: It gives me pleasure to inform you of the entire and effectual cure you have made in my little daughter's eyes, who, after several months of total blindness, and after having tried the skill of several eminent physicians, has been entirely relieved through your treatment, without which it is probable she would never have regained her sight. Most respectfully yours,
A. H. PURDY,
Late proprietor of National Theatre.

PERSONAL.

—The San Francisco Bulletin tells this story: "Over a year ago, a wealthy Secessionist went to the East from this city and recently returned and went to Washoe, where he owns rather largely in mining stocks. Recently a dispatch was sent from the authorities in Washington relative to the seizure of his property and person, as they had ascertained that he contributed to the outfit of the rebel privateer Sumter. The dispatch was received, but the property had all been disposed of, just in the nick of time. It seems that certain parties over the mountains are guilty of 'tapping' the telegraphic wires, and in this manner the rebel in question became possessed of the Government dispatch, and immediately telegraphed to his agent in this city to dispose of all his property on the instant. He also intercepted, it is said, the reply sent to Washington."

—The Wheeling Intelligencer says: "Mrs. Haymond and Mrs. Neeson, of Fairmont, about a month ago started on horseback for Richmond, via Huttonsville and Staunton, to see their husbands, who are in the rebel service. This was the second trip for Mrs. Haymond. They safely accomplished their long journey, and on Tuesday last got as far back toward home as Philippi, where they were arrested and brought to a halt by a detachment of Col. Wilkinson's men. They had passes from our commanding officer at Huttonsville, but the passes would not answer, and despite all their efforts they were detained. Gen. Kelley was telegraphed to for orders concerning them, and he very promptly and very properly ordered that their horses' heads should be turned back on the road whence they came, and the ladies passed Richmond-wards again beyond our lines."

—Capt. C. H. Collis, of the Zouave d'Afrique, a company that has acted as the body guard of Gen Banks, and done important service, has been authorized by Gov. Curtin to raise a regiment. The men are to be uniformed in a manner similar to the members of Capt. Collis' Company, and to be officered by competent and experienced soldiers.

—Maj.-Gen. Lew. Wallace arrived in Indianapolis on Wednesday night, July 2, to visit his relatives and friends. The General looks well and fully capable of enduring any arduous or dangerous duty that may be assigned him.

—Col. J. M. Gosline, of the Ninety-fifth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, was not killed, but dangerously wounded in the battle of Gaines' Hill.

OBITUARY.

—Major Nathan Beakes Rossell, who was killed while commanding, and at the head of his regiment, in the battle before Richmond, on Friday, 27th June, was born in 1818. He was the grandson of Hon. William Rossel, a Judge of the Supreme Court of New-Jersey for twenty-two years, and the son of Gen. Zachariah Rossell, who was Major of the Twenty-fifth Infantry in the war of 1812, and afterward Clerk of the Supreme Court of New-Jersey, and Adjutant-General of the State. His mother was Miss Lydia Beakes, a grand-daughter of Hon. William Trent, Chief Justice of Pennsylvania and afterward of New-Jersey, and the founder of Trenton. He was appointed Second Lieutenant in the Fifth Infantry in 1838, promoted to a first lieutenancy in 1840, distinguished at Monterey and Cherubusco, promoted to a captaincy in 1847, breveted Major in 1848, for gallant and meritorious conduct at El Molino del Rey, in 1847, and appointed Major of the Third Infantry 25th September, 1861. He carried the first United States flag into the City of Mexico, was a brave and accomplished officer and gentleman, and was much beloved in his regiment. He was brother-in-law to Gen. Marcy, and so related by marriage to Gen. McClellan. He leaves a widow and four children. His brother, Capt. William Henry Rossell, of the Tenth Infantry, is now in New-Mexico

BROWN BROTHERS & CO.,
NO. 59 WALL-ST.,
ISSUE COMMERCIAL AND TRAVELERS' CREDITS FOR USE IN THIS COUNTRY AND ABROAD

SALE JUNCTION RAILROAD COMPANY'S BONDS.—The Junction Railroad Company invites proposals, in writing, for the purchase of the whole or any part of five hundred thousand dollars First Mortgage Six Per Cent. Coupon Bonds.

The mortgage is made to Alexander Henry, Esq., Trustee, and will be due July 1, 1882. It is secured upon the entire railroad and property of the Company lying on the west side of Schuylkill, between Belmont and Gray's Ferry, its terms provide for a sinking fund of fifteen thousand dollars per year, to be invested in these Bonds, or in the First Mortgage Bonds of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Company, in the loans of the United States, or of the State of Pennsylvania, at the discretion of this Board of Directors.

The Bonds are for one thousand dollars each. Their payment is guaranteed by endorsement of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Company, and the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, on the back of each bond in the following words, viz.:

"Know all men by these presents, that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Company, and the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, and each of them, for a valuable consideration, to them paid by the Junction Railroad Company, do hereby (in pursuance of the power and authority conferred by two Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, approved respectively on the twenty-third day of March, A. D., 1864, and the eleventh day of April, A. D., 1862, and of every other lawful power and authority in them vested,) jointly and severally guarantee to the lawful holder of the within Bond the punctual payment of the principal and interest thereof, when and as the same shall become due and payable according to the terms of said Bond or of the terms and covenants of the indenture of mortgage therein mentioned and given to secure the same.

In witness whereof, said Companies have hereunto affixed their common or corporate seals respectively, duly attested, and have caused the signatures of their Presidents respectively to be hereunto written this second day of June, Anno Domini, eighteen hundred and sixty-two. (1862.")

Payment for the Bonds will be required as follows:

The first instalment of ten per cent. will be payable on the first day of August, and ten per cent. additional on the first of each succeeding month until the whole amount is paid.

Proposals will be addressed to CHAS. E. SMITH, Treasurer, No. 227 South 4th-st., until Monday, July 21.

Each proposal will state the total number or amount of the bonds wanted, and the price offered per bond of one thousand dollars.

The Company reserves to itself the right to accept or reject the whole or any part of any proposition received.

Successful bidders will be notified of the acceptance of their proposals within one week from the opening of the bids.

JOSEPH LESLEY,
Secretary, Junction Railroad Company.

NOTICE.—A SPECIAL MEETING OF THE BONDholders of the Chicago, Alton and St. Louis Railroad Company will be held at the rooms, No. 7 Nassau-st., over the Continental Bank, on WEDNESDAY, the 16th day of July, 1862, at 1 o'clock P. MEDICAL.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE shortest possible time, by Dr. WARD & CO., No. 12 Laight-st., near Canal, without the use of Mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. WARD, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. By his special experience in this much-neglected branch of medical science he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhea or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks. Gleet or Gonorrhea of long standing, where all internal remedies have failed, permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance, failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to Dr. WARD & CO., No. 12 Laight-st., the only place

SURE CURE.—DR. POWERS, SUCCESSFULLY consulted with Dr. WARD, No. 12 Laight-st. He gives advice free, and guarantees an immediate cure or no pay. Glorious triumph of medicine. Dr. POWERS' sure specific remedies for syphilitic, mercurial and all other delicate diseases; for certainty unapproached, and for the entire eradication of disease, nothing besides can positively be relied upon; try them and be convinced. Dr. POWERS' Essence of Life restores the vigor of youth in four weeks. This marvelous agent restores manhood to the most shattered constitutions. Office No. 12 Laight-st. Dr. POWERS' French Preventive, the greatest invention of the age. Those who have used them are never without them. Price, $1 per dozen; mailed free on receipt of the price. Address Dr. POWERS, No. 12 Laight-st.

DR. COBBETT, MEMBER OF THE N. Y. University, (Medical College,) and Royal College of Surgeons, London, has removed from No. 19 Duane-st., to his present very convenient suite of offices at No. 29 Centre-st., between Chambers and Reade sts., with a private entrance at No. 6 City Hall-place, where he can be consulted with the most honorable confidence on all diseases affecting the urinary organs; thirty years in his present specialty, three of which have been at the Hospitals of this City; unable to guarantee a cure in every case undertaken, or make no charge. Strictures of the urethra, impotency, seminal weaknesses, &c., treated on the most scientific principles. N. B.—As a proof of Dr. C.'s qualifications, he would call special attention to his Diplomas, which can be seen in his office.

DR. COOPER, NO. 14 DUANE-ST., MAY BE confidently consulted on all diseases of a private nature. A practice of 30 years, devoted to the treatment and cure of Syphilitic, Mercurial, and diseases of a delicate nature, enables Dr. C. to make speedy and permanent cures, no matter of how long standing the case may be. Strictures of the urethra and seminal weakness, brought on by a secret habit, effectually cured. The victims of misplaced confidence, who have been misled by quack advertisements, can call on Dr. C. with the certainty of being restored to health. Dr. C. is a qualified physician and surgeon, and a member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New-York. Office hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.

IMPORTANT TO THE MARRIED AND THOSE about to be married.—Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Professor of Diseases of Women, has just published the 100th edition of the valuable book, entitled "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," strictly intended for those whose health or circumstances forbid a too rapid increase of family. Price $1. Sold at his office, No. 129 Liberty-st., New-York; or can be sent by mail, free of postage, to any part of the United States and Canada, by inclosing $1, and addressing Box No. 1,224 New-York City. For sale by H. RICHARDSON, at No. 1 Vesey-st., (Astor House,) and No. 18 Ann-st.; FEDERHEN & CO., 13 Court-st., Boston.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL VIEW OF MARRIAGE —Containing nearly 300 pages, and 150 fine plates and engravings of the anatomy of the sexual organs in a state of health and disease; with a treatise on self abuse, its deplorable consequences upon the mind and body; with the author's plan of treatment—the only rational and successful mode of cure, as shown by the report of cases treated. A truthful adviser to the married and those contemplating marriage, who entertain doubts of their physical condition. Sent free of postage to any address on receipt of 25 cents, in stamps or postage stamps. Address Dr. LA CROIX, No. 31 Maiden-lane, Albany, N. Y.

THE CONFESSIONS AND EXPERIENCE OF AN INVALID.—Published for the benefit and as a warning and caution to young men who suffer from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay, &c.; supplying at the same time the means of Self-Cure. By one who has cured himself after being put to great expense through medical imposition and quackery. By inclosing a post-paid, addressed envelope, single copies may be had of the author, NATHANIEL MAYFAIR, Esq., Bedford, Kings County, N. York.

TO YOUNG MEN.—SCORES OF GRATEFUL letters weekly are now received from people who have recovered PERFECT HEALTH by following the directions contained in DR. TAIL and JACKSON'S great work called "PATHOLOGY OF THE REPRODUCTIVE ORGANS, AND THE SEXUAL ORGANISM AND ITS HEALTHFUL MANAGEMENT." Price $3. For sale in New-York by SINCLAIR TOUSEY, No. 121, and H. DEXTER, No. 113 Nassau-st.; C. BLANCHARD, No. 30 Ann-st., and all booksellers everywhere.

IMPORTANT TO FEMALES.—EXCLUSIVE treatment of diseases of females. Patients from a distance provided with private board, nursing, &c. Remedies for monthly derangements from $1 to $5. Relief guaranteed. Other advertisements and advice. Private Circular, containing particulars, mailed free, in letter form, on receipt of four stamps. Write for it and escape quackery. Office address—DR. THIERS, No. 1,217 Broadway.

FOUND AT LAST.—THE ONLY SAFE, CERtain and sure remedy for either single or married ladies in regulating and removing all obstructions. Dr. POWERS' French Periodical Drops. Therefore every lady should use them. Designed expressly for obstinate cases which all other remedies of the kind have failed to cure. Office No. 12 Laight-st.

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP RESTORES the vigor of youth in four days. Restores manhood to the most shattered system. The French Preventive, $4 per dozen. 3 Division-st., New-York, the only place. You who have contracted that soul and body-destroying vice, Secret Habits, Dr. HUNTER'S Red Drop cures the worst cases. Price $1, with a book.

EDWARD H. DIXON, M. D., EDITOR OF the Scalpel, and Operating and Consulting Surgeon, No. 42 5th-av. Office consultations on the more obscure diseases of the pelvic viscera. Rupture, piles, varicocele, and fistula, radically cured without the knife or ligature. Office hours from 8 to 9, 1 to 3, and 7 to 9 evenings. Consultation fee $5.

NO CURE NO PAY.—S. R. KING, M. D., CURES rheumatism, neuralgia, gout, dropsy, and all chronic diseases, with new chemical and electrical application, and memory removed from the system, &c. Office, No. 367 Broome-st., New-York.

SOMETHING FOR LADIES.—DR. COX'S Japan Secret, the great periodical remedy for the immediate removal of monthly obstructions. Office No. 38 Leroy-st., near Bleecker. Ladies can consult Dr. COX confidentially. Hours from 9 A. M. to 8 P. M.

FOR GENTLEMEN'S USE.—FRENCH INDIA rubber goods—three different articles. Price 40 cents each—$3 per dozen. For a descriptive circular call on or address MACKEY & CO., No. 81 Nassau-st., Room 12.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has, for thirty years, confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases, without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases, when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb, unless his remedy is used. This is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that scientific men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians, in regard to some pitiful patient, who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great, that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it; and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 3 Division-st. Book for 35 three-cent stamps, 300 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best work out.

OCULISTS AND AURISTS.

Great Wrecking Operation.

From the Boston Commercial Bulletin.

T. F. WELLS, Esq., of this city, has just completed a contract with the Government, by which he agrees to raise the vessels sunk at the Gosport Navy-yard and in Hampton Roads. The value of property sunk upon which he proposes to operate, amounts to over a million of dollars, and consists of the following vessels:

	Guns.		Guns.
Pennsylvania	120	Congress	50
Delaware	84	Plymouth	22
Columbus	80	Germantown	22
Raritan	50	Cumberland	24
Columbia	50	Dolphin	4
United States	50	Merrimac	12

Two new rebel steamers—water-boat, powder-boat.

The two new rebel steamers, it will be recollected, were all ready for sea, and were scuttled and sunk at the Navy-yard, in great haste; they now lay in about thirty feet of water, and it is thought can easily be raised. The Cumberland lays in eleven fathoms of water, and it is the intention of the contractor to raise her by means of four whale ships of four hundred tons each, which will be partially submerged by being partly filled with water, and then after attaching to the sunken ship, will, by means of the rise of tide and use of steam pumps, bring her up. It will be recollected the Merrimac was plated with eight hundred tons of iron, all of which, it is expected, will be recovered. The Congress and Cumberland each had iron safes aboard, containing respectively $35,000 and $18,000 in specie, which will, without doubt, be recovered by means of diving apparatus.

The undertaking involves an outlay, by the contractor, of some $60,000 before commencing the work; he will employ something like 200 men, among whom will be twenty divers, who will descend to the sunken ships in the Wells & Gowen submarine armor. Such of the vessels as are not raised will be blasted with gunpowder, and all the material that is of value recovered.

The contractor is the same party who raised the steamer Erie from Lake Erie in 1854, and has been engaged in other submarine operations. We understand he is to commence operations at once, and is to receive 45 per cent. salvage from the Government, in the value of all property recovered.

HALLECK'S ARMY IN THE WEST.—A letter dated June 21, 1862, says: "Four companies of CURTIS' Cavalry and four companies of the Eleventh Illinois Infantry are at Humboldt, Tennessee, under command of Capt. WADDELL, of the latter corps. The remainder of Gen. MCCLERNAND'S Division was at Jackson, twenty miles from Humboldt, at that date."

THE NEW CALL FOR TROOPS.

Important Order from Adjutant-Gen. Hillhouse.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW-YORK, ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, ALBANY, July 7, 1862.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 52.—I. The President of the United States having accepted from the several States an additional force of 300,000 volunteers, to serve for three years or for a period not to exceed the duration of the war, the quota of this State will be organized as herein provided, and for the infantry arm of the service.

II. The Senatorial Districts, as at present arranged, are hereby constituted Regimental Districts, and a Regimental Camp will be formed in each at the places hereinafter designated, where the recruits raised in such district will assemble. In districts where there are no barracks or other convenient quarters, tents will be used. Persons holding authorizations to raise companies under General Orders No. 31, will be considered as attached to the Regimental District in which they reside, and will take their recruits to the camp established in such district.

III. The territory comprising the first seven Senatorial Districts is hereby excepted from the provisions of paragraph II.; and persons organizing brigades or regiments within such territory, may select such locality therein for their camps, as shall to them appear most advantageous, subject to the approval of the Commander-in-Chief. All persons holding authorizations to raise companies, except batteries or battalions of artillery, within said territory, will forthwith attach themselves to some regimental organization, and transfer their recruits to the camp of such regiment.

IV. A commander will be appointed for each regiment by the Commander-in-Chief, to be commissioned on its completion. Such commanders are hereby invested with all the powers, and will perform all the duties now appertaining to Commandants of Depôts, and they are especially directed to make daily reports of their progress to the Adjutant-General of the State. They will also be held accountable for the due observance of the rules and regulations which may be established for the government of the several camps.

V. In addition to the regimental commanders, an Adjutant, Quartermaster and Surgeon will be appointed by the Commander-in-Chief, (the two first-named officers on the nomination of the regimental commanders,) and mustered into the service. The Adjutant in each case to act as mustering officer, and in the performance of this duty he will be governed strictly by the provisions of paragraph XII.

VI. Each company will be organized as follows:

Minimum.	Maximum.
1 Captain.	1 Captain.
1 First Lieutenant.	1 First Lieutenant.
1 Second Lieutenant.	1 Second Lieutenant.
1 First Sergeant.	1 First Sergeant.
4 Sergeants.	4 Sergeants.
8 Corporals.	8 Corporals.
2 Musicians.	2 Musicians.
1 Wagoner.	1 Wagoner.
64 privates.	82 Privates.
83 Aggregate.	101 Aggregate.

VII. On the application of persons proposing to enroll companies, approved by the Regimental Commander of the District, the Governor will, at his discretion, issue a certificate granting authority to enroll volunteers, and entitling the person to whom it is issued to receive a commission as Second Lieutenant, whenever he shall have enrolled not less than thirty men who shall have passed muster; to a commission as First Lieutenant for not less than forty men, and to a commission as Captain when he shall have recruited eighty-three men or over.

VIII. No authorization will be granted to officers who have been discharged from the volunteer service for incapacity or misconduct, or who have resigned under charges.

IX. Whenever any person, duly authorized, shall have enrolled the names of ten or more Volunteers, he will transmit the roll, with a copy of his authority certified, as provided in paragraph VII, to the Regimental Commander of his District, with a request that transportation be provided for such Volunteers to the camp; and a certificate, on his honor, that they are, to the best of his knowledge, able-bodied men, between the ages of 18 and 45 years; that he has the written consent of the parents or guardians of such as are minors, for their enlistment, and that so far as he can ascertain, they are free from any defect that would incapacitate them for military service. Fraud or premeditated deception in the certificate will disqualify the person making it from holding any position in the Volunteer forces of the State.

X. On receiving the application and certificate as provided in the foregoing paragraph, the Regimental Commander will furnish transportation for such volunteers to his regimental camp, where they will be examined by the Surgeon, mustered into service, and provided with quarters, subsistence and clothing.

XI. Officers of the several departments connected with the organization of volunteers, will not recognize the right of any person claiming to be engaged in organizing a company, to make a requisition for transportation, quarters, subsistence or clothing, or incur expenses for any purpose whatever, without proper evidence of appointment of such person as herein provided for. Such evidence may be furnished by the production of the original authorization from the Governor, or a copy thereof, properly certified by any Justice of the Peace, Notary Public, or Commissioner of Deeds.

XII. The Adjutants will act as mustering officers for the several regiments, whose duty it will be to muster in volunteers as they are presented, and enter their names on lists designating the persons having authority to enroll them. On the completion of a company, the names will be transferred to a muster roll, one copy of which will be forwarded to the Adjutant-General of the army, at Washington, one to the Adjutant-General of this State, and a third retained by the commanding officer of the company.

XII. On the completion of ten companies of the minimum standard in any Regimental District, they will be formed into a regiment, to be organized as follows:

Minimum.		Maximum.
630	Company Officers and enlisted men.	1010	Company Officers and enlisted men.
1	Colonel.	1	Colonel.
1	Lieutenant-Colonel.	1	Lieutenant-Colonel.
1	Major.	1	Major.
1	Adjutant.	1	Adjutant.
1	Regimental Quartermaster.	1	Regimental Quartermaster.
1	Surgeon.	1	Surgeon.
1	Assistant Surgeon.	1	Assistant Surgeon.
1	Chaplain.	1	Chaplain.
1	Sergeant-Major.	1	Sergeant-Major.
1	Regimental Quartermaster-Sergeant.	1	Regimental Quartermaster-Sergeant.
1	Regimental Commissary-Sergeant.	1	Regimental Commissary-Sergeant.
1	Hospital Steward.	1	Hospital Steward.
2	Principal Musicians.	2	Principal Musicians.
844	Aggregate.	1024	Aggregate.

XIV. Field and company officers will be mustered into service as follows: Colonel, entire regiment; Lieutenant-Colonel, four companies; Major, six companies, Captain, one company: First Lieutenant, one-half a company; Second Lieutenant, 30 men. The regimental staff will be mustered in on the completion of the regiment, except the Adjutant, Quartermaster and Surgeon, who will be mustered in at the commencement of a regimental organization, as provided in paragraph V. No officer will, however, be mustered into the service except on the order of the Commander-in-Chief, which will be granted on application, accompanied by the certificate of the mustering officer that he has the requisite number of men or companies actually mustered.

XV. The chiefs of the several State military departments will from time to time make requisition on the proper officers of the General Government for the arms and accoutrements, camp equipage, uniforms, clothing and medical supplies necessary for the force to be organized in pursuance of these orders.

XVI. Requisitions will be made on the State Departments as follows: By Regimental Commanders, on the Quartermaster-General, for transportation passes to be issued to recruiting officers; by Regimental Quartermasters, approved by the Regimental Commanders, on the Quartermaster-General, for uniforms, clothing and camp equipage; by the Regimental Commanders on the Commissary-General of Ordnance, for arms and accoutrements; and by the Regimental Surgeons on the Surgeon-General, for medical supplies. Requisitions in all cases to be transmitted through the Adjutant-General's Department, for the approval of the Commander-in-Chief.

XVII. Subsistence will be furnished on contracts made by the United States mustering and disbursing officers, who are requested to issue proposals therefor in each of the several regimental districts.

XVIII. Expenses incurred for subsistence, quarters, &c., previous to the transfer of recruits to a regimental camp, will be paid by the United States mustering and disbursing officers, in conformity with the provisions of General Orders No. 70 War Department, 1861.

XIX. The pay of officers will commence from the date of their muster into the service; that of privates from the date of their enrollment. In addition, the War Department has made the following provisions in the way of bounty and advance pay:

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., June 21, 1862.

Pursuant to a resolution of Congress to encourage enlistments in the regular army and volunteer forces, it is Ordered, That a premium of two dollars shall be paid for each accepted recruit that volunteers for three years or during the war; and every soldier who hereafter enlists either in the regular army or the volunteers for three years, or during the war, may receive his first month's pay in advance upon the mustering of his company into the service of the United States, or after he shall have been mustered into and joined a regiment already in the service. This order will be transmitted to Governors of States and recruiting officers.

(Signed) EDWIN M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., July 2, 1862.

Ordered, That out of the appropriation for collecting, organizing and drilling volunteers, there shall be paid in advance to each recruit for three years, or during the war, the sum of twenty-five dollars, being one fourth of the amount of bounty allowed by law; such payment to be made upon the mustering of the regiment to which such recruits belong into the service of the United States.

(Signed.) EDWIN M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

XX. The following places are hereby designated for the regimental camps in the several districts, viz.:

Dist.	Location.	County.
8.	Sing Sing	Westchester.
9.	Goshen	Orange.
10.	Kingston	Ulster.
11.	Tivoli	Dutchess.
12.	Troy	Rensselaer.
13.	Albany	Albany.
14.
15.	Fonda	Montgomery.

28.	Rochester	Monroe.
29.	Niagara Falls	Niagara.
30.	Geneseo	Livingston.
31.	Buffalo	Erie.
32.	Jamestown	Chautauqua.

XXI. The Inspector-General will report to the Commander-in-Chief such rules and regulations for the government of the regimental camps, as he shall think best calculated to promote discipline; and he will see that they are properly observed by a personal inspection, as often as may be required.

XXII. Recruiting officers will confine themselves to their respective districts, and on failure to do so will forfeit their authorizations. Officers recruiting for new organizations at large will, however, be allowed to transport their recruits already enrolled to the headquarters of the regiment or company.

XXIII. General Orders No. 31, except such portions as are incorporated herein, and all other orders, or parts of orders, inconsistent with the provisions herein contained, are hereby rescinded.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

THOS. HILLHOUSE, Adjutant-General.

THE RESPONSE OF CONNECTICUT.

NEW-HAVEN, Tuesday, July 8.

The largest meeting ever held in New-Haven assembled here this evening to respond to the call for volunteers. Music Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity. Commodore ANDREW H. FOOTE presided over the meeting, though still disabled by his wounds and unable to walk. Speeches were made by Senator Dixon, Gov. Buckingham, Rev. Dr. Bacon, Hon. Alvin P. Hyde, Hon. Thomas H. Bond, Rev. Dr. Nadall, Hon. George F. Trumbull, Hon. Chas. Chapman, Capt. Hunt, of the army, and others. The meeting was a most enthusiastic one, and the people are thoroughly aroused. Connecticut will not be behind her sister States in responding to the President's call for troops.

INDIANA AND OHIO.

CINCINNATI, Tuesday, July 8.

Gov. MORTON'S call for eleven more regiments and six batteries of artillery, although published yesterday morning, was responded to in a most hearty and confident manner, by prominent and influential representatives from over thirty counties. Gov. MORTON and Hon. W. P. THOMPSON addressed a large meeting at Indianapolis last week.

The organization of new regiments in Ohio will commence immediately. Camps are being established in different parts of the State for their reception. Recruiting has materially improved in the last few days. Over eight hundred privates, on furloughs, have reported at Camp Chase, and more are expected every day.

MASSACHUSETTS AND THE CALL.

BOSTON, Tuesday, July 8.

Gov. ANDREW and Adjt.-Gen. SCHOULER have prepared and published the military apportionment of the State, designating the number of men each city and town shall furnish to make up 15,000 men, the proportion Massachusetts is expected to send to the field under the call for 300,000 more volunteers.

PENNSYLVANIA ANSWERS THE CALL.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA MILITIA, HARRISBURGH, July 7, 1862.

GENERAL ORDER NO. 28.—In organizing the quota required from Pennsylvania under the late call of the President of the United States, it is ordered:

First—Troops will be accepted by squads or companies, as hereinafter indicated, and will as rapidly as possible be organized into companies and regiments.

Second—Persons proposing to organize companies will be accepted under the following provisions and not otherwise, viz.: To be commissioned a Captain, the applicant must have furnished forty or more men who have passed the Surgeon's examination and been mustered into the United States service. To be commissioned a First Lieutenant, from twenty-five to forty men must have been furnished as above. To be commissioned a Second Lieutenant, from fifteen to twenty-five men must have been furnished as above.

Third—Transportation to the Central Depôt, Camp Curtin, will be furnished on application in person or by mail, to Capt. R. J. DODGE, U. S. A., Superintendent of the Volunteer Recruiting Service for Pennsylvania, at Harrisburgh, to whom report must be made.

Fourth—The actual and necessary expenses for boarding and lodging of troops raised under this order will be paid by the United States disbursing officer at this post, for a period not exceeding twenty days, at a rate not exceeding forty cents, per day for each man mustered into the service of the United States, on the affidavit of the officer furnishing the men, supported by the receipts of the party to whom the money was paid.

Fifth—Squads will be organized into companies, at Camp Curtin, as rapidly as possible. The companies formed into regiments, field officers appointed and commissioned by the Governor, and the regiments immediately placed at the disposal of the War Department.

Sixth—As a reward for meritorious conduct, and, also, to secure veluable military experience, appointments of field officers will be made (except under peculiar circumstances) from men now in active service. By order of A. G. CURTIN,

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

A. L. RUSSELL, Adjutant-General.

THE RESPONSE OF OHIO.

PATRIOTIC PROCLAMATION OF GOV. TOD.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, COLUMBUS, O., July 3, 1862.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: Another appeal to your patriotism has become necessary. The enemies of our Government, now assembled at Richmond in hostile array, largely outnumber any disposable force at the President's command.

The army under Gen. MCCLELLAN has been driven back, merely by the force of overwhelming numbers rapidly concentrated there.

Additional troops are alone necessary to hold the important positions already gained, and speedily crush the rebellion at all points.

Liberally and gallantly as Ohio has heretofore responded to the calls of the President, he has ever been assured that we had but to know that further aid was needed from us to insure a prompt answer to any further calls he might make upon us. This knowledge we now have, and the call has also been made.

And now, citizens of Ohio, one and all, shall the call be responded to? Something whispers me that, with one voice, you say it shall be answered.

Arouse, then, and let every man be able to say that he has done his duty.

There is work for all to do. The aged can stimulate the young; the wealthy contribute to the wants and necessities of the destitute; and the ladies, who have already done so much, and whose kind hearts will prompt them in the continuance of their good work, can encourage, by their noble example, both old and young in the performance of the great duty. What is wealth, or even life, worth, if, to preserve either, we have to confess to the world that we are unable to maintain our glorious Government?

Gallant and worthy recruiting officers, for the organization of new regiments and the filling up of those already in the field, will be appointed in all portions of the State, and specific instructions given to them.

The enlistments will be for three years, or during the war.

I cannot at this time indicate the number of troops wanted from Ohio, but can safely say that the Government will accept all who may offer within the coming forty days.

Promptness and vigilance are indispensable. Forty thousand recruits within the time indicated would be of more service than twice that number at a later period.

The gallant men of the State may rely upon my best endeavors to discharge the highly responsible duties devolved upon me with an eye single to the preservation of our Government, and with the sincere hope and belief that, when the great struggle of life shall be over, my children can claim for me an honest and faithful performance of my duty.

Invoking the smiles of our Heavenly Father upon our good work,

I am your humble servant,

DAVID TOD, Governor.

RECRUITS FOR THE EIGHTY-SECOND REGIMENT.

We take pleasure in directing attention to the advertisement in our columns this morning, calling for recruits for the Second Regiment, N. Y. S. M., Eighty-second Volunteers, Col. HUDSON. Having been in the van at Bull Run, Ball's Bluff, Yorktown, West Point and Fair Oaks, this fighting regiment has lost so many men as to induce the Secretary of War to order the appointment of Lieut. J. W. DEMPSEY to recruit in New-York. The friends of the old Second Regiment N. Y. S. M. will doubtless exert themselves to send on sufficient men to fill up the ranks, and avoid the consolidation which must ensue otherwise. The recruiting office is at their Armory, corner of Hall-place and Seventh-street.

The Loyal Governors—Letter from Gov. Curtin.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, HARRISBURGH, Saturday, July 5, 1862.

To the Editor of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin:

In answer to the inquiry which appears in the Evening Bulletin, of this evening, I deem it just to the Governors of Iowa and Delaware to make an explanation as to the memorial presented to the President last week, by the Governors of loyal States, offering additional troops to suppress the rebellion.

At the time the memorial was prepared we could not reach, by telegraph, either Gov. KIRKWOOD or BURTON, and it was sent to Washington without replies from them. On my return to Harrisburgh, on the morning of the 4th inst., I received a letter from Gov. BURTON, asking that his name be signed to the memorial, and expressing, for the people of Delaware, his cordial approval of the offer, and his willingness to coöperate to any extent in all just measures for the active prosecution of the war for the suppression of the rebellion.

The letter of Gov. BURTON was immediately transmitted to the War Department, and there is no doubt his name has been appended to the memorial, and that the public will be so informed.

Failing to reach Gov. KIRKWOOD, I united in a dispatch with Gov. MORGAN, of New-York, to Messrs. GRIMES and HARLAN, Senators from Iowa, asking them to call at the War Department, and, if they were willing to assume the responsibility, to sign the name of the Governor to the memorial. I have a letter from them in which they say they called at the Department to sign the name of the Governor, as they knew it would meet his entire approbation, but that the memorial had already been published. There can be no doubt the Governor of Iowa will signify his approbation.

I am, very respectfully, yours, &c.,

A. G. CURTIN.

Why Not Arrange a General Exchange of Prisoners?

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

When are our prisoners of war to be exchanged? The spell which has paralyzed the authorities at Washington to the postponement of all things until after the great contest at Richmond, has at length been dissolved. Not by the clarion trump of glorious victory! but, alas, by a retreat, which, though we hope may be temporary, brings with it the wail of thousands of hearts bereaved of those dearest and most prized. Throughout the breadth and depth of this once happy land, the electric chord of sympathy in a common sorrow will bind together the people in a Union of States, and a union of hands, to drive back the wily foe and avenge the sacrifice. Doubtless the call of the President for reinforcements will be promptly met, but would it not be well for the authorities to remember, when asking this at the hands of the country, that the perils of this war are not alone those of the battle-field, but, if taken prisoner, those of a felon's cell; and that while thousands of loyal hearts may be ready to peril life in defence of everything they hold most dear, there is a horror beyond from which nothing can guard them but a definite plan for the general exchange of prisoners of war, matured at once, so that if captured they may know that they will experience its benefits.

And this, while it would give assurance to those about to enter the lists, how great the relief it would bring to those thousands of sorrowing hearts who mourn the almost living death of those brave ones now languishing in the fetid cells of Southern prisons, and who have deserved better than this of their country.

A little less than a year ago and the first terrors of the struggle entered the hearts of our people. Many buried their beloved, and time, with its gentle touch, may have soothed the pain, in the thought that they were at rest, having met the fate most dear to a brave man—death upon the battle-field in defence of a glorious cause.

But how has it been with those whose daring led them to the front and past the front—who, stripped of everything, have lingered in the prisons of Richmond and Charleston weeks, months, now a year gone by, in vain longing and expectation that the Government for whom all was sacrificed, whose very existence, for the time, was due to the prompt patriotism of these men, who waited for no second call, but sprang to arms at the first echo of the guns fired at Sumter?

From time to time, a few have been paroled to plead the cause of their fellow prisoners, and secure a general exchange. But in vain. Mothers, wives and children, they too must suffer the daily and hourly torture of fearing that those they love will fall victims to the malicious tactics of their barbarous captors at whose mercy they are, hostages for every pirate, bridge-burner or guerrilla. Even now, Capt. AUSTIN, of Kentucky, a brave officer, long in confinement, from the effects of which he has already lost one eye; and Capt. O'MEARA, whose name has a National significance second only to CORCORAN, have been placed in close and solitary confinement at Salisbury, N. C., as hostages for the guerrillas; and the public may rest assured that, as certainly as those criminals meet the fate they merit, just so surely our men will be hung two to one, not of equal rank, but the bravest and the best, that it may strike terror to the hearts of our people, and restrain the hands of our Government.

When will the powers at Washington perceive that so long as these cards are held by the enemy they will play them regardless of consequences? A system of general exchange of prisoners must and will be demanded by the people as a condition of their coming forward at this crisis. HUMANITY.

Death of Col. Perry—Resolutions of His Fellow-Officers.

FORT PULASKI, Ga., Saturday, June 21, 1862.

At a meeting of the officers of the Forty-eighth N. Y. S. Volunteers, convened at Fort Pulaski on the 21st of June, 1862, the following expression of feeling was made touching the death of Col. JAMES H. PERRY, who was taken from us suddenly by a stroke of apoplexy on the 18th inst., while engaged in the discharge of duty.

We meet together under trying circumstances. He who was our leader has been stricken down suddenly in the pride of his strength, and is gone forever. Possessed in an eminent degree of those qualities which make a successful commander, he had won our respect and confidence; a man of kindly feelings, he had won our love. We are overwhelmed with sorrow at this our great bereavement. We have lost a brave commander, an able counselor and a kind friend. But while we feel deeply our own loss, we would not forget to extend the hand of sympathy to the family and friends who mourn with us over this dispensation of Providence; and we trust that they, with us, may be consoled by the knowledge that he has proven himself a devoted servant of his country—a patriot, a man and a Christian. He has gone from us, but his influence will long be felt; and we hope that with him as our example, we may continue to labor in the cause of our beloved country with greater earnestness and fidelity.

LOTS CAST FOR HOSTAGES AGAIN.

Capt. J. P. MCIVOR, of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, writes as follows to Capt. KIRKER:

SALISBURY, N. C., June 21, 1862.

Capt. J. B. Kirker:

DEAR SIR: Your letter of the 18th, and Lieut. CONNOLLY'S of the 25th, have been received by the Colonel. He has been anxiously expecting the one you were to have written the following day. There is nothing of interest to communicate. Our existence here is rather monotonous. We, however, manage to vegetate by procuring, in addition to our rations, some indispensable articles which the market here furnishes, at prices that make fearful inroads into our already dilapidated exchequers. Our time is spent in playing ball, cards, chess, &c., walking, smoking, snoozing, philosophizing, speculating, criticising, and—like Micawber—waiting for something to turn up. There are confined here 44 officers, and about 600 non-commissioned officers and privates. Among the former are 8 Colonels, 6 Lieutenant-Colonels, 5 Majors, 42 Captains, 64 Lieutenants, 3 Surgeons and 3 Chaplains from the army. The navy is represented by 13 of its officers—43 are from the State of New-York, and 26 have been in confinement since the battle of Manassas. The health of the Colonel and the other officers is good. Two of our men have died this week; the burial place is outside the inclosure of the graveyard.

Capts. O'MEARA, of the Forty-second New-York, (Tammany Regiment,) and ADMEN, of the Second Kentucky; Assistant Surgeons SLOCUM, of the Navy, and HOFFMAN, Medical Purveyor, Banks' Division, have been chosen by lot, and are now held as hostages—who for, or what for, we do not know. The two former, we think, are held for two gentlemen whom FREMONT caught fillibustering in Virginia.

The Colonel, Lieuts. BAGLEY and GANNON desire to be remembered to you and all friends.

With protestations of respect, I subscribe myself your obedient servant.

J. P. MCIVOR, Captain Co. 1, 69th.

THE WAR IN ALABAMA.

GEN. BUELL'S ARMY.

Correspondence of the Cincinnati Gazette.

TUSCUMBIA, Ala., Monday, June 23.

The railroad bridge which spanned the Tuscumbia Creek at this place, and which was destroyed by the rebels, is now being rebuilt, and until this is done, it is to be presumed that the Sixth Division of BUELL'S army will remain at or near this place, though several regiments have already advanced to support builders at two points further East some sixteen to eighteen miles distant.

This Tuscumbia Creek is a remarkable stream, being made up entirely of two enormous springs, both within half a mile of each other, and of the bridge, and running into the Tennessee River some three miles from its source; and yet this short stream has a sufficient volume of unfailing water, and a sufficient fall with all to drive a countless number of spindles and looms, all of which some day, I doubt not, will be done. As it is, one dilapidated old flouring mill is kept at work grinding the corn meal on which the entire population now subsist.

Immense plantations, filled by large gangs of slaves, now cover this entire stretch of valley lands; the cotton crop of last year lies around in great abundance, and the circumstances under which some of it is owned, makes it very tempting to the true and earnest Union soldier. Yesterday a foraging party from Gen. GARFIELD'S Brigade discovered distinct traces of the whereabouts of a lot of one thousand bales of cotton which had been subscribed, by a noted secessionist, to the Southern Confederacy. Capt. RALPH PLUMB, Quartermaster, reported the facts to Gen. GARFIELD, commanding, and the same has been forwarded to headquarters of Gen. BUELL, in hopes that measures may be immediately taken to secure so much of the lot as may be found. Without doubt this is but a sample of what may be found in the way of contraband property. Indeed, it seems to your correspondent that a mistaken policy governs our movements as an army. Here we are, surrounded by as inveterate and determined a set of rebels as can be found in the entire South. They have given their means without stint to inaugurate and carry forward the rebel lion. They have all around us immense quantities of property, enough to defray the expense of feeding the entire army of Gen. BUELL. So determined are these rebels to sustain their cause at all hazards, that they boldly say to our Generals that all of these immense cornfields are designed to sustain the Confederate army another year. These cornfields are immense. On every plantation where heretofore only cotton has been produced, now the negro gangs are made to hoe corn instead, so that the rebels may not fall of a supply of bread.

And yet we are obliged to feed our animals on short rations and to pay from Northern loyal pockets not only the expense of transporting, at great disadvantage, the supplies for the men, but the poor soldier is compelled to pay (if he buys) an enormous price for any luxury he may desire to obtain. Butter, 40 cents; eggs, 25 cents per dozen; pies, 25 cents each; dressed pig, 25 cents per pound; chickens, 50 cents, and poor at that, are moderate samples of prices charged, and paid for in good Treasury notes.

We had got the railroad in fair running order from Corinth to this place, and were running trains daily from Iuka to the bridge opposite this town, by which means supplies reached us by wagon and rail from Eastport around the shoal water, now very low, between Florence and Eastport; but two nights ago the rebels, with whom we have been laboring so kindly, tore up the track, causing our only available locomotive to run off, so much disabled, that a new one must be had before we get any more transportation by rail.

How much good is to come from rebuilding and restocking this Memphis and Charleston Railroad, while to hold it so as to use it, with our present kind policy, involves the necessity of a guard for almost every rail, remains to be seen. Especially is this questionable when such points as Memphis, Corinth, Iuka, Tuscumbia, Decatur, Huntsville and Chattanooga, can be held with so much more certainty and ease, each of which points is supported by means of transportation running Northward. It may be found, indeed, that our tedious Summer labor has been expended upon a railroad of no great value to us as a line, and yet of great account to the rebels, should they by any means regain possession of even parts of it.

The Divisions of Gens. CRITTENDEN and MCCOOK crossed the Tennessee River, three days ago, at the very place where, in 1814, Gen. JACKSON crossed with his army, en route to New-Orleans.

An important court-martial for the Sixth Division has been sitting for seven days past without adjourning for an hour except meals and sleep. Gen. GARFIELD, being the ranking officer in the division, is the President of the Court, and proves to be as much at home there as in the Chair of President of his own loved Institution in Ohio, or in the more exciting business of whipping HUMPHREY MARSHALL in Eastern Kentucky.

No reliable information has as yet reached the army respecting the whereabouts of BEAUREGARD or his army.

Gen. BUELL'S headquarters still remain on the south bank of the Tennessee, near Florence.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Sunday, June 29, 1862.

There is a report circulating that Col. TURCHIN, in marching with the Nineteenth Illinois from Winchester to Bellefonte, was compelled to resort to some acts of terrible severity. He was repeatedly fired upon by rebel bushwh

THREE DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE

THE GREAT EASTERN OFF CAPE RACE.

American Affairs in the British Parliament.

Another Check to the Interventionists.

The Correspondence Relative to the Emily St. Pierre.

Further Advance in Cotton---Breadstuffs Firm---Provisions Dull.

CAPE RACE, Tuesday, July 8.

The steamship Great Eastern, with Liverpool dates of the 1st inst., passed this point at 1 o'clock this afternoon, and was boarded by the news yacht of the New-York Associated Press.

Her dates are two days later than those received by the Europa at Halifax.

Steamship North American, from Quebec, arrived at Londonderry on the 1st.

American affairs have been again alluded to in both Houses of the British Parliament. Lord PALMERSTON stated that he could see no good at present in offers of mediation, but the Government would, with pleasure, take advantage of any favorable opening that might occur.

The correspondence relative to the delivery of the ship Emily St. Pierre to the American authorities has been published, from which it appears that Minister ADAMS did not recede from the position first assumed by him on the subject.

Lord BROUGHAM explained his speech in the House of Lords on American affairs, that he merely wished, as fellow-Christians, to remonstrate with the Americans on the course of the civil war. Gloss it over as they might, the war threatened fatal results to the character of the American people.

The diplomatic correspondence relative to the Emily St. Pierre is lengthy. Mr. ADAMS contends that the ship and cargo were confiscated, and demands their restoration. RUSSELL employed legal arguments against, contending that Capt. WILLIAMS' course could be dealt with in the Prize Courts of the captors. ADAMS rejoined with the contention that the claim for the restoration of the ship rested on the soundest principles of law and equity. America expected a different decision, and will be made wise by the result, and will take precautions in the future to better protect itself. RUSSELL endeavored to convince Mr. ADAMS that the English Government had no power in the matter; but the latter closed by saying the arguments had not materially changed the nature of the issue, and he had sent the correspondence to Washington.

The Morning Post editorially contends that the masterly Confederate movements in Virginia had compelled immense armies destined for its conquest to cease the offensive, and content themselves with action on the defensive.

The City article of the Daily News regards the latest news as portending the almost indefinite postponement of peace.

In the House of Lords, BROUGHAM deplored the continuance of the civil strife and its consequences to Europe. He thought it impossible for England to interfere, but expressed the opinion that the Americans would see the suicidal character of the struggle and come to amicable arrangements, before they entirely lost the respect and affection of Europe as a nation.

In the House of Commons, Mr. HOPEWOOD asked if Government intended to take steps as a mediator.

PALMERSTON expressed deep sympathy with the suffering operatives, and eulogized their endurance. He wished it was in the power of Government to take steps for their relief; but interference in America now could only aggravate matters. Both England and France would be delighted to take mediatory steps when a fitting opportunity arose, he should look upon it both as a duty and a pleasure.

After another debate on fortifications, the Government bill was read the second time by 158 to 56.

The operatives at Blackburn held a meeting to urge mediation, but overwhelming opposition was shown, and the Government was finally called upon to try and reëstablish the confidence of the Southern planters in LINCOLN.

PEABODY was to have a public banquet, given by the Lord Mayor on being presented with the freedom of the city of London.

The marriage of Princess ALICE took place the day the Great Eastern left Liverpool.

Again it was asserted that PERSIGNY will assume the French Ambassadorship at London.

The Bourse was heavy at 68f. 15.

The Italian budget passed both Houses of Parliament. GARIBALDI, at Palermo, urged the people to concord.

THE NEW CALL FOR TROOPS.

Important Order from Adjutant-Gen. Hillhouse.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW-YORK, ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, ALBANY, July 7, 1862.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 52.—I. The President of the United States having accepted from the several States an additional force of 300,000 volunteers, to serve for three years or for a period not to exceed the duration of the war, the quota of this State will be organized as herein provided, and for the infantry arm of the service.

II. The Senatorial Districts, as at present arranged, are hereby constituted Regimental Districts, and a Regimental Camp will be formed in each at the places hereinafter designated, where the recruits raised in such district will assemble. In districts where there are no barracks or other convenient quarters, tents will be used. Persons holding authorizations to raise companies under General Orders No. 31, will be considered as attached to the Regimental District in which they reside, and will take their recruits to the camp established in such district.

III. The territory comprising the first seven Senatorial Districts is hereby excepted from the provisions of paragraph II.; and persons organizing brigades or regiments within such territory, may select such locality therein for their camps, as shall to them appear most advantageous, subject to the approval of the Commander-in-Chief. All persons holding authorizations to raise companies, except batteries or battalions of artillery, within said territory, will forthwith attach themselves to some regimental organization, and transfer their recruits to the camp of such regiment.

IV. A commander will be appointed for each regiment by the Commander-in-Chief, to be commissioned on its completion. Such commanders are hereby invested with all the powers, and will perform all the duties now appertaining to Commandants of Dépôts, and they are especially directed to make daily reports of their progress to the Adjutant-General of the State. They will also be held accountable for the due observance of the rules and regulations which may be established for the government of the several camps.

V. In addition to the regimental commanders, an Adjutant, Quartermaster and Surgeon will be appointed by the Commander-in-Chief, (the two first-named officers on the nomination of the regimental commanders,) and mustered into the service. The Adjutant in each case to act as mustering officer, and in the performance of this duty he will be governed strictly by the provisions of paragraph XII.

VI. Each company will be organized as follows:

Minimum.	Maximum.
1 Captain.	1 Captain.
1 First Lieutenant.	1 First Lieutenant.
1 Second Lieutenant.	1 Second Lieutenant.
1 First Sergeant.	1 First Sergeant.
4 Sergeants.	4 Sergeants.
8 Corporals.	8 Corporals.
2 Musicians.	2 Musicians.
1 Wagoner.	1 Wagoner.
64 privates.	82 Privates.
83 Aggregate.	101 Aggregate.

VII. On the application of persons proposing to enroll companies, approved by the Regimental Commander of the District, the Governor will, at his discretion, issue a certificate granting authority to enroll volunteers, and entitling the person to whom it is issued to receive a commission as Second Lieutenant, whenever he shall have enrolled not less than thirty men who shall have passed muster; to a commission as First Lieutenant for not less than forty men, and to a commission as Captain when he shall have recruited eighty-three men or over.

VIII. No authorization will be granted to officers who have been discharged from the volunteer service for incapacity or misconduct, or who have resigned under charges.

IX. Whenever any person, duly authorized, shall have enrolled the names of ten or more Volunteers, he will transmit the roll, with a copy of his authority certified, as provided in paragraph VII, to the Regimental Commander of his District, with a request that transportation be provided for such Volunteers to the camp; and a certificate, on his honor, that they are, to the best of his knowledge, able-bodied men, between the ages of 18 and 45 years; that he has the written consent of the parents or guardians of such as are minors, for their enlistment, and that so far as he can ascertain, they are free from any defect that would incapacitate them for military service. Fraud or premeditated deception in the certificate will disqualify the person making it from holding any position in the Volunteer forces of the State.

X. On receiving the application and certificate as provided in the foregoing paragraph, the Regimental Commander will furnish transportation for such volunteers to his regimental camp, where they will be examined by the Surgeon, mustered into service, and provided with quarters, subsistence and clothing.

XI. Officers of the several departments connected with the organization of volunteers, will not recognize the right of any person claiming to be engaged in organizing a company, to make a requisition for transportation, quarters, subsistence or clothing, or incur expenses for any purpose whatever, without proper evidence of appointment of such person as herein provided for. Such evidence may be furnished by the production of the original authorization from the Governor, or a copy thereof, properly certified by any Justice of the Peace, Notary Public, or Commissioner of Deeds.

XII. The Adjutants will act as mustering officers for the several regiments, whose duty it will be to muster in volunteers as they are presented, and enter their names on lists designating the persons having authority to enroll them. On the completion of a company, the names will be transferred to a muster roll, one copy of which will be forwarded to the Adjutant-General of the army, at Washington, one to the Adjutant-General of this State, and a third retained by the commanding officer of the company.

XII. On the completion of ten companies of the minimum standard in any Regimental District, they will be formed into a regiment, to be organized as follows:

Minimum.	Maximum.
830 Company Officers and enlisted men.	1010 Company Officers and enlisted men.
1 Colonel.	1 Colonel.
1 Lieutenant-Colonel.	1 Lieutenant-Colonel.
1 Major.	1 Major.
1 Adjutant.	1 Adjutant.
1 Regimental Quartermaster.	1 Regimental Quartermaster.
1 Surgeon.	1 Surgeon.
1 Assistant Surgeon.	1 Assistant Surgeon.
1 Chaplain.	1 Chaplain.
1 Sergeant-Major.	1 Sergeant-Major.
1 Regimental Quartermaster-Sergeant.	1 Regimental Quartermaster-Sergeant.
1 Regimental Commissary-Sergeant.	1 Regimental Commissary-Sergeant.
1 Hospital Steward.	1 Hospital Steward.
2 Principal Musicians.	2 Principal Musicians.
844 Aggregate.	1024 Aggregate.

XIV. Field and company officers will be mustered into service as follows: Colonel, entire regiment; Lieutenant-Colonel, four companies; Major, six companies, Captain, one company; First Lieutenant, one-half a company; Second Lieutenant, 30 men. The regimental staff will be mustered in on the completion of the regiment, except the Adjutant, Quartermaster and Surgeon, who will be mustered in at the commencement of a regimental organization, as provided in paragraph V. No officer will, however, be mustered into the service except on the order of the Commander-in-Chief, which will be granted on application, accompanied by the certificate of the mustering officer that he has the requisite number of men or companies actually mustered.

XV. The chiefs of the several State military departments will from time to time make requisition on the proper officers of the General Government for the arms and accoutrements, camp equipage, uniforms, clothing and medical supplies necessary for the force to be organized in pursuance of these orders.

XVI. Requisitions will be made on the State Departments as follows: By Regimental Commanders, on the Quartermaster-General, for transportation passes to be issued to recruiting officers; by Regimental Quartermasters, approved by the Regimental Commanders, on the Quartermaster-General, for uniforms, clothing and camp equipage; by the Regimental Commanders on the Commissary-General of Ordnance, for arms and accoutrements; and by the Regimental Surgeons on the Surgeon-General, for medical supplies. Requisitions in all cases to be transmitted through the Adjutant-General's Department, for the approval of the Commander-in-Chief.

XVII. Subsistence will be furnished on contracts made by the United States mustering and disbursing officers, who are requested to issue proposals therefor in each of the several regimental districts.

XVIII. Expenses incurred for subsistence, quarters, &c., previous to the transfer of recruits to a regimental camp, will be paid by the United States mustering and disbursing officers, in conformity with the provisions of General Orders No. 70 War Department, 1861.

XIX. The pay of officers will commence from the date of their muster into the service; that of privates from the date of their enrollment. In addition, the War Department has made the following provisions in the way of bounty and advance pay:

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., June 21, 1862.

Pursuant to a resolution of Congress to encourage enlistments in the regular army and volunteer forces, it is Ordered, That a premium of two dollars shall be paid for each accepted recruit that volunteers for three years or during the war; and every soldier who hereafter enlists either in the regular army or the volunteers for three years, or during the war, may receive his first month's pay in advance upon the mustering of his company into the service of the United States, or after he shall have been mustered into and joined a regiment already in the service. This order will be transmitted to Governors of States and recruiting officers.

(Signed) EDWIN M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., July 2, 1862.

Ordered, That out of the appropriation for collecting, organizing and drilling volunteers, there shall be paid in advance to each recruit for three years, or during the war, the sum of twenty-five dollars, being one-fourth of the amouni of bounty allowed by law; such payment to be made upon the mustering of the regiment, to which such recruits belong, into the service of the United States.

(Signed,) EDWIN M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

XX. The following places are hereby designated for the regimental camps in the several districts, viz.:

Dist.	Location.	County.
8.	Sing Sing	Westchester.
9.	Goshen	Orange.
10.	Kingston	Ulster.
11.	Tivoli	Dutchess.
12.	Troy	Rensselaer.
13.	Albany	Albany.
14.
15.	Fonda	Montgomery.
16.	Plattsburgh	Clinton.
17.	Ogdensburgh	St. Lawrence.
18.	Sacketi's Harbor	Jefferson.
19.	Rome	Oneida.
20.	Richfield Springs	Otsego.
21.	Oswego	Oswego.
22.	Syracuse	Onondaga.
23.	Norwich	Chenango.
24.	Binghampton	Broome.
25.	Auburn	Cayuga.
26.	Geneva	Ontario.
27.	Elmira	Chemung.
28.	Rochester	Monroe.
29.	Niagara Falls	Niagara.
30.	Geneseo	Livingston.
31.	Buffalo	Erie.
32.	Jamestown	Chautauqua.

XXI. The Inspector-General will report to the Commander-in-Chief such rules and regulations for the government of the regimental camps, as he shall think best calculated to promote discipline; and he will see that they are properly observed by a personal inspection, as often as may be required.

XXII. Recruiting officers will confine themselves to their respective districts, and on failure to do so will forfeit their authorizations. Officers recruiting for new organizations at large will, however, be allowed to transport their recruits already enrolled to the headquarters of the regiment or company.

XXIII. General Orders No. 31, except such portions as are incorporated herein, and all other orders, or parts of orders, inconsistent with the provisions herein contained, are hereby rescinded.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

THOS. HILLHOUSE, Adjutant-General.

THE RESPONSE OF CONNECTICUT.

NEW-HAVEN, Tuesday, July 8.

The largest meeting ever held in New-Haven assembled here this evening to respond to the call for volunteers. Music Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity. Commodore ANDREW H. FOOTE presided over the meeting, though still disabled by his wounds and unable to walk. Speeches were made by Senator Dixon, Gov. Buckingham, Rev. Dr. Bacon, Hon. Alvin P. Hyde, Hon. Thomas H. Bond, Rev. Dr. Nadall, Hon. George F. Trumbull, Hon. Chas. Chapman, Capt. Hunt, of the army, and others. The meeting was a most enthusiastic one, and the people are thoroughly aroused. Connecticut will not be behind her sister States in responding to the President's call for troops.

INDIANA AND OHIO.

CINCINNATI, Tuesday, July 8.

Gov. MORTON'S call for eleven more regiments and six batteries of artillery, although published yesterday morning, was responded to in a most hearty and confident manner, by prominent and influential representatives from over thirty counties. Gov. MORTON and Hon. W. P. THOMPSON addressed a large meeting at Indianapolis last week.

The organization of new regiments in Ohio will commence immediately. Camps are being established in different parts of the State for their reception. Recruiting has materially improved in the last few days. Over eight hundred privates, on furloughs, have reported at Camp Chase, and more are expected every day.

MASSACHUSETTS AND THE CALL.

BOSTON, Tuesday, July 8.

Gov. ANDREW and Adjt.-Gen. SCHOULER have prepared and published the military apportionment of the State, designating the number of men each city and town shall furnish to make up 15,600 men, the proportion Massachusetts is expected to send to the field under the call for 300,000 more volunteers.

PENNSYLVANIA ANSWERS THE CALL.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA MILITIA, HARRISBURGH, July 7, 1862.

GENERAL ORDER No. 28.—In organizing the quota required from Pennsylvania under the late call of the President of the United States, it is ordered:

First—Troops will be accepted by squads or companies, as hereinafter indicated, and will as rapidly as possible be organized into companies and regiments.

Second—Persons proposing to organize companies will be accepted under the following provisions and not otherwise, viz.: To be commissioned a Captain, the applicant must have furnished forty or more men who have passed the Surgeon's examination and been mustered into the United States service. To be commissioned a First Lieutenant, from twenty-five to forty men must have been furnished as above. To be commissioned a Second Lieutenant, from fifteen to twenty-five men must have been furnished as above.

Third—Transportation to the Central Dépôt, Camp Curtin, will be furnished on application in person or by mail, to Capt. R. J. DODGE, U. S. A., Superintendent of the Volunteer Recruiting Service for Pennsylvania, at Harrisburgh, to whom report must be made.

Fourth—The actual and necessary expenses for boarding and lodging of troops raised under this order will be paid by the United States disbursing officer at this post, for a period not exceeding twenty days, at a rate not exceeding forty cents per day for each man mustered into the service of the United States, on the affidavit of the officer furnishing the men, supported by the receipts of the party to whom the money was paid.

Fifth—Squads will be organized into companies, at Camp Curtin, as rapidly as possible. The companies formed into regiments, field officers appointed and commissioned by the Governor, and the regiments immediately placed at the disposal of the War Department.

Sixth—As a reward for meritorious conduct, and, also, to secure valuable military experience, appointments of field officers will be made (except under peculiar circumstances) from men now in active service. By order of A. G. CURTIN,

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

A. L. RUSSELL, Adjutant-General.

THE RESPONSE OF OHIO.

PATRIOTIC PROCLAMATION OF GOV. TOD.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, COLUMBUS, O., July 3, 1862.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: Another appeal to your patriotism has become necessary. The enemies of our Government, now assembled at Richmond in hostile array, largely outnumber any disposable force at the President's command.

The army under Gen. MCCLELLAN has been driven back, merely by the force of overwhelming numbers rapidly concentrated there.

Additional troops are alone necessary to hold the important positions already gained, and speedily crush the rebellion at all points.

Liberally and gallantly as Ohio has heretofore responded to the calls of the President, he has ever been assured that we had but to know that further aid was needed from us to insure a prompt answer to any further calls he might make upon us. This knowledge we now have, and the call has also been made.

And now, citizens of Ohio, one and all, shall the call be responded to? Something whispers me that, with one voice, you say it shall be answered.

Arouse, then, and let every man be able to say that he has done his duty.

There is work for all to do. The aged can stimulate the young; the wealthy contribute to the wants and necessities of the destitute; and the ladies, who have already done so much, and whose kind hearts will prompt them in the continuance of their good work, can encourage, by their noble example, both old and young in the performance of the great duty. What is wealth, or even life, worth, if, to preserve either, we have to confess to the world that we are unable to maintain our glorious Government?

Gallant and worthy recruiting officers, for the organization of new regiments and the filling up of those already in the field, will be appointed in all portions of the State, and specific instructions given to them.

The enlistments will be for three years, or during the war.

I cannot at this time indicate the number of troops wanted from Ohio, but can safely say that the Government will accept all who may offer within the coming forty days.

Promptness and vigilance are indispensable. Forty thousand recruits within the time indicated would be of more service than twice that number at a later period.

The gallant men of the State may rely upon my best endeavors to discharge the highly responsible duties devolved upon me with an eye single to the preservation of our Government, and with the sincere hope and belief that, when the great struggle of life shall be over, my children can claim for me an honest and faithful performance of my duty.

Invoking the smiles of our Heavenly Father upon our good work,

I am your humble servant,

DAVID TOD, Governor.

RECRUITS FOR THE EIGHTY-SECOND REGIMENT.

We take pleasure in directing attention to the advertisement in our columns this morning, calling for recruits for the Second Regiment, N. Y. S. M., Eighty-second Volunteers, Col. HUDSON. Having been in the van at Bull Run, Ball's Bluff, Yorktown, West Point and Fair Oaks, this fighting regiment has lost so many men as to induce the Secretary of War to order the appointment of Lieut. J. W. DEMPSEY to recruit in New-York. The friends of the old Second Regiment N. Y. S. M. will doubtless exert themselves to send on sufficient men to fill up the ranks, and avoid the consolidation which must ensue otherwise. The recruiting office is at their Armory, corner of Hallplace and Seventh-street.

The Loyal Governors—Letter from Gov. Curtin.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, HARRISBURGH, Saturday, July 5, 1862.

To the Editor of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin:

In answer to the inquiry which appears in the Evening Bulletin, of this evening, I deem it just to the Governors of Iowa and Delaware to make an explanation as to the memorial presented to the President last week, by the Governors of loyal States, offering additional troops to suppress the rebellion.

At the time the memorial was prepared we could not reach, by telegraph, either Gov. KIRKWOOD or BURTON, and it was sent to Washington without replies from them. On my return to Harrisburgh, on the morning of the 4th inst., I received a letter from Gov. BURTON, asking that his name be signed to the memorial, and expressing, for the people of Delaware, his cordial approval of the offer, and his willingness to coöperate to any extent in all just measures for the active prosecution of the war for the suppression of the rebellion.

The letter of Gov. BURTON was immediately transmitted to the War Department, and there is no doubt his name has been appended to the memorial, and that the public will be so informed.

Failing to reach Gov. KIRKWOOD, I united in a dispatch with Gov. MORGAN, of New-York, to Messrs. GRIMES and HARLAN, Senators from Iowa, asking them to call at the War Department, and, if they were willing to assume the responsibility, to sign the name of the Governor to the memorial. I have a letter from them in which they say they called at the Department to sign the name of the Governor, as they knew it would meet his entire approbation, but that the memorial had already been published. There can be no doubt the Governor of Iowa will signify his approbation.

I am, very respectfully, yours, &c.,

A. G. CURTIN.

Why Not Arrange a General Exchange Prisoners?

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

When are our prisoners of war to be exchanged? The spell which has paralyzed the authorities at Washington to the postponement of all things until after the great contest at Richmond, has at length been dissolved. Not by the clarion trump of glorious victory! but, alas, by a retreat, which, though we hope may be temporary, brings with it the wail of thousands of hearts bereaved of those dearest and most prized. Throughout the breadth and depth of this once happy land, the electric chord of sympathy in a common sorrow will bind together the people in a Union of States, and a union of hands, to drive back the wily foe and avenge the sacrifice. Doubtless the call of the President for reinforcements will be promptly met, but would it not be well for the authorities to remember, when asking this at the hands of the country, that the perils of this war are not alone those of the battle-field, but, if taken prisoner, those of a felon's cell; and that while thousands of loyal hearts may be ready to peril life in defence of everything they hold most dear, there is a horror beyond from which nothing can guard them but a definite plan for the general exchange of prisoners of war, matured at once, so that if captured they may know that they will experience its benefits.

And this, while it would give assurance to those about to enter the lists, how great the relief it would bring to those thousands of sorrowing hearts who mourn the almost living death of those brave ones now languishing in the fetid cells of Southern prisons, and who have deserved better than this of their country.

A little less than a year ago and the first terrors of the struggle entered the hearts of our people. Many buried their beloved, and time, with its gentle touch, may have soothed the pain, in the thought that they were at rest, having met the fate most dear to a brave man—death upon the battle-field in defence of a glorious cause.

But how has it been with those whose daring led them to the front and past the front—who, stripped of everything, have lingered in the prisons of Richmond and Charleston weeks, months, now a year gone by, in vain longing and expectation that the Government for whom all was sacrificed, whose very existence, for the time, was due to the prompt patriotism of these men, who waited for no second call, but sprang to arms at the first echo of the guns fired at Sumter?

From time to time, a few have been paroled to plead the cause of their fellow prisoners, and secure a general exchange. But in vain. Mothers, wives and children, they too must suffer the daily and hourly torture of fearing that those they love will fall victims to the malicious tactics of their barbarous captors at whose mercy they are, hostages for every pirate, bridge-burner or guerrilla. Even now, Capt. AUSTIN, of Kentucky, a brave officer, long in confinement, from the effects of which he has already lost one eye; and Capt. O'MEARA, whose name has a National significance second only to CORCORAN, have been placed in close and solitary confinement at Salisbury, N. C., as hostages for the guerrillas; and the public may rest assured that, as certainly as those criminals meet the fate they merit, just so surely our men will be hung two to one, not of equal rank, but the bravest and the best, that it may strike terror to the hearts of our people, and restrain the hands of our Government.

When will the powers at Washington perceive that so long as these cards are held by the enemy they will play them regardless of consequences? A system of general exchange of prisoners must and will be demanded by the people as a condition of their coming forward at this crisis. HUMANITY.

Death of Col. Perry—Resolutions of His Fellow-Officers.

FORT PULASKI, Ga., Saturday, June 21, 1862.

At a meeting of the officers of the Forty-eighth N. Y. S. Volunteers, convened at Fort Pulaski on the 21st of June, 1862, the following expression of feeling was made touching the death of Col. JAMES H. PERRY, who was taken from us suddenly by a stroke of apoplexy on the 16th inst., while engaged in the discharge of duty.

We meet together under trying circumstances. He who was our leader has been stricken down suddenly in the pride of his strength, and is gone forever. Possessed in an eminent degree of those qualities which make a successful commander, he had won our respect and confidence; a man of kindly feelings, he had won our love. We are overwhelmed with sorrow at this our great bereavement. We have lost a brave commander, an able counselor and a kind friend. But while we feel deeply our own loss, we would not forget to extend the hand of sympathy to the family and friends who mourn with us over this dispensation of Providence; and we trust that they, with us, may be consoled by the knowledge that he has proven himself a devoted servant of his country—a patriot, a man and a Christian. He has gone from us, but his influence will long be felt; and we hope that with him as our example, we may continue to labor in the cause of our beloved country with greater earnestness and fidelity.

The Union Prisoners in Salisbury, N. C.

LOTS CAST FOR HOSTAGES AGAIN.

Capt. J. P. MCIVOR, of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, writes as follows to Capt. KIRKER:

SALISBURY, N. C., June 21, 1862.

Capt. J. B. Kirker:

DEAR SIR: Your letter of the 18th, and Lieut. CONNOLLY'S of the 25th, have been received by the Colonel. He has been anxiously expecting the one you were to have written the following day. There is nothing of interest to communicate. Our existence here is rather monotonous. We, however, manage to vegetate by procuring, in addition to our rations, some indispensable articles which the market here furnishes, at prices that make fearful inroads into our already dilapidated exchequers. Our time is spent in playing ball, cards, chess, &c., walking, smoking, snoozing, philosophizing, speculating, criticising, and—like Micawber—waiting for something to turn up. There are confined here 44 officers, and about 600 non-commissioned officers and privates. Among the former are 5 Colonels, 6 Lieutenant-Colonels, 5 Majors, 43 Captains, 64 Lieutenants, 5 Surgeons and 3 Chaplains from the army. The navy is represented by 13 of its officers—42 are from the State of New-York, and 28 have been in confinement since the battle of Manassas. The health of the Colonel and the other officers is good. Two of our men have died this week; the burial place is outside the inclosure of the graveyard.

Capts. O'MEARA, of the Forty-second New-York, (Tammany Regiment,) and AUSTIN, of the Second Kentucky; Assistant Surgeons SLOCUM, of the Navy, and HOFFMAN, Medical Purveyor, Banks' Division, have been chosen by lot, and are now held as hostages—who for, or what for, we do not know. The two former, we think, are held for two gentlemen whom FREMONT caught filibustering in Virginia.

The Colonel, Lieuts. BAGLEY and GANNON desire to be remembered to you and all friends.

With protestations of respect, I subscribe myself your obedient servant.

J. P. MCIVOR, Captain Co. 1, 69th.

Citizens Meeting at the Fifth-Avenue Hotel.

A meeting of influential citizens was convened at the Fifth-Avenue Hotel last evening, for the purpose of adding a Citizen's Committee to the Committees already appointed by the Chamber of Commerce, Union Defence Committee, and Citizen's meeting at the Mayor's Office on Monday last, to take into consideration the propriety of a grand Union meeting, and the devising of some measures for the support of the Government in this its present emergency. Among those present were His Honor Mayor OPDYKE HIRAM BARNEY, Esq., Collector of the Port; Surveyor ANDREWS, Gen. WETMORE, W. CURTIS NOYES, R. A. WITHAUS, Prof. LEVER, P. COOPER, MORRIS KETCHUM, Hon. B. F. MANNIERE, Mr. C. GOULD, and other prominent citizens. Mr. GOULD stated the object of the meeting, and, on his nomination, Mayor OPDYKE was chosen to preside. Mr. A. M. PALMER was appointed Secretary.

Speeches were made by Mayor OPDYKE, PETER COOPER, Esq., Mr. R. A. WITTHAUS, and others, all of a highly patriotic tone, expressing confidence in the Government, advocating the sinking of all party ties, and even, what we are disposed to consider to some degree principles, for the strengthening of the hands of the Government. The want of enthusiasm among the people in the work of recruiting was admitted, and as a means of avoiding the threatening necessity for drafting, an increase of the advance bounty to recruits was suggested.

The following gentlemen were appointed a Committee to meet to-day with the Committees before mentioned, and coöperate with them: Messrs. R. H. McCURDY, Charles Gould, Wm. Curtis Noyes, Morris Ketchum, and Nathaniel Hayden.

Meeting of the Committee on National Affairs.

Yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Joint Committee on National Affairs held a meeting, Councilman JONES in the chair. Several bills were passed for payment, among which was one for the funeral of Col. MILLER, one for music that attended the Policemen who marched in the funeral procession of Col. MILLER. The charges for Col. MILLER'S funeral were considered too exorbitant, so were laid over for future consideration.

The application from the First Regimen, that was among the first three-months regiments that went to the war, asking for an appropriation to reequip, was laid over, until Col. PRICE could be heard from.

As was also Col. ALLEN'S application for Lafayette Hall, to be used for recruiting purposes. The application of the Seventh Regiment to raise a monument at the junction of Bowery and Fourth-avenue to fallen New-Yorkers, was also laid over.

The suggestion of the Comptroller relative to the amending section 7 of the Family Aid ordinance, was then taken up. The decision was in favor of making the above change from weekly to semi-monthly payments.

Councilmen ORTON and GEDNEY, and Aldermen SMITH, ALLEN and MITCHELL were appointed a Sub-Committee of five to carry out the Mayor's suggestion of coöperation of the Common Council with a Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and other Committees, to take steps to support the Government in crushing the rebellion.

The Committee then adjourned.

The Troubles in Utah.

PACIFIC SPRINGS, Utah, Monday, July 7.

The Indians have taken all the stage stock from three or four stations east of the Rock Ridge, thirty-two head in all, killed two emigrants and took their stock. They also took 140 horses from Californians at Yo Springs.

A war with the Cheyennes, Snakes, and two or three bands of Sioux, appears inevitable. There are only 500 troops on the whole line, which are not enough for its protection.

Arrivals in the City.

Gen. O. M. Mitchel, and his son, Capt. E. N. Mitchel, of the U. S. Army, arrived from the West yesterday afternoon, and are stopping at the St. Nicholas Hotel; Dr. John N. Garner and Dr. Charles E. Sanborn, of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, and Major C. W. Barton, of the U. S. Army, are at the St. Nicholas Hotel.
